CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

FOR THE CONVENIENCE OF FLORISTS who want to grow some really good POT MUMS, we are offering our collection of STRICTLY POT PLANT VARIETIES. This collection has been the result of years of experience in this line and includes only varieties that are especially adapted to pot plant culture.

There are included in this collection, besides the Caprice family and several of the best standard pot plant varieties, many sorts of this year's and last year's introduction, some of them being worth from 15 to 30c per plant.

We sell these in collection only and in not less than hundred lots at $5.00 per 100. Shipped from 2 1/2-in. pots, ready for 4-in.

WE ALSO HAVE READY FOR SHIPMENT out of 2 1/2-in. pots, TOTTY'S TUXEDO COLLECTION OF JAPANESE ANEMONES, new this year. This collection comprises 12 beautiful varieties in a wide assortment of colors. Fine for cutting and especially adapted for pot plants. Greeted with enthusiasm wherever shown.

Strong 2 1/2-in. plants, 25c each, $2.50 per dozen. You will appreciate our good packing.

AN UP-TO-DATE GREENHOUSE

must be lasting, secure, efficient, properly ventilated

It must be constructed in accordance with the rules which have been approved by knowledge and experience. We have been in the greenhouse manufacturing business for a good many years and our experience is at your disposal. Whether you intend to build your first house or plan an addition, we believe that our suggestions will be of interest to you. Our material is strictly first-class both in grade and workmanship. Our new "Leak-Proof" Gutter is bound to give you satisfaction. Our prices are reasonable. We use only the best grade of Louisiana Red Cypress.

To whom shall you entrust your priceless trees?

A scientist's answer

A letter from Dr. H. D. House, New York State Botanist and formerly professor in the Biltmore Forestry School

MR. M. L. DAVEY, General Manager, Davey Tree Expert Company, Kent, Ohio.

Dear Mr. Davey:

I believe that I owe you many thanks for the opportunity which I have had just recently of seeing the Davey organization in convention at Kent.

I was deeply impressed by the mutual determination of your men to accomplish perfect work and to place quality above all other considerations. This, and the trained ability and co-operation of your men, is doing much to restore that confidence in the profession of tree surgery which has been greatly injured by poorly trained and unscrupulous workers. After an inspection of work accomplished by your men and a study of their methods, I am convinced that their work measures up to the highest degree of efficiency which training and experience can produce. I believe that owners of trees may expect service of the most reliable character from your men.

Very truly yours,

H. D. HOUSE, State Botanist.

ROTARY FLORISTS REDOUBTABLE FELLOWS

"Luck lies in bed and expects the postman to bring news of a legacy," so it may not be said that a florist is lucky to count himself a Rotarian, for Rotary makes no bequests. Rotary rather exacts a labor—but witness how well it has rewarded florist members.

BORN of a loftier ambition than merely to stand high in the world, nurtured by the indomitable spirit of progress, Rotary has grown during a short span of years from an unostentatious beginning to a national force. The principles of Rotary, first given form in 1905, in the course of a dozen years have been embraced by large numbers of the country's leading business and professional men, those who have pledged themselves to Rotary ideals now aggregating approximately 31,000. This figure represents the estimated total membership of about 300 Rotary clubs, most of them in the United States, but with a fair sprinkling of them in Canada, Great Britain, Ireland and Cuba.

Rotary's Rewards.

A Rotary club consists of men chosen from each distinct business and profession, the membership being limited to one representative from each line of endeavor. Each member, therefore, is benefited by association with members engaged in other occupations than his own. To put it briefly, a club is organized to accomplish: "First, the betterment of the individual member; second, the betterment of the member's business, both in a practical way and in an ideal way; third, the betterment of the member's craft or profession as a whole; fourth, the betterment of the member's home, his town, state and country, and of society as a whole."

In the matter of business benefits, on the material side, it is obvious that a membership in a Rotary club represents an opportunity for increased business, through the formation of acquaintanceships, through the friendly relations between members. It is emphasized, however, that a membership provides an opportunity only. Buying and selling between Rotarians is not an obligation, only an incident; but it is clear that if each of the Rotary florists, having gained the confidence of his fellow members, combines this advantage with satisfactory flowers, prices and service, he is in a most favorable position to receive the patronage of his fellow members. It would seem, then, that the 173 florists in Rotary enjoy the returns from a channel of trade which florists who are not Rotarians necessarily must pass up. It is a case of being "in right," to express it in the language of the street.

In addition to this retail phase of business accruing to Rotary florists, there is the wholesale aspect, the interchange of telegraph and mail orders between themselves. All of the Rotary clubs are affiliated with and inseparable from the mother body, the International Association of Rotary Clubs, under the auspices of which the annual conventions are held and under the guidance of which the trade, or vocational, sections are formed and energized. Thus, in the florists' contingent, whether by actual session or by written communication, the trade's Rotary florists come into closer contact with each other, pool their ideas for trade improvements, discuss problems common to themselves and clear the way for more business between themselves.

Give 'Em Credit.

During the last two years, among other things, the associated Rotary florists have given special attention to consumer advertising, particularly as it regards the development of the Rotary field. The Rotary florists were early to employ coöperative advertising. In fact, the florists under the Rotary banner have to their credit a "scoop," and while on this subject William C. Gloeckner, the Rotary florist of Albany, N. Y., has a few words to say: "The Rotary florists and not the Chicago Florists' Club have been the first to go into magazine advertising, as we have carried an ad in The Rotarian for almost eighteen months. Of course, we have specialized in 'Rotary florists and service,' but we feel satisfied that the advertising has helped other out-of-town business and done good work for the F. T. D."

The advertising medium referred to, The Rotarian, is the official organ of the International Association of Rotary Clubs. It is a well developed publication, issued monthly, its circulation of more than 31,000 being made up of Rotary club members. The readers easily are of the flower-buying type, men whose incomes as a rule are considerably in excess of the average. Between sixty and seventy per cent of the monthly copies are mailed to the home addresses of the subscribers, thus coming to the attention of the wives and other members of the families.

A Rotary Scheme.

The first advertising of the associated Rotary florists in the organization publication evidently was productive of good returns, for at last year's Rotary convention at Cincinnati the leaders planned to raise a fund to be expended for and to guarantee continuous advertising in the magazine during 1917. Accordingly, Rotarian Thomas H. Joy, of Nashville, Tenn., secretary of the florists' division, assisted by William C. Gloeckner, of Albany, N. Y., then chairman, circularized Rotary florists with letters asking contributions to an advertising appropriation. After a bit of hammering, about 100 members responded to the call, each subscribing an average of $10. Having thus acquired the wherewithal, thanks to their gumption and determination, the officers of the division contracted for twelve full pages in The Rotarian, beginning with the December issue of last year.

The accompanying illustrations are reduced reproductions of four of the advertisements that have appeared so far. In a way the Rotary ads are a revelation to those who are familiar with the attempts of the average florist in writing effective advertising copy. The appeals to sentiment are adroit, neither overdone nor underdone; the text explaining the telegraph idea is boiled down to a happy minimum; the cuts catch the eye. The current ad, appearing in this month's issue of the magazine, has a most seasonable message: "June is the month of brides, sweet girl graduates, sunshine and flowers." At the close of the ad there is a snappy spontaneous style: "The thing is done—no trouble, no worry, no delay, everybody happy!" The advertisements were the work of the service department of the publication.

Send Them Flowers

When you wish to remember your friends at home or abroad, why not send them something that will convey a message of human sympathy and feeling?

Flowers can do this more effectively than anything else, for as Longfellow says—

"They are akin to human things."

And it's so very easy the Rotary way—just 'phone or write your local Rotary Florist and tell him what you want and he will execute your commission. The expense will be no greater than it would if you were sending flowers right in your own city, unless you delay giving your order, then the small cost of telegram will be added to your bill.

The flowers will reach destination fresh and crisp because they will be delivered by the Rotary Florist in the city where you ask to have them sent. The Rotary Florists have established this special arrangement whereby they may be of greater service to you.

Send Them Flowers

SINCE the first Christmas celebration Flowers have symbolized the Christmas spirit; therefore nothing could be more appropriate than Flowers to convey to Relatives and Friends, both at home and abroad, messages of love and good cheer.

But how can we send Flowers to those we wish to remember in distant cities? you ask, and yet it's the simplest thing in the world. Just 'phone or write your local Rotary Florist, tell him what you want and when you want it and he will do the rest. Then dismiss the subject from your mind until you receive the bill.

And by the way, the bill will be no greater than it would be if you were sending the Flowers right in your own city, unless you delay in giving your order, then the small cost of a telegram will be added—only a trifle.

No, the Flowers will not be wilted or frozen because they will be delivered fresh and crisp by the Rotary Florist in the city where your Friends or Relatives live. The Rotary Florists have established a complete chain whereby you get Rotary Service at both ends.

Wanted—127 Good Men.

There are 173 Rotary florists out of a possible 300 or so, counting, as is proper, one florist member to each club.
 This means that there is room for about 127 florists in Rotary organizations, 127 chances for ambitious florists who want to join the craftsmen already cooperating under the wheel of Rotary.
 Every Rotary club without a florist member represents a chance.

It should be borne in mind, however, that there is no such thing as "absent treatment" in Rotary. Each member elected has obligations that cannot well be "skipped," and one of these is regular attendance at all gatherings of his Rotary club. Election to membership is not a perfunctory matter. A Rotary membership committee is to be satisfied on several points, such as the proposed member's personal credit; that he is one of the directing forces of a business; that the concern he rep-represents is one of the leaders in the line of business; that his reputation for integrity and character is above reproach.
 But things not easy to get are worth having.

Thomas H. Joy, of Nashville, the sec-

THIS BODY OF CHICAGO BUSINESS-MEN BELIEVES BUSINESS WILL BE BETTER THAN EVER

THEY base this belief on business conditions in war-stricken countries and in this country today.

Canadian florists report that the volume of business done at the present time EXCEEDS that of normal times. This is true in England, France, Germany and other warring nations.

THE experience of the war-stricken countries proves conclusively that this country can thrive in a prosperous and safe way under a war regime. We can look forward to an even greater increased business. Our factories, mills and shipyards are already booked up months ahead with civilian business. The $8,800,000,000 provided for in the joint loan, as revenue budget of the government, is equivalent to the total value of our enormous export trade in the entire last year and a half. The expenditure of this huge amount cannot but result in stimulating every department of industry, trade and transportation.

IN VIEW of these facts the Florists of Chicago feel justified in creating a GREATER demand for their product. NOW, more than at any other time, the soul of every man, woman and child needs the good that literally radiates from flowers.

Our Country Will Be Made More Beautiful to Live In With the Presence of More Flowers

HAVE YOU EVER STOPPED TO CONSIDER HOW FLOWERS REALLY BENEFIT?

CONSIDER FLOWERS IN THE HOME. A flower always brings with it an atmosphere of harmony and happiness. The statement can be truthfully made that no home realizes complete living comfort without flowers. They are as essential in the home as a bed or a chair in rest—a picture—or other things that inspire. They comfort, cheer and make the world about more beautiful.

AND AS GIFTS, there is no other that can be termed "price less." Recipients of flowers do not think of the money value. The appreciation of beauty puts the thought of the expenditure far in the background. Remember this when next you consider gift-giving.

Remember
 That the Florists have a well organized system of delivering FLOWERS in any part of the world in a few hours' time, thru THE FLORIST TELEGRAPH DELIVERY ASSOCIATION.

"Flowers Are the Smiles of God"

To Suggest the True Meaning of Flowers, the Following Several Uses Are Enumerated:

For the Sweet Girl Graduate

One epoch in a young woman's life is her Graduation—up to that time, no event has been quite as important. To recognize it thru a gift of flowers will afford joy beyond compare.

A Floral Bouquet especially originated by Florists for "THE SWEET GIRL GRADUATE" is the proper remembrance TO SEND TO HER HOME.

Flowers also are appreciated by the earnest young man on this occasion.

Birthday and Wedding Anniversaries

On your wife's birthday, your Wedding Anniversary or other similar occasions you will do a thoughtful act if you send "Her" a beautiful basket of flowers or a blooming plant or perhaps a Fern stand, which will give her continual pleasure.

To the Sickroom

It seems as if there flowers are most appreciated. They make the room more cheerful and the sick one happier. Do a "little act of kindness" today by sending to a friend in need of cheer a Growing Plant or Bouquet of flowers.

Co-operative Advertisement Planned for the Trade in Chicago.

retary of the florists' unit in Rotary, presumably will be glad to furnish information relative to the principles and privileges of those whose prime maxim is, "Service, Not Self—He Profits Most Who Serves Best."

CO-OPERATION AT CHICAGO.

Coöperative newspaper advertising has proved highly effective in practically all the cities in which it has been tried, but it has not yet been employed in Chicago. Within the last few days, however, progress has been made which promises a strong push in the autumn.

Working together, the H. V. Swenson Co., which specializes in florists' publicity, and one of the Chicago daily papers obtained over $500 in subscriptions from the trade for the publication of the full-page advertisement reproduced herewith much reduced in size. It was found, however, that a majority of those who subscribed disagreed with one feature of the plan or another and only put their names down because of general interest. For instance, the majority, especially among the wholesalers who subscribed, said they thought the season is wrong; that the advertising should start at the beginning of a season rather than at its end. Others questioned the choice of medium, believing that a different paper would better be used, even if its rates are higher. Still others thought one insertion undesirable if a second and third are not in sight. The latter were the deciding factor in causing Mr. Swenson to postpone the matter for a time. He now plans to arrange for a series of large coöperative daily newspaper ads to appear in the autumn and winter and has secured many endorsements, including that of the Chicago Florists' Club.

A LUXURY?

A popular fallacy is that flowers are a luxury, but the florist who studies his business knows that when the flower-buying habit has been acquired flowers thereafter are as necessary as any other article of regular use. How necessary flowers have become, even to people of moderate means, is shown by the fact that a popular-priced store, run by an energetic American in one of the good-sized cities, recently made 1,600 sales in one business day. But the most remarkable feature of it is that the 1,600 sales were made in a store having only 280 square feet of floor space within its four walls. One would be justified in calling such a rush a "demand" for flowers.

THE GLADIOLUS

TIME FOR LATE PLANTINGS.

We are told each year that gladioli are being overdone; that they sold so cheaply in the markets that they were not worth growing and that as a consequence fewer would be grown next year. We have heard this talk so many times now and applied to such a variety of plants that it has become somewhat hackneyed. From reports from seed and bulb houses, we find that the demand for these bulbs has increased this season, in spite of all the semi-hysterical economy talk. It is true, of course, that gladioli during the glut season do bring unprofitable prices. It is equally true that early in the year they will net, under careful culture, as much as any indoor crop we can grow; and, coming to the outdoor crop, if a few more growers would realize that it pays to start a few hundreds in pots in a frame, to plant out later, and to plant a good batch in the open early and a further batch rather late, to avoid the period of glut, they would make more money. But in too many cases retail florists plant their entire stock of gladioli at one operation, which will give the bulk of their spikes when they are most abundant.

This is a reminder that these late gladioli should go in between now and June 20, and that they should be planted five to six inches in depth for the best results. If you have not yet tried the primulinus type of gladioli, you should do so. They are as yet a little high for commercial uses, but they are by far the most decorative of gladioli, and they promise in a few years to surpass in favor the older and larger-flowered varieties.

GLADIOLUS BULLETIN NO. 2.

Possibly some florists, including even a few gladiolus growers, are scarcely aware of the existence of the trial grounds of the American Gladiolus Society, at the New York State College of Agriculture, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y. Most members of the trade, perhaps, were fully aware of the establishment of the trial grounds, about half a dozen years ago, but some of them have now forgotten the important event or have only a vague recollection of it. Some of them have, at the most, only a dim and indifferent consciousness of the fact that important experimental work is being conducted at the test grounds, under the direction of the department of horticulture at Cornell.

A series of bulletins now being issued at Cornell will serve as a forcible reminder to these forgetful ones, giving them a distinct realization of what is being accomplished by means of the trial grounds. The publication of "Gladiolus Studies—I," the first number of the series, was recently announced in The Review. The book treated of "the botany, history and evolution of the gladiolus" and was prepared by Prof.

A. C. Beal, who has general management of the experimental work.

The second bulletin, "Gladiolus Studies—II," has now appeared. It discusses "the culture and hybridization of the gladiolus" and was written by Alfred C. Hottes, who has direct charge of the gladiolus trials, under the supervision of Prof. Beal. The data for this second bulletin, says Mr. Hottes, "are based on the results of four years of work in the trial grounds."

Apparently, no statement has been made as to how many bulletins this series of "gladiolus studies" will contain, but the intention seems to be to give the subject rather thorough consideration. In the preface to "Gladiolus Studies—I," Prof. Beal said: "The present bulletin is intended to trace the development of the gladiolus up to the present time. Succeeding bulletins will treat of its culture and of the varieties that have been tested in the gladiolus trial grounds."

GLADIOLUS VIOLET PERFECTION.

A recent issue of The Review contained some remarks about Gladiolus Pink Perfection, with a picture of the flower. The remarks were of what might be called a theologico-horticultural nature, for theology and horticulture mix easily and naturally, like substances that have a chemical affinity, and most florists mix them more or less.

This time the subject is perfection of another color, Violet Perfection. And again there is an opportunity—it is more than an opportunity; it is an irresistible temptation—to draw attention to the wide divergence of opinion on what constitutes perfection. For B. Hammond Tracy, who supplied the photograph here reproduced, says that the color of the flower "verges so closely on a purple as to warrant the name of Violet Perfection, but it cannot be called a true violet." In other words, so far is the hue from being the perfection of violet that it is not violet at all, in Mr. Tracy's opinion.

Yet the mere doubt about the exact shade of color does not prevent Violet Perfection from being what Mr. Tracy says it is, one of the most beautiful and desirable of the more recently introduced varieties. He says it is "by far the finest deep Burgundy red on the market at present." Again he says of it: "It is the pearl of the blue gladioli; a genuine blue-violet; a magnificent novelty. It has large open flowers, with no markings." Probably the variations of the color, in different localities and conditions and at different stages of the development of the flowers, are sufficient to reconcile most of the apparent contradictions in the descriptions.

No Trade Meeting at Chicago.

W. J. Vesey, Jr., president of the American Carnation Society, who issued a call for a trade meeting at Chicago June 19 and 20 to discuss ways and means of offsetting increased costs of growing flowers, has asked that the trade be notified of a postponement. Mr. Vesey states that another notification will be given later, with the national society's sanction.

OPPOSES PLANT EXCLUSION.

At the meeting May 17 of the New Orleans Horticultural Society the following resolution was offered by C. W. Eichling and unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, The American Forestry Association proposes to recommend to the Federal Horticultural Board in Washington to pass a law prohibiting the importation of all plants, bulbs, etc., therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the New Orleans Horticultural Society considers such a law unnecessary and injurious to the florists' business and hereby protests against the enactment of such a law. The secretary of this society is hereby requested to transmit a copy of this resolution to the legislative committee of the Society of American Florists, with the request to oppose the passage of such a law.

SECOND SEASON BULBS POOR.

I have about 500 boxes of narcissus, tulip and daffodil bulbs, which I flowered in boxes indoors. After the blooming period I dumped the bulbs outdoors, just turned the boxes upside down. How should I further treat the bulbs so that they will be fit for use this fall?

C. A. M.—Mich.

If you had any idea of saving the bulbs for a second season, you certainly took an original way to ripen them off prior to harvesting them. It does not pay to attempt to force these bulbs a second season. Some varieties will bloom fairly well a second season if planted outdoors, but where they are cut down close to the soil none of the kinds you name are of value, even for that purpose. You must buy fresh bulbs of tulips, narcissi and hyacinths for forcing each season.

AMERICAN PEONY SOCIETY.

The annual meeting and exhibition of the American Peony Society, originally set for Philadelphia, June 4 and 5, and postponed to June 11 and 12, was again postponed last week, too late for notice to appear. The latest postponement was to June 13 and 14, the exhibition being in conjunction with the June show of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society.

ENCOURAGE THE AMATEUR.

An elaborate example of the private conservatories the wealthier people are wont to build in connection with their homes is that recently constructed for Daniel Good at Buffalo, N. Y. As will be seen by the accompanying illustrations, the conservatory is unique in its shape and in the manner in which it fits into a recess of the residence.

Keeping conservatories of this kind stocked with plants provides an outlet for much florists' stock, as the owners rarely can produce the plants needed. Consequently florists, when they are asked by their well-to-do patrons concerning conservatories, as they frequently are, should encourage their construction.

The conservatory at the Good home fits into a U-shaped opening made by the dining-room on the one side and the main hall and music room on the other. It is thirty feet long and twenty feet wide, with a semicircular bay of a 9-foot radius. The construction is of galvanized steel members, with copper gutters, and the wood is especially selected for its fine grain and susceptibility to finish.

The glass is all  $\frac{5}{8}$ -inch polished plate. Many of the roof lights are bent two ways, each taking a separate template. Special treatment was given the roof glass to make it opaque. Over the whole roof heavy snow guards have been placed.

The interior is done principally in ivory white, to conform with the colonial effect in the dining-room and hall. The latticework on the sides, however, is of the light green that was used for all the finishings of the interior. The floor is of tile and the coping base and fountain are of pink marble.

The dolphin fountain over the rockery, together with the rockery frames, is of terra cotta, a peculiar finish being employed. The rockery is of tufa-stone and is planted with ferns and aquatic plants. The main fountain is of the same stone and is equipped with electric lights arranged to shine through the water. The plant tables are of bronze and copper, all the heating radiators being concealed underneath.

The conservatory is considered one of the finest in Buffalo. It was constructed by the Lord & Burnham Co., through H. E. Bates, of the Rochester, N. Y., office. H. J. H.

WATER LILIES IN BOXES.

I have a cement water basin which I want to convert into a lily pond during the summer. I propose to place the water lilies in boxes, so that the soil will not make the water muddy and so that I can move the boxes and plants at any time. How should I transplant the lilies into the boxes and how should they be treated while in the boxes, so as to keep them growing and flowering? Should they be manured? If so, how? I have tried this before, but with little success. The plants seemed to thrive only for a short while and then began to die. The boxes were about 18x36 inches and sixteen inches in depth, in each of which I planted three or four roots. These boxes I set in the water so that the top edges projected just above the surface. H. H.—Mich.

I am afraid your soil was too poor for the lilies. Use good loam and add one-third as much cow manure, well decayed. Mix this thoroughly. Plant only one lily in the center of each box. Cover the surface of the boxes with a good layer of coarse sand. This will prevent the water from becoming muddy. Submerge the boxes entirely and your plants will do vastly better. C. W.

Scranton, Pa.—George R. Clark notes an increased call for roses in pots. While many patrons are familiar with the names and colors, thanks to the houses that issue catalogues giving such information, Mr. Clark finds that plain, descriptive labels greatly facilitate sales at this busy time. The seed trade is most satisfactory.

THE GLADIOLUS

TIME FOR LATE PLANTINGS.

We are told each year that gladioli are being overdone; that they sold so cheaply in the markets that they were not worth growing and that as a consequence fewer would be grown next year. We have heard this talk so many times now and applied to such a variety of plants that it has become somewhat hackneyed. From reports from seed and bulb houses, we find that the demand for these bulbs has increased this season, in spite of all the semi-hysterical economy talk. It is true, of course, that gladioli during the glut season do bring unprofitable prices. It is equally true that early in the year they will net, under careful culture, as much as any indoor crop we can grow; and, coming to the outdoor crop, if a few more growers would realize that it pays to start a few hundreds in pots in a frame, to plant out later, and to plant a good batch in the open early and a further batch rather late, to avoid the period of glut, they would make more money. But in too many cases retail florists plant their entire stock of gladioli at one operation, which will give the bulk of their spikes when they are most abundant.

This is a reminder that these late gladioli should go in between now and June 20, and that they should be planted five to six inches in depth for the best results. If you have not yet tried the primulinus type of gladioli, you should do so. They are as yet a little high for commercial uses, but they are by far the most decorative of gladioli, and they promise in a few years to surpass in favor the older and larger-flowered varieties.

GLADIOLUS BULLETIN NO. 2.

Possibly some florists, including even a few gladiolus growers, are scarcely aware of the existence of the trial grounds of the American Gladiolus Society, at the New York State College of Agriculture, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y. Most members of the trade, perhaps, were fully aware of the establishment of the trial grounds, about half a dozen years ago, but some of them have now forgotten the important event or have only a vague recollection of it. Some of them have, at the most, only a dim and indifferent consciousness of the fact that important experimental work is being conducted at the test grounds, under the direction of the department of horticulture at Cornell.

A series of bulletins now being issued at Cornell will serve as a forcible reminder to these forgetful ones, giving them a distinct realization of what is being accomplished by means of the trial grounds. The publication of "Gladiolus Studies—I," the first number of the series, was recently announced in The Review. The book treated of "the botany, history and evolution of the gladiolus" and was prepared by Prof.

A. C. Beal, who has general management of the experimental work.

The second bulletin, "Gladiolus Studies—II," has now appeared. It discusses "the culture and hybridization of the gladiolus" and was written by Alfred C. Hottes, who has direct charge of the gladiolus trials, under the supervision of Prof. Beal. The data for this second bulletin, says Mr. Hottes, "are based on the results of four years of work in the trial grounds."

The More There Are of These the More Plants and Flowers Will be Needed.

HAIL'S TOLL IN MARYLAND.*Reisterstown.

The worst hail storm in sixteen years struck the establishment of Charles B. Wright at Reisterstown, Md., at 4 p. m., June 6. Practically all the glass on the north side of his 10,000-foot range was destroyed, while three-quarters of that on the south side was broken or damaged. The growing stock outside also was destroyed.

Mr. Wright's peonies were in full crop and were mowed down by the hail. Large festiva maxima stems were cut off at the ground. Mr. Wright's loss in stock included 9,000 young carnation plants, planted out for fall housing; 8,000 Crocker carnation plants ready for summer blooming; 2,000 Cochet rose plants, gladioli, lilies, Spanish iris, tomato and cabbage plants. The stock in the greenhouses also was badly damaged by hail and broken glass.

The glass on the Wright range was insured with the Florists' Hail Association.

Hagerstown.

Henry A. Bester & Sons advise that the hail storm of June 6 destroyed all their outdoor and indoor plantings and 75,000 square feet of glass. The firm is one of the oldest in Maryland.

STORM AT WEST PLAINS, MO.

A cloudburst, accompanied by a high wind and hail, struck West Plains, Mo., June 8, causing the destruction of growing vegetation, fruit trees and market and private gardens. The Cottage Greenhouse and Ozark Pansy Garden of C. W. Harold suffered considerable damage. Sash frames were broken and stock damaged and a number of fruit trees were blown down. Grain crops in the neighborhood suffered heavily, Mr. Harold reports.

ASKS HELP FOR STORM VICTIM.*J. F. Ammann Makes Appeal.

J. F. Ammann, secretary of the Illinois State Florists' Association, has addressed a letter to the members of the association asking aid for A. D. King, whose greenhouse range and home at Mattoon, Ill., were destroyed by the storm which partially wrecked that city May 26. Mr. King, his wife and a young daughter were hurt, but have recovered.

Mr. Ammann's letter to The Review is as follows:

I am enclosing a copy of a letter received from A. D. King, of Mattoon, whose greenhouses and home were wrecked by a cyclone May 26.

This letter is in answer to one I felt it my duty as secretary of the state association to write Mr. King, he being a member of the association. Now, I feel it is the duty of every member of our association to do something towards raising a fund to help Mr. King out.

I will thank you to publish this letter in your valuable paper with an appeal to the members of the Illinois State Florists' Association to help.

Contributions can be sent either to our treasurer, C. L. Washburn, at Bloomington, Ill., or to myself. All amounts will be duly credited, published and turned over to Mr. King.

Let us for a moment, at least, turn away from the commercial side of our business, be charitable, and follow the teachings of the one Great Master to render service to our fellowman.

The letter of Mr. King, to Secretary Ammann, is as follows:

I was glad to get your letter today, and I surely appreciate your kind offer for my help. I am just able to be about, as I was in the hospital, being hurt in the cyclone.

You cannot realize how badly I am hit. I had fifteen houses, all stocked, had a fine trade and was doing fine. In five minutes I lost all! All my houses are flat! My home is gone! All stock gone! All supplies gone! And myself hurt! I had not even any furniture or clothes left, as the rain ruined all that was left. I enclose a small picture of one side of the greenhouses. I lost $30,000 and if I cannot get some help I cannot rebuild.

If you can help me by sending an appeal to the association, I will surely appreciate it. If I get along all right, so I can attend to business, I can make it a go. I have five children to feed. My wife and one little girl were hurt, but are getting along all right.

I hope you will never have such a terrible storm hit your place. If you do I shall surely help you out.

FLORISTS' HAIL ASSOCIATION.

The directors of the Florists' Hail Association of America held a meeting at Trenton, N. J., Friday, June 8, at which initial action was taken for the extension of the association's corporate existence for another thirty years under the terms of the laws of New Jersey, as passed by the New Jersey legislature last winter.

The directors also approved of and will recommend a new set of by-laws drawn by J. A. Valentine, of Denver, Colo., which improves upon and puts in legal form the by-laws used for the last thirty years.

The proposition of cyclone insurance, submitted by Anders Rasmussen, of New Albany, Ind., was not taken up, for the reason that the law under which the Florists' Hail Association reorganized recognizes only hail as the form of destruction to be insured against. The annual meeting of the association will be held at Newark, N. J., August 20, 1917.

John G. Esler, Sec'y.

FISCHER'S FAMOUS FREESIAS.

The accompanying illustration gives only a poor impression of the quality of the colored freesias raised by Rudolph Fischer, of San Gabriel, Cal. The originator of the famous Purity has never let up in his work of freesia raising, but he and Mrs. Fischer have worked hard and conscientiously along the line of improvement.

After many years' work, Mr. Fischer last year sent out Splendens, a beautiful lavender variety absolutely distinct and true up to type. So far as the writer's information goes, this is the only one that will be put out this year, although he has seen the newer ones.

There is a magnificent clear yellow, as large as Purity and as good in every way; another is pure orange and there is a red. In short, there will be some wonderful varieties to come within the next few years and when the bulbs are available in sufficient quantities they will revolutionize freesia growing.

Mr. Fischer is considering getting a place "somewhere in the east," in order that the flowers can be produced and shown at their best without a journey of four or five days. And they surely will be a surprise to the trade in the east, as all who have seen them in California admit. Mr. and Mrs. Fischer have performed a notable work in horticulture.

CHOOSE NEW HALL AT ST. LOUIS.

The plans for the National Flower Show and S. A. F. convention at St. Louis in March, 1918, which have been blocked, as reported in the Review, by the fact that the Coliseum, the building engaged for the event, is to be demolished, have been readjusted by the National Flower Show committee, so that everything from now on should be plain sailing. The committee, which met at the Jefferson hotel, St. Louis, June 9 and 10, decided to use the Moolah Temple, at 3821 Lindell boulevard, for the convention. A building will be erected on a plot of ground adjoining the Temple, 155x300 feet, and in this building the show will be staged.

The committeemen who attended the meeting were: George Asmus, Chicago, chairman; President R. C. Kerr, of Houston, Tex.; Patrick Welch, of Boston; Secretary Young, of New York; Treasurer J. J. Hess, of Omaha; Adolph Farenwald, of Philadelphia; A. F. J. Baur, of Indianapolis.

PREPARED FOLIAGES.

One of the effects of the war has been to shut off completely the supplies of prepared foliages which formerly came from Germany. Among these articles is the so-called air plant. Another is adiantum fronds and there are several other less widely used articles. It is a curious fact that little of the raw material used for these supply house specialties originates in Germany. The Germans have imported the dried natural article and dyed it. It is just another illustration of the German efficiency in the matter of chemicals and dyes. The air plant is a Japanese specialty. The adiantum fronds come from Australia. To maintain the supply in the United States American florists' supply dealers are learning to prepare and dye the raw material, the work the Germans formerly did, and, incidentally, pocketing the Germans' profits, which seem to have been large. The difficulties seem principally in the matter of obtaining the right kind of dye.

FORMULA WANTED.

A reader asks for the formula and directions for using brown sugar and Paris green as an insecticide. The Review seems to have no record of it. Will someone supply the information?

Lansing, Mich.—Wm. Krieger has cleaned up on bedding stock and considers the year satisfactory. Cemetery trade this season was ahead of the best previous record.

Sweet Peas

HOW THEY BLOOM AT LOMPOC.

Mrs. Skach's Winter Sweet Peas.

If you grow sweet peas to any considerable extent, you have already formed a pleasing acquaintance, probably, with the light pink variety known as Mrs. A. A. Skach. The purpose here is to introduce you, not to the flower, but to the lady after whom the flower is named. You see her—in the photograph, for the pictorial sort of introduction must suffice—you see her as she is engaged in picking some of the sweet peas that cluster around a bay window on the front of her residence at Lompoc, Cal.

As is proper for a person who has a namesake in the list of sweet peas, she is an ardent lover of these flowers and an enthusiastic amateur grower of them. She is not only enthusiastic, but successful, as is testified by her neighbor, A. C. Zvolanek, who surely is well qualified to pass judgment on such a matter. Mr. Zvolanek describes the methods that she followed in growing the 15-foot row of sweet peas which enclosed the bay window, and he also gives a statement of the number of blooms picked. The figures, he says, though they may seem startling, are compiled from carefully kept records.

The Culture and the Crop.

The soil where the peas grew, says Mr. Zvolanek, is a deep sediment. Along the 15-foot semicircle, one wheelbarrow load of short cow manure was spaded in to a depth of fifteen inches. The soil was then thoroughly tramped down and soaked. Six days later, September 2, the surface was well raked and the seed was planted, with two inches of a covering. About thirty seeds—one-fourth of a packet of the Zvolanek winter-orchid-flowering Gold Medal mixture—were used. After sowing, no watering was done until the plants were about four inches high, when they were thinned out to twelve single plants, about fifteen inches apart.

The first flowers were picked November 20, when the plants were three and one-half feet high. At that date, and at each succeeding interval of four weeks, a good soaking of cow manure water was given. The flowers were sold locally or donated to various societies. The record, says Mr. Zvolanek, was as follows: November, 400 flowers; December, 950; January, 2,650; February, 3,360; March, 5,250; April, 4,780; total to May 1, from the twelve plants, 17,390.

Six Months of Bloom.

The photograph was taken late in February. About the middle of May the plants were over twelve feet high and were still covered with a mass of good, though short-stemmed, flowers.

During the winter there were many frosty nights, with a temperature, on two occasions, of 25 degrees. But, though some of the flowers were frozen, the plants themselves suffered no apparent harm.

The twelve plants which formed the 15-foot row, says Mr. Zvolanek, were: Two plants of Mrs. A. A. Skach, two Zvolanek's Red, one Miss L. Gude, one Orange Orchid, one Black Lady, one White Orchid, one Zvolanek's Blue, one Mrs. Charles Zvolanek and one Mrs. Paul Dusha. That reckoning, however, seems to leave one plant unidentified.

Speaking of the length of the blooming season of his winter orchid sweet peas, Mr. Zvolanek says: "If sown in localities where hard freezing prevails, just before the winter sets in or as early as possible in the spring, they will bloom from the middle of May. If sown as late as July, they will bloom in September and continue until frost kills them. In semitropical regions, like California, southern Texas and Florida, if sown in September they will bloom the whole winter."

MAYWOOD, ILL.

A Profitable Season.

For the Maywood growers, whose output all is sold by commission houses in Chicago, the season of 1916-17 has been one of the most successful on record. It has not been without its embarrassments, especially in the matter of obtaining fuel and labor, but the increased costs of doing business have not destroyed the satisfaction with which the season is reviewed, nor have they impaired confidence in the future.

One difference from a year ago is noted, however: At this time last year all the growers were hard at work on improvements—new houses, new boilers, larger chimneys, new pumps and reservoirs, or planting new varieties. This year the disposition is to sit tight, to do only necessary work and, because of the scarcity of help, to replant as few roses as possible. Today the Maywood rose growers are practically all set for next season.

A. F. Amling Co.

The oldest and largest grower in Maywood, the A. F. Amling Co., replanted the last house last week. The place is all in roses—240,000 plants. All the Russell were carried over and several additional houses planted with this popular rose, which is said to have been the most profitable variety on the place this season in spite of the fact that a large part of the stock was young plants and with Russell one must take time to grow a big, robust plant before the variety can be expected to show its real worth. Two houses have been planted to Shawyer, a variety not heretofore grown, and one to Evelyn Nesbit, a corsage rose that impressed Otto Amling on a trip east. The stock was obtained from A. N. Pierson, Inc. To obtain the space, Ward was discarded, as the least profitable rose on the list; Killarney Brilliant was cut down, as already having become a back number, and White Killarney was cut down, as in less demand than colored vari-

HAIL'S TOLL IN MARYLAND.*Reisterstown.

Practically all the glass on the north side of his 10,000-foot range was destroyed, while three-quarters of that on the south side was broken or damaged. The growing stock outside also was destroyed.

Mr. Wright's peonies were in full crop and were mowed down by the hail. Large festiva maxima stems were cut off at the ground. Mr. Wright's loss in stock included 9,000 young carnation plants, planted out for fall housing; 8,000 Crocker carnation plants ready for summer blooming; 2,000 Cochet rose plants, gladioli, lilies, Spanish iris, tomato and cabbage plants. The stock in the greenhouses also was badly damaged by hail and broken glass.

The glass on the Wright range was insured with the Florists' Hail Association.

Hagerstown.

Henry A. Bester & Sons advise that the hail storm of June 6 destroyed all their outdoor and indoor plantings and 75,000 square feet of glass. The firm is one of the oldest in Maryland.

STORM AT WEST PLAINS, MO.

A cloudburst, accompanied by a high wind and hail, struck West Plains, Mo., June 8, causing the destruction of growing vegetation, fruit trees and market and private gardens. The Cottage Greenhouse and Ozark Pansy Garden of C. W. Harold suffered considerable damage. Sash frames were broken and stock damaged and a number of fruit trees were blown down. Grain crops in the neighborhood suffered heavily, Mr. Harold reports.

ASKS HELP FOR STORM VICTIM.*J. F. Ammann Makes Appeal.

J. F. Ammann, secretary of the Illinois State Florists' Association, has addressed a letter to the members of the association asking aid for A. D. King, whose greenhouse range and home at Mattoon, Ill., were destroyed by the storm which partially wrecked that city May 26. Mr. King, his wife and a young daughter were hurt, but have recovered.

Mr. Ammann's letter to The Review is as follows:

I am enclosing a copy of a letter received from A. D. King, of Mattoon, whose greenhouses and home were wrecked by a cyclone May 26.

This letter is in answer to one I felt it my duty as secretary of the state association to write Mr. King, he being a member of the association. Now, I feel it is the duty of every member of our association to do something towards raising a fund to help Mr. King out.

I will thank you to publish this letter in your valuable paper with an appeal to the members of the Illinois State Florists' Association to help.

Contributions can be sent either to our treasurer, C. L. Washburn, at Bloomington, Ill., or to myself. All amounts will be duly credited, published and turned over to Mr. King.

Let us for a moment, at least, turn away from the commercial side of our business, be charitable, and follow the teachings of the one Great Master to render service to our fellowman.

The letter of Mr. King, to Secretary Ammann, is as follows:

I was glad to get your letter today, and I surely appreciate your kind offer for my help. I am just able to be about, as I was in the hospital, being hurt in the cyclone.

You cannot realize how badly I am hit. I had fifteen houses, all stocked, had a fine trade and was doing fine. In five minutes I lost all! All my houses are flat! My home is gone! All stock gone! All supplies gone! And myself hurt! I had not even any furniture or clothes left, as the rain ruined all that was left. I enclose a small picture of one side of the greenhouses. I lost $30,000 and if I cannot get some help I cannot rebuild.

If you can help me by sending an appeal to the association, I will surely appreciate it. If I get along all right, so I can attend to business, I can make it a go. I have five children to feed. My wife and one little girl were hurt, but are getting along all right.

I hope you will never have such a terrible storm hit your place. If you do I shall surely help you out.

FLORISTS' HAIL ASSOCIATION.

The directors of the Florists' Hail Association of America held a meeting at Trenton, N. J., Friday, June 8, at which initial action was taken for the extension of the association's corporate existence for another thirty years under the terms of the laws of New Jersey, as passed by the New Jersey legislature last winter.

The directors also approved of and will recommend a new set of by-laws drawn by J. A. Valentine, of Denver, Colo., which improves upon and puts in legal form the by-laws used for the last thirty years.

The proposition of cyclone insurance, submitted by Anders Rasmussen, of New Albany, Ind., was not taken up, for the reason that the law under which the Florists' Hail Association reorganized recognizes only hail as the form of destruction to be insured against. The annual meeting of the association will be held at Newark, N. J., August 20, 1917.

John G. Esler, Sec'y.

FISCHER'S FAMOUS FREESIAS.

The accompanying illustration gives only a poor impression of the quality of the colored freesias raised by Rudolph Fischer, of San Gabriel, Cal. The originator of the famous Purity has never let up in his work of freesia raising, but he and Mrs. Fischer have worked hard and conscientiously along the line of improvement.

After many years' work, Mr. Fischer last year sent out Splendens, a beautiful lavender variety absolutely distinct and tried up to type. So far as the writer's information goes, this is the only one that will be put out this year, although he has seen the newer ones.

There is a magnificent clear yellow as large as Purity and as good in every way; another is pure orange and there is a red. In short, there will be some wonderful varieties to come within the next few years and when the bulbs are available in sufficient quantities will revolutionize freesia growing.

Mr. Fischer is considering getting a place "somewhere in the east," in order that the flowers can be produced and shown at their best without a delay of four or five days. And it surely will be a surprise to the trade in the east, as all who have seen them in California admit. Mr. and Mrs. Fischer have performed a notable work in horticulture.

CHOOSE NEW HALL AT ST. LOUIS.

The plans for the National Flower Show and S. A. F. convention at St. Louis in March, 1918, which have been blocked, as reported in the Review, the fact that the Coliseum, the building engaged for the event, is to be demolished, have been readjusted by the National Flower Show committee, so that everything from now on should be plain sailing. The committee, which met at the Jefferson hotel, St. Louis, June 9 and 10, decided to use the Moolah Temple, at 3821 Lindell boulevard, for the convention. A building will be erected on a plot of ground adjoining the Temple, 155x300 feet, and in this building the show will be staged.

The committeemen who attended the meeting were: George Asmus, Chicago, chairman; President R. C. Kerr, Houston, Tex.; Patrick Welch, of Boston; Secretary Young, of New York; Treasurer J. J. Hess, of Omaha; Adolph Farenwald, of Philadelphia; A. F. Baur, of Indianapolis.

PREPARED FOLIAGES.

One of the effects of the war has been to shut off completely the supply of prepared foliages which formerly came from Germany. Among these articles is the so called air plant. Another is adiantum fronds and there are several other less widely used articles. It is a curious fact that little of the raw material used for these supply house specialties originates in Germany. The Germans have imported the dried natural article and dyed it. It is just another illustration of the German efficiency in the matter of chemicals and dyes. The air plant is a Japanese specialty. The adiantum fronds come from Australia. To maintain the supply in the United States American florists' supply dealers are learning to prepare and dye the raw material, the work the Germans formerly did, and, incidentally, pocketing the Germans' profits, which seem to have been large. The difficulties seem principally in the matter of obtaining the right kind of dye.

FORMULA WANTED.

A reader asks for the formula and directions for using brown sugar and Paris green as an insecticide. The Review seems to have no record of it. Will someone supply the information?

Lansing, Mich.—Wm. Krieger has cleaned up on bedding stock and considers the year satisfactory. Cemetery trade this season was ahead of the best previous record.

HOW THEY BLOOM AT LOMPOC.

Mrs. Skach's Winter Sweet Peas.

If you grow sweet peas to any considerable extent, you have already formed a pleasing acquaintance, probably, with the light pink variety known as Mrs. A. A. Skach. The purpose here is to introduce you, not to the flower, but to the lady after whom the flower is named. You see her—in the photograph, for the pictorial sort of introduction must suffice—you see her as she is engaged in picking some of the sweet peas that cluster around a bay window on the front of her residence at Lompoc, Cal.

As is proper for a person who has a namesake in the list of sweet peas, she is an ardent lover of these flowers and an enthusiastic amateur grower of them. She is not only enthusiastic, but successful, as is testified by her neighbor, A. C. Zvolanek, who surely is well qualified to pass judgment on such a matter. Mr. Zvolanek describes the methods that she followed in growing the 15-foot row of sweet peas which enclosed the bay window, and he also gives a statement of the number of blooms picked. The figures, he says, though they may seem startling, are compiled from carefully kept records.

The Culture and the Crop.

The soil where the peas grew, says Mr. Zvolanek, is a deep sediment. Along the 15-foot semicircle, one wheelbarrow load of short cow manure was spaded in to a depth of fifteen inches. The soil was then thoroughly tramped down and soaked. Six days later, September 2, the surface was well raked and the seed was planted, with two inches of a covering. About thirty seeds—one-fourth of a packet of the Zvolanek winter-orchid-flowering Gold Medal mixture—were used. After sowing, no watering was done until the plants were about four inches high, when they were thinned out to twelve single plants, about fifteen inches apart.

The first flowers were picked November 20, when the plants were three and one-half feet high. At that date, and at each succeeding interval of four weeks, a good soaking of cow manure water was given. The flowers were sold locally or donated to various societies. The record, says Mr. Zvolanek, was as follows: November, 400 flowers; December, 950; January, 2,650; February, 3,360; March, 5,250; April, 4,780; total to May 1, from the twelve plants, 17,390.

Six Months of Bloom.

The photograph was taken late in February. About the middle of May the plants were over twelve feet high and were still covered with a mass of good, though short-stemmed, flowers.

During the winter there were many frosty nights, with a temperature, on two occasions, of 25 degrees. But, though some of the flowers were frozen, the plants themselves suffered no apparent harm.

The twelve plants which formed the 15-foot row, says Mr. Zvolanek, were: Two plants of Mrs. A. A. Skach, two Zvolanek's Red, one Miss L. Gude, one Orange Orchid, one Black Lady, one White Orchid, one Zvolanek's Blue, one Mrs. Charles Zvolanek and one Mrs. Paul Dusha. That reckoning, however, seems to leave one plant unidentified.

Speaking of the length of the blooming season of his winter orchid sweet peas, Mr. Zvolanek says: "If sown in localities where hard freezing prevails, just before the winter sets in or as early as possible in the spring, they will bloom from the middle of May. If sown as late as July, they will bloom in September and continue until frost kills them. In semitropical regions, like California, southern Texas and Florida, if sown in September they will bloom the whole winter."

MAYWOOD, ILL.

A Profitable Season.

For the Maywood growers, whose output all is sold by commission houses

in Chicago, the season of 1916-17 has been one of the most successful on record. It has not been without its embarrassments, especially in the matter of obtaining fuel and labor, but the increased costs of doing business have not destroyed the satisfaction with which the season is reviewed, nor have they impaired confidence in the future.

One difference from a year ago is noted, however: At this time last year all the growers were hard at work on improvements—new houses, new boilers, larger chimneys, new pumps and reservoirs, or planting new varieties. This year the disposition is to sit tight, to do only necessary work and, because of the scarcity of help, to replant as few roses as possible. Today the Maywood rose growers are practically all set for next season.

A. F. Ameling Co.

The oldest and largest grower in Maywood, the A. F. Ameling Co., replanted the last house last week. The place is all in roses—210,000 plants. All the Russell were carried over and several additional houses planted with this popular rose, which is said to have been the most profitable variety on the place this season in spite of the fact that a large part of the stock was young plants and with Russell one must take time to grow a big, robust plant before the variety can be expected to show its real worth. Two houses have been planted to Sawyer, a variety not heretofore grown, and one to Evelyn Nesbit, a corsage rose that impressed Otto Ameling on a trip east. The stock was obtained from A. N. Pierson, Inc. To obtain the space, Ward was discarded, as the least profitable rose on the list; Killarney Brilliant was cut down, as already having become a back number, and White Killarney was cut down, as in less demand than colored varieties—the list this year shows only about twenty-five per cent white.

By way of testing the possibilities and "doing one's bit," a bench was planted with tomatoes about Easter. They are loaded with fruit and picking will begin within a week.

Since the completion last summer of the big new service building between the older houses and the big new range erected by the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., the entire place has been heated from this central plant with its battery of four high-pressure steam boilers of Kroeschell manufacture. Three old boilers are now being torn out from an abandoned pit, after which the excavation will be made into a reservoir. Otto Amling comments on the constantly increasing quantity of water used. Four great electric pumps are not enough and others will be installed. The Amlings are forehanded and the steadily rising price of fertilizers has prompted the storing of three cars of blood and bone.

Albert F. Amling, Otto Amling and their wives left June 9 for an automobile trip to Green Bay, Wis., where Mrs. Otto Amling has relatives.

Four of Albert F. Amling's sons registered June 5 for the draft.

W. H. Amling.

William H. Amling, who is president of the Chicago Florists' Club, has been ill all winter with anemia and takes only a supervisory part in the greenhouse work, although much improved. His son, Herbert, is in charge, handling the mums and winter peas, while the youngest son, Martin, handles the carnations and spring peas. W. H. Amling says it has not been an especially good season for peas, the pick falling about ten per cent below that of last year, because of weather conditions, while the price also has been down about ten per cent. He hopes, however, to see the record improved by the crops of the next few weeks, the light pick of spring peas in May and thus far in June indicating a heavy crop following a few days of bright, warm weather. Already mums have been planted in part of the space of the winter Spencers and 40,000 will be on the benches so soon as the last of the seed now ripening is harvested. W. H. Amling grows his sweet peas on raised benches.

Three of William H. Amling's sons registered for the draft.

Walter Amling.

It will be news to most of the trade that Maywood has still another independent grower of the Amling name. Walter Amling, eldest son of W. H. Amling, married last autumn and bought his father's detached rose range, including a residence and several acres of land. He had previously been in charge of these five houses and had proved his competence as a grower, but he has done even better in his first season for his own account. He has completed his replanting, replacing two houses of Killarney with Ophelia, Poehlmann stock. The three houses carried over are Killarney and White Killarney. The place is in good shape, with a new Kroeschell boiler and a new tall brick stack one year used, and Mr. Amling has made a good start toward paying for it. He should prosper.

Ernst C. Amling.

Ernst Amling, the eldest son of Albert, is as comfortably situated as any grower in the section. He was among the first to take up Russell and Ophelia and for two years these are the only varieties he has grown. He has had just enough black spot to keep him interested, and the coal bill has been just big enough to make maximum returns an object. It is said that in his home the motto is, "Let us be thankful," and in the greenhouses, "Let well enough alone."

Henry Wehrman.

Henry Wehrman's place is not large, but he works diligently and intelligently, so that when he goes to town, or elsewhere, it is in a new twin-six Packard, the classiest car in the colony. Mr. Wehrman grows sweet peas in solid beds, with mums as a catch crop, and a few carnations that are jettisoned when it is time to plant the spring peas. One house of mums already has been planted.

Weiss & Meyer Co.

Beauties have been the specialty of the Weiss & Meyer Co., 35,000 plants, six big houses of them, but after repeated trials the same conclusion as elsewhere has been arrived at—that Beauties can no longer be grown as profitably as other roses. Consequently, three houses of Beauties have been thrown out and the space given to Hoosier Beauty, Russell and Ophelia, one house of each. There still are three houses of Beauties, but they will go next year if they do not hold up their end with the new arrivals this season.

After having bought the glass for another house, the management has thought better of it and has decided to postpone building.

June 6 the Maywood growers knocked off for a couple of days' fishing, going by automobile to Lake Marie. In the party were Ernst C. Amling, Paul Weiss, Walter Burhop, Hugo Luedtke, Henry Wehrman, William Collatz, Paul Amling and Walter Amling. At the lake they were joined for a day by another party, including E. C. Amling, H. N. Bruns, H. C. Wendland and John Michelsen.

THE CLUBS ARE BUSY

NEW YORK.

Club Cancels Convention Frolic.

The New York Florists' Club, at its meeting June 11, decided to cancel the arrangements for an outing to occupy the fourth day of the S. A. F. convention in August. This action was taken after plans had been made for raising a large fund for entertainment purposes and was in deference to the opinion of conservative members, who felt that the times make such an affair unseemly, however unexceptionable it might be when the nation is not at war.

A warm discussion, lasting over an hour and of intense interest, resulted in the elimination of the club's proposed entertainment feature, the bowling contests, the souvenir program, the Hotel Biltmore selection for the president's reception in favor of the Grand Central Palace, the boat trip to Coney Island and the banquet. The suggestion of the committee for the entertainment of the ladies was adopted, and expenses authorized also by the hotel, reception and decorating committees. Mr. O'Mara moved that all legitimate expenses be borne by the club and made a strong address in favor of the club's ultimate decisions. The principal speakers, pro and con, were F. R. Pierson, P. O'Mara, W. A. Manda, W. H. Siebrecht, Jr., Wallace R. Pierson, C. H. Totty, A. L. Miller, F. H. Traendly, Chas. Schenck, and Messrs. Tuthill, Weston, Esler, Irwin, Kenney, Scott, Smith, Holt, Guttman, Vick, Rigby, Kessler, Schloss and Stewart. Mr. Esler finally moved the discharge of the finance committee and the conflagration of the list of subscriptions, amounting, Chairman Pierson said, to "well over $2,000," of an anticipated $10,000. The importance of this decision cannot be overestimated, according to Chairman F. R. Pierson, who said: "It will affect the future of the S. A. F. to its advantage in every way. Now the society will get down to hard work. Serious questions demand earnest consideration, and I am glad the New York Florists' Club has had the moral courage to act."

Miscellaneous Business.

The following gentlemen, proposed at the May meeting, were elected to membership: S. Kahn, New Springville, S. I.; John Featherstone, Tarrytown, N. Y.; D. J. Pappas, Fred. Bergman, Eric Otto, Reo M. Guido, New York.

Votes of thanks were awarded the exhibits of the evening. These were a pot of Nierembergia gracilis, from P. W. Popp, of Mamaroneck, and a fine display of German irises by the Garden Magazine.

The by-laws were suspended and the trustees empowered to invest $5,000 of the club's funds in Liberty bonds. Also, on motion of Emil Schloss, it was unanimously voted that $1,000 of the club's funds be donated to the Red Cross.

Resolutions on the deaths of Messrs. Bogert and Weeber were read, and the secretary was instructed to send copies to the bereaved families.

Announcement was made of the death of Miss Maynard, of Great Neck, daughter of W. E. Maynard, and a committee was appointed to draw up resolutions of sympathy.

Mr. Thilow's Lecture.

The lecture by J. Otto Thilow, of Philadelphia, on "Life and Flora of Hawaii," illustrated by original stereopticon views, proved of great interest and a rising vote of thanks was enthusiastically tendered the eloquent speaker.

Visitors at the meeting were E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., and Samuel Murray, of Kansas City, brought east by a special session of Hail Association directors.

Contrary to the usual custom of the club to cancel the July and August meetings, it was decided to have a regular session of the club July 9.

J. Austin Shaw.

CHICAGO.

The regular meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club was held at the Briggs House, June 7, 1917. Frank Felke, Gross Point, Ill.; A. G. Humiston, of the Chicago Feed & Fertilizer Co., and H. V. Swenson, the publicity specialist, were elected to membership. E. Eisner, of Schiller's, made application.

George Asmus, chairman of the good-of-the-club committee, suggested that in view of the present agitation against all expenditures for pleasures, the matter of the club picnic be laid on the table until next meeting, when times might be more propitious for such an outing. After some discussion it was decided to follow Mr. Asmus' suggestion. The transportation committee submitted its report on transportation to the S. A. F. convention. Upon recommendation of the committee it was decided that members go by way of the New York Central, straight to New York city, any stop-overs, if desired, to be arranged by members individually for the return trip.

Fred Lautenschlager, chairman of the garden movement committee, reported that as the garden bureau had discontinued its work it would be impossible for his committee to do anything with the proposition. He suggested that florists dispose of such stock as they might have through the regular sales channels.

Hilmer V. Swenson spoke on the co-operative advertising plan he is working on. This plan is to get subscriptions from growers, wholesalers and retailers for daily newspaper advertisements of the flowers. This work was endorsed by the club and $50 for each of three ads to be run in this manner was subscribed.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

The judges at the annual inspection of the National Rose Test Garden at Arlington Farm, Va., June 4, noted the following roses as worthy of special mention:

Teas and hybrid teas: Laurent Carle, Gruss an Teplitz, Lieutenant Chaure; Mary, Countess of Ilchester; Mme. Paul Euler, Dorothy Page Roberts, Mme. Jules Gravereaux, Lady Ursula, La Tosca, Mrs. Wakefield Christie-Miller, Lady Ashtown, Gustav Grunerwald, Countess of Gosford, Konigin Carola.

Dwarf polyanthas: Catherine Zeimet, Baby Tausendschon, Ellen Poulsen, Mrs. Wm. H. Cutbush, Baby Dorothy, Triomphe Orleanaise.

Climbers: Countess M. H. Chotek and Bess Lovett. F. L. Mulford.

TO ASSIST RETAILERS.

A. Lange is the leader of the florists' section of a new organization of the general retail merchants of Chicago, which heretofore has had no association comparable to the ones that look after retailers' interests in many other cities.

"In unity there is strength!" The organization of each of the many associations which are founded each year bears testimony to the firmness with which the modern business man believes in this adage. That best results can be obtained by co-operative action seems

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE—AND WHY

J. W. LUDWIG.

IN Pittsburgh the name of Ludwig is as closely associated with flowers as is the name of Carnegie with steel. J. W. Ludwig, the oldest of the four Ludwig brothers, has been a member of the trade in that city for forty years. He is now vice-president of the Ludwig Floral Co., which owns a retail store in Pittsburgh and a range of greenhouses at Castle Shannon, a suburb. It was in 1877 that Mr. Ludwig entered the flower and seed business with Joseph Richter under the firm name of Ludwig & Richter. Later this firm was dissolved and Mr. Ludwig and his brother Gustav formed a partnership, doing business in Allegheny market. When the Ludwig company was incorporated five years ago, Mr. Ludwig became its vice-president. He is the vice-president of the S. A. F. for western Pennsylvania and is a charter member of the Pittsburgh Florists' and Gardeners' Club.

so evident to us of this day that we wonder how our forefathers could have held different opinions. And so one by one the remaining unorganized units are falling into line to reap the benefits which accrue from concerted action.

Among the most recent organizations is that of the retail merchants of Chicago, to be known as the Chicago Retailers' Association, corporation papers to which have just been issued. Offices are at Room 400, 140 North Dearborn street. Officers are as follows: President, F. W. Hardecastle, of Maurice L. Rothschild; vice-president, Charles Sommers, of Klee Bros. & Co.; secretary, M. A. H. Turner, of F. E. Foster & Co.; treasurer, H. J. Fiddelke, of Lyon & Healy; assistant treasurer, E. C. Krieger, of the National City Bank of Chicago.

The purpose of the association is to get the retail merchants of Chicago into an organization by means of which they can work for their own best interests, investigate such things as may be deterrents to better business and bring forth anything which will make for greater efficiency and improved service. It is intended to accomplish this through the means of six bureaus, as follows: Collections and credit information, legislation and rates, employment; vigilance, for the prosecution of offenders of any nature; selling and sales, publicity and advertising. A board of governors will be established and any definite trade having five or more members in the association will be entitled to a representative on this board.

It is believed that this association will fill a long felt need of Chicago's retailers. Retail florists in Chicago are invited to investigate.

Burlington, Vt. — August Gebiecke says the combination of a late season and shortage of help will keep him hustling to carry out his planting contracts.

PROFIT IN PRIMULAS

ONE OF TRADE'S BEST ITEMS.

When Properly Grown.

Primroses have become in recent years an important source of revenue to retailers, many of whom use several thousands each year. The Chinese primroses are still a staple article and may be more so this season, as the supply of the German strains of the obconica type will be extremely short, owing to the lack of seed from German sources. P. malacoides increases in popularity each year, as the cultivation becomes better known.

There are few plants that return so large a profit, considering the few months required to grow them if plants are purchased. If they are grown from seed, the profit is still greater. A few hints as to their cultivation may be welcome, especially to those who are new in the trade.

Culture of Primula Chinensis.

The Chinese primrose, Primula chinensis fimbriata grandiflora, should be grown as cool as possible in summer. In the house in winter a temperature of 50 degrees or even somewhat lower will develop flowers of greatest size and bring out the colors to best advantage. We grow our Chinese primroses during the summer in open frames, with a lath shading several feet above them. In such conditions they get the right dark green hue in the foliage, and, if given plenty of room, they shape themselves perfectly. The Chinese sorts love a rich, loamy, porous soil, with plenty of drainage. If specimens are wanted, planting out in a frame is the right plan. They lift easily.

While the grandiflora strain of Chinese primulas is the one mostly used, it will pay to grow a few of the gigantea forms, which have large foliage and flowers. For a critical trade a few of the named varieties also are desirable. For February blooming the stellata sorts, with their smaller flowers, are to be recommended.

Primula Obconica.

The obconica primrose, Primula obconica grandiflora, takes the lead of all. Enormous quantities are handled every season, and the sales are ever on the increase. Like all primroses, it likes moisture, and outside plants may be syringed several times a day in bright weather without injury to the foliage. We grow ours also under lath shades and sometimes in a pit, where they are shaded with boards about two inches apart. This heavier shade seems to be ideal for them. Use the same compost as for the Chinese varieties, but avoid leaf-mold, as this seems to produce yellow edges on the leaves. Later, as they grow larger, the soil should be heavier, and it should be extra heavy, with good drainage, for the last transplanting before they go into the house. Obconicas also want some shade in winter. According to our experience, they do not like bright light at any time. They may easily be had in bloom for Thanksgiving. They require a temperature of 55 to 60 degrees.

Do not be in a hurry to sell your plants when they have one or two flower stems; wait till they have at least six or more, and do not be afraid that the first flowers will not last, as they stay on for weeks in good condition. A plant with twelve or more flower stems and good foliage will sell at any time and return more cash than the best carnations will bring from the same space in the whole season. We have seen florists who had no trouble to retail them for $1 each, and a wholesale price of 50 cents is nothing unusual. Imagine that, for a plant that occupies house room for only a few months!

Grandiflora or Gigantea?

We are often asked which is the better, the grandiflora or the gigantea type of obconicas. In our judgment, there is no preference. While the giganteas generally have larger flowers, there are some varieties among the grandifloras, especially Appleblossom and P. rosea splendens, which are just as large as the largest of the gigantea type. It must not be forgotten that Primula obconica grandiflora and P. obconica gigantea are two distinct plants. Many seem to be under the impression that gigantea is simply a sport or an improvement of grandiflora, but this is wrong. Gigantea is a cross of P. obconica grandiflora and P. megaseæfolia.

The grandifloras are far more floriferous than the giganteas and not nearly so particular as to treatment, and there is a greater variety of colors among them. Especially pleasing are those of the crispa type, with their waved and curled petals, and also the oculatas, with dark eyes. The giganteas all have large flowers and heavy foliage, and while some prefer them, others do not. We were fortunate enough last year to reserve our own seed-bearers, or we would be without any obconicas this season.

Malacoides and Kewensis.

The malacoides primroses like the same treatment as the obconicas, but they die off now and then. Various methods of checking this trouble are recommended, but we have not found any of these methods invariably successful. At some establishments I have seen the plants in positions to which I would not relegate the most worthless stock, and yet they were fine, full of health and bloom. Other growers give them the best place they have and still they die.

Specimen malacoides plants are a beautiful sight, and small plants from 3-inch pots are almost indispensable for basket work. The range of colors was till lately restricted to lavender shades, but now a clear, deep pink and a white have appeared, and also a grandiflora type in lavender, pink and white. The pink here is a bright Enchantress shade, and the improved white is much purer than the white of the type. They can be had in bloom at almost any time. Seedlings will start to flower when hardly three months old.

Primula kewensis will not bloom till February. Its deep, clear yellow flowers make it highly desirable, but it does not seem to take the popular fancy and is most likely one of those plants which will be forgotten for a time and revived in the more distant future, when it will take the place it fully deserves.

The primrose family is exceedingly large, but the hardy ones, with the exception of Sim's hybrid Polyanthas, are of little interest to the florist in winter.

J. L. Schiller.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Hardy Larkspurs.

No country florist with any space for outdoor plants can afford to be without a liberal batch of hardy larkspurs. There is no need of buying plants of named varieties in order to secure a choice strain, for by buying seed of named sorts, or even mixtures, from a reliable firm, magnificent varieties may be had. If you have overlooked these majestic plants, secure and sow a liberal packet or two of seeds now in a cold-frame. Transplant them when they are big enough to handle and set them out in nursery rows later, selecting, if possible, a cool, moist day for the work.

These seedlings will be quite strong before fall and many will flower. It is necessary to keep them a year or two, however, in order to have tall, noble spikes, such as are seen on older and well established clumps. There are many varieties of hardy larkspurs, but, while all are beautiful, I think that if I were restricted to one I would select Delphinium Belladonna, of which seed is now purchasable, the seedlings coming perfectly true to type. One should stock up on these larkspurs; they are easy of culture and there is nothing finer in the whole family of hardy herbaceous plants.

Aquilegias, or Columbines.

How beautiful and graceful are the hardy columbines! In all the families of hardy herbaceous perennials I doubt if there is a more charming family than the columbines. They are not only attractive in a mixed border or rockery, but arrange delightfully in vases. The old-fashioned double and drooping-flowered types are a little the hardest and most long-lived, but the long-spurred varieties, like cærulea, Skinneri, chrysanth, Haylodgensis and glandulosa, with a wide range of colors, make the finest garden plants. Of these chrysanth and its hybrids prove the hardiest. Some of the other long-spurred varieties are better if treated as biennials rather than as true perennials. Spring-sown seed gives the best plants for fall planting, but there still is ample time to make a sowing of this most satisfactory and attractive hardy border plant.

Digitalis, or Foxgloves.

Where strong flowering plants are wanted of digitalis, or foxgloves, the present is a suitable time to make a liberal sowing of seeds. Sow the seeds in a coldframe, cover them lightly, water them carefully and shade until they have germinated. Careful watering in the early stages of growth is necessary, as the little seedlings damp off easily. Good varieties of foxgloves to sow are Ivory's Spotted and gloxiniæflora. While foxgloves are usually treated as biennials, they are much finer if carried over a third season, when they make big, handsome clumps.

BALTIMORE.

John Cook, Veteran Rosarian.

[This is the first installment of Tate's story of the life and achievements of John Cook, of Baltimore, famous as a producer of new varieties of roses. The second will appear in an early issue.]

My long delayed visit to our friend John Cook has been made, for Saturday I spent a mighty pleasant afternoon with him. Now, this is the first time I had seen him in almost twenty years. He is now 84 years of age, yet I found him hale and hearty and able to superintend his fine place. Although the greater part of the management falls to his two sons, he is a mighty good man to have about in an advisory capacity.

Born in Germany.

But here I am running ahead of my story. Let us begin at the beginning of the life of the man who has done as much to put Baltimore on the map as any other son she may have. For wherever Radianee, My Maryland, Francis Scott Key and Baltimore, itself, are grown, and there is no corner of the United States or Canada where they are not, any one of these varieties suggests the metropolis of the south.

It was in the little town of Freiburg, on the Rhine, that John Cook first saw the light of day in 1833. At the age of 14 his education (that is, the part he acquired in school, for he told me Saturday that it is still going on) came to an end and he started to learn the florists' business. Now, instead of being paid for his labors, he was obliged to pay for the opportunity to learn the trade. So after serving his three years he spent three years in the nursery business. This brought him to the age where he was eligible for compulsory military duty and so, like many more of his countrymen, he turned his back on the land that had given him birth to begin a new life in a new land.

His First Baltimore Position.

It was in 1853 that this German boy, 20 years of age, with no assets but a rugged constitution and a thorough knowledge of the florists' and nursery business, landed in New York and secured a position with David Clark, of that city, with whom he stayed about a year.

Then he drifted to Baltimore. Now, in those days Robert J. Halliday's establishment on Pennsylvania avenue was a sort of training school for young gardeners coming to this country. So it was natural that John Cook, in our city without work and with only a poor command of the language, should find in this old Scotchman a friend. As we talked over the past and Mr. Cook was telling me what a taskmaster his employer was, he said that in all of his 84 years he had never found a truer friend than Robert J. Halliday.

It was not long before Mr. Halliday found out the ability of the young German, to whom he was paying the princely sum of $10 per month and his board, and one day he told him: "John, I am not able to pay you what you are worth, but when the right man comes along I am going to put you on a private place."

Cook saw some of his fellow-employees go out to new positions and was beginning to think he was forgotten. But one day J. Howard McHenry, a man of unlimited means and refined tastes, who was about to erect some new conservatories to cost about $10,000, a big sum in those days, wanted a gardener who could superintend the construction and stocking of them and asked Mr. Halliday if he had such a man. He was told he had. John Cook was called into the office. He was then 22 years of age. As Mr. McHenry looked him over he said: "Why, Mr. Halliday, I want a man of some experience, not a boy."

I imagine I can see him now in his broadcloth coat and his long pointed stock collar as he replied: "Mr. Mc-Henry, you asked me to recommend you a gardener. Knowing just what you want and just what will be required of him, if I did not know that this young man would prove satisfactory in every respect I would not recommend him."

Well, Mr. Cook was engaged at $25 per month. But when he went to the office after his money, and the money to pay his assistants, Mr. McHenry gave him $35 instead of the $25 he had been engaged for. This place is still one of the show places about Baltimore.

His next place was with W. F. Frick, whose fine estate passed to his daughter, who was the wife of Robert Garrett, president of the B. & O. R. R., and again Mr. Cook was given carte blanche to make this one of the finest places about the city. Upland grounds stand today a monument to the skill and ability of John Cook.

Hillside a Labor of Love.

But across Edmondson avenue was a tract of about thirty acres that attracted Mr. Cook's attention because it was hilly. This brings us to Hillside, the home and range of John Cook today. But before we talk about the commercial end, let us look for a few moments at the part which is about his home. As you sit on the porch and look over the well-kept lawn, with its fine specimens of trees of various kinds of hardwood—most of them there before the owner—fine, stately evergreens and a well-curved drive, you cannot help but realize that there is something more than the skill and ability of the landscape gardener here displayed—the genuine affection of the man who is building a home for those he loves best. As he sits on his porch and looks over this scene in the sunset of a most useful life, is it any wonder that he looks upon these trees and shrubs on this lawn much the same as his own children?

But we must be getting over to the greenhouses. Here we find the two young men, each of them married and with homes on the place. Most of the houses had been torn out and new stock was being planted. On the side of a fairly steep hill, lying well to the sun, is about 60,000 feet of glass devoted to carnations, violets, orchids, palms and roses. Every rose that is grown here was produced on the place. Now, I think this is a record that would be hard to duplicate in this country.

Let us call the roll and see just what he has of his own production to choose from: Marion Dingee, Annie Cook, Mrs. Robt. Garrett, Baltimore, Enchanter, Cardinal, Madonna, My Maryland, Radiance, Francis Scott Key and Admiral Schley. Then there is his latest new one, which is something of the color of La France, but a much freer bloomer, with a better habit and fine foliage. Perhaps J. Horace McFarland, whose business it is to describe flowers, came nearest to it when he called it a glorified La France. This new rose is to go out in the spring of 1918 and, as we sat and talked about it, I told him if I were godfather for this fine new addition to his already long list of winners, I would name it John Cook. For what could be more fitting than to erect such a monument to the man who has accomplished more in floriculture than any other man I know Tate.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

There is a superabundance of stock in the market. Roses are extremely plentiful at from $2 to $8 per hundred, while in large quantities they may be had at practically the buyer's own price. Carnations, too, are in heavy supply and good stock is obtainable at $2 per hundred. Easter lilies are so numerous that the bottom has dropped out of the prices, $8 per hundred being the average. A few callas remain, but the season for them is at an end. Snapdragons are in short supply, with practically no demand. Peonies have loaded and reloaded the market. Only the finest varieties are receiving any attention, with festiva maxima in the lead.

Orchids are scarce, but valley continues to hold an important place in the market. As sweet peas have lost in quality, they also have lost in popularity and other flowers have taken their place. Daisies, pyrethrum and outdoor delphinium are becoming more popular and plentiful. Gladioli in the inferior grades are plentiful, but in small demand, while the larger, fancy varieties are less abundant and are in excellent demand.

No fancy ferns are to be had, but the new southern ferns are in. Potted plants are scarce, but those in the market meet with ready sale.

Various Notes.

June weddings still are holding the center of the stage, and upon these local retailers are concentrating their efforts. A number of unusual and attractive decorations have been made, causing much admiring comment. Outdoor weddings have been popular, allowing the use of the larger and more effective flowers. Large-flowering peonies, daisies and white roses have been used as much as the traditional orchids and valley.

A. F. J. Baur has returned from St. Louis, where he attended a meeting of the National Flower Show committee. Mr. Baur is going to enjoy a month's vacation—if a change of occupation can be called such—as he has been called to serve as a juror in the Superior court during the next month.

Rose Brandlein, daughter of Martin Brandlein, and Harry Bohne were married June 9.

Bertermann Bros. Co. shipped 15,000 peonies to Chicago last week. The retail store reports a busy week, trade holding up well.

Mr. Dudderstadt, of A. Wiegand's Sons Co., has been ill. One of Mr. Dudderstadt's twin babies also has been seriously sick.

John Grande, Jr., Gus Bookedis and Edwin Temperley have returned from an automobile trip to Chicago. The return trip was made in a steady downpour of rain. At Lebanon the roads were under water and the streams all but overflowing their banks.

The city market has been having an excellent business, especially in bedding stock. The warm weather has helped the plant business and porch boxes, beds and hanging baskets are making the city attractive. E. E. T.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

Business has been most satisfactory during the last week. The supply of flowers of all kinds has been large enough to meet the demand, which in the main has consisted of wedding, commencement and funeral work. Bedding plants are in good demand, and orders for window boxes are numerous. Landscape work, also, has continued well.

American Beauty and Russell roses are in good supply, thanks to the warmer weather, the quality rating good. Other roses also are plentiful, especially Shawyer, Sunburst and Ward. Carnations are in large supply, but the demand for them is good. Sweet peas, marguerites, yellow daisies and snapdragons are good property. Home-grown peonies are in the market and used largely on decorations. There is a splendid demand for them. Easter lilies are to be had in almost any quantity and gladioli are becoming more and more conspicuous. On the miscellaneous list are outdoor valley, larkspurs, deutzias, irises and others. Orchids are in fair supply, with Mossiae the most plentiful of the cattleyas. Baby gladioli are new to the local market.

Various Notes.

A. J. Lanternier & Co. are cutting a fine lot of Spencer sweet peas. They have been busy with a large amount of wedding and funeral work. Mr. and Mrs. E. Lanternier and Mr. and Mrs. Clem Lanternier motored to Columbia City last week, where they spent the week end with relatives.

F. J. Knecht & Co. are cutting a fine lot of Russell roses, in which they specialize.

The landscape department of W. J. & M. S. Vesey has been exceedingly busy this spring. It has just finished a large piece of work at the summer home of Jean Stratton Porter, the novelist, at Rome City, Ind.

Edgar Wenninghoff reports the demand for wedding flowers exceedingly good. Potted plants of American Beauty roses have been selling well and the trade in hanging baskets and porch boxes has been brisk.

The Doswell Floral Co. has been having its share of wedding work, having had three large affairs in one day. Funeral work has been good.

The Flick Floral Co. is cutting a large quantity of Shawyer roses, carnations and peonies. The force has been busy with weddings, the work last Sunday requiring a full day.

The wedding of Miss Mildred Louise Flick, daughter of Mrs. Alice Flick-Shive, to Leo Buchanan, took place at St. Patrick's church June 6. Attending the bride were her sisters, Mrs. Richard Blossom, as matron of honor, and Miss Marguerite Flick, as maid of honor. Miss Georgia Alice Flick was flower girl. The decorations at the church and house were elaborate. After the wedding trip the young couple will reside at 615 Oakwood place. Miss C. B. Flick and Miss Helen F. Patten, of Toledo, O., were here to attend the wedding. R. F.

MONTREAL, CAN.

Rapid strides have been made in this busy city during the last decade. Florists have arrived in increasing numbers and the old-timers are still in the van. Few pretentious stores are seen, as much of the business is done from the greenhouses. McKenna, Campbell and Bain make attractive window displays. George Hopton and Hall & Robinson are downtown; the Wilshire boys uptown; Joseph Bennett is at Lachine; and then the Cut Flower Exchange. They seem to do a more conservative business than even their brethren in Toronto.

I must not overlook the Murray establishment, the oldest, I believe, in the Dominion, and ably conducted by the daughter of the founder.

The seedsmen report a busy season, though backward. The W. Rennie Co. and Ewing & Co. report excellent business. H. L. Dery has moved to more commodious quarters at 21 Notre Dame, east. Dupuy & Ferguson have taken the adjoining store and intend making the two into one during the summer. This firm is located directly opposite the French market, to which Archibald Ferguson tells me farmers to the number of 700 bring their produce. "This will convey some idea of the extent of market gardening here," added Mr. Ferguson, who, by the way, has succeeded to the business, but will retain the old firm name. A nursery has been established some thirty-five miles east; along the St. Lawrence river—forty acres of rich, loamy soil that has never been disturbed. It has been partly planted to more than 300,000 shrubs and hardy perennials, transplanted direct from flats. To give an idea of the seclusion of the place, a house stands upon the grounds that has walls four feet in thickness, a building believed to be about 250 years old, which served as a fort in Indian times. Mr. Ferguson mentioned that there is no nursery in the province of Quebec and that he believes his venture will fit in well with the flourishing seed business.

VEGETABLES AND FRUITS DEPARTMENT

SWEET POTATO PLANTS.

Please describe the best method of making a hotbed for starting sweet potato plants. Mention the kind of soil and give other necessary particulars. We have tried twice, but the tubers all rotted each time. G. M. T. S.—Ill.

A hotbed for sweet potatoes, in the inquirer's latitude, should be ready for the tubers not later than May 1. Such a bed can be made the same as for other purposes, but a deep one is preferable, in the form of a dug-out or pit, made by digging a hole about eighteen inches deep and a trifle larger than the size of the frame. This trench should be filled with fresh horse manure which has been hauled up previously and turned and well shaken up once or twice. The manure is tramped into the pit until it is well filled and well packed. Then the frame is placed on top, and more manure packed all around it to keep it warm around the sides and ends. If the manure is not good the hotbed will be a failure, but it is presumed that the inquirer knows something about hotbeds. If the manure is burning dry, it needs a light watering, or it will be ruined.

After placing the frame on the manure, spread on top of the manure about an inch or two of sand—not soil, as the inquirer seems to suppose. Then put the sashes on and wait to see how the bed is going to act. In a few days the temperature will run extremely high, and the potatoes should not be put in until the temperature of the manure falls back to about 90 degrees. To get the temperature, put the thermometer well down into the manure.

When the bed is ready to plant, place the sweet potatoes on the sand as closely as they can be laid without having them touch one another. Put sand on top of them until they are completely covered. Then sprinkle the sand and put the sashes on again. Ventilate the bed each day, according to how bright and warm or windy the weather is, and water when needed to keep the sand moist. Do not open too much. Close them up early in the afternoon, so as to run the bed warm.

When the plants are large enough to sell, a sash is lifted off and the plants are pulled off by holding the sand and the potato down with one hand and catching hold of the sprouts, low in the sand, with the other hand. They pull easily, and the old sweet potatoes will keep on producing more such sprouts or plants until late in July. Take the plants to the shed, count them out in bundles of fifty or 100 and roll them up in sphagnum moss and papers, like rooted cuttings. They do not keep well and should be planted out soon. It is best not to pull them until the customers want them. It is well to have the bed come on early enough, as they can easily be held back by giving more ventilation if they are ready a week or so too early. However, the writer has seen the first batch pulled and thrown away when entirely too early. F. R.

BUFFALO.

The Market.

Stock has been plentiful since Memorial day and business remains quite firm. The weather, no doubt, has kept the supply of stock checked to a certain extent. Sweet peas have suffered considerably due to the continued rainy weather. Roses are in excellent condition and quite sufficient. Graduations and weddings always tend to curtail an oversupply. Carnations, too, are arriving in extra heavy consignments, but some of the blooms show the effect of weather conditions, particularly the White Wonder and Enchantress Supreme varieties. Valley is plentiful and orchids are quite sufficient for all present demands. Cornflowers still are realizing a big demand for combinations with red and white flowers. The supply of greens fluctuates at present.

Various Notes.

S. D. Greene, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., called on the trade last week.

David Scott, of Corfu, is growing a crop of tomatoes in his large sweet pea house. The plants are thrifty and look exceptionally fine.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Palmer spent the week end motoring to Sacket Harbor, N. Y., where one of the training camps is located.

The Buffalo Florists' Club held its monthly meeting June 5, at the Electric building. C. F. Guenther, of Hamburg, gave an interesting talk on the culture of chrysanthemums and carnations. Sidney R. Wells, gardener for Robert W. Pomeroy, Williamsville, N. Y., gave an educational talk on orchids. A. E.

OBITUARY.

Charles W. Unglaub.

C. W. Unglaub, one of the best known of the Springfield, O., trade, died June 4, a victim of tuberculosis. Since the disposal of his main range of houses in 1912, Mr. Unglaub had devoted his time to the development of another greenhouse business on Hillside avenue, a short distance from the city. The decedent, who was 44 years of age, is survived by his wife and two children.

J. D. Fletcher.

J. D. Fletcher, head of the firm of Fletcher & Fletcher, florists and bulb specialists of Hood River, Ore., died at his home recently, following an illness of nearly a year. Mr. Fletcher had recently returned from southern California, where he spent the winter and spring in search of health. He was 58 years of age, having been born at Green Bay, Wis. His wife is the only survivor.

Clarence L. Metcalf.

Clarence L. Metcalf, a retail florist with a store at 1529 Broadway, Brooklyn, N. Y., died early Monday morning, June 11, at a private hospital. Death was caused by a complication of diseases. Mr. Metcalf leaves a widow, one child, his mother and brother.

The funeral services were held from the home, 298 Hancock street, June 13. Many florists attended. The floral offerings from friends in and out of the trade were numerous.

Mr. Metcalf was a son of Richard Metcalf, who, before his death six years ago, was a florist in Brooklyn for thirty-five years. Mr. Metcalf had conducted the store since his father's death. He was a member of the Masonic and other fraternal societies. J. A. S.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

E. V. B. Felthousen, of Schenectady, N. Y., reports a record business in out-of-town orders. He predicts the usual heavy summer demand for the Boston fern.

Fred Goldring, of Slingerlands, N. Y., observed that the bright weather Memorial day brought out a record-breaking crowd of autoists. Everything salable in bloom went. One of the best table ferns is Polystichum coriaceum, which is almost lost sight of by fern specialists.

W. W. Hannell, of Watervliet, N. Y., said that, following the dull period, the sunny days were responsible for their excellent sales. Judging by the experience Memorial day and orders to fill later, business is coming along in good shape.

Sambrook Bros., of Troy, N. Y., had their usual good Memorial day business and did not note much change. Prices averaged about as usual and, with plenty of stock, there is no kick to register.

James G. Barrett, of Troy, had his usual big assortment of stock for Memorial day and, between much funeral work, had his share of patronage.

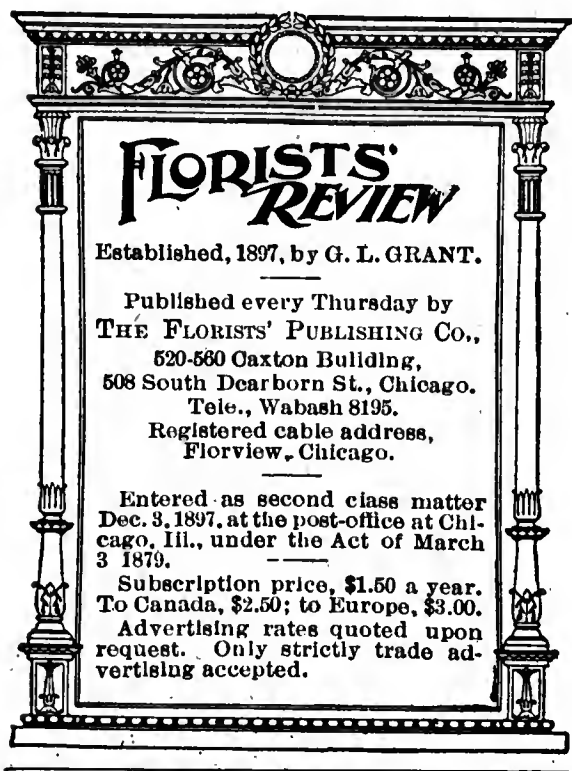

Henry Schrade, Saratoga Springs,

N. Y., looks for fully as good a season as formerly, judging by planting orders placed. The bulk of stock is out, but late tulips hold back much that otherwise would be finished for the season.

Alfred Goldring, of Cobleskill, N. Y., observed that King Sol made a difference of several hundred per cent to the plant business Memorial day. What looked like a frost turned out to be a banner harvest.

Henry Weston, of Hempstead, N. Y., said that business Memorial day overshadowed the ogre of the depleted coal pile, and that, with a continuation of this fine weather, a good planting season is looked for.

The Joseph Heacock Co., of Wyncote, Pa., is noted for palms, and after looking over the vast stock one realizes that preparedness is well exemplified there. Florists will not have to be rationed in this respect, at least for some time to come. Cibotium Schiedeii grown for specimens are seen in large numbers and last, but by no means least, although seldom noted, is a stock of cattleyas. They are grown on tables, arranged to face the south. For quality and floriferousness they challenge the best grown. W. M.

WHAT is there that could take the place of chrysanthemums in the growers' scheme of crop rotation?

THERE are many who will approve the action of the New York Florists' Club in deciding to cancel the outing with which the S. A. F. convention usually has closed.

THIS is the season of the year when Mrs. Russell is an especially satisfactory rose for grower, retailer and the public.
It should be cut more fully developed than any other rose.

THE man who loses out on a good order should console himself that "there are in the sea as big fish as ever were caught," examine his tackle for defects and bait a fresh hook.

PLAN to plant a house of cucumbers and use vacant space in a cool house for lettuce when the season arrives; you not only will be doing your "bit," but unless all signs fail there will be money in it.

FOR the florist who is retailing 4-inch geraniums at $1.50, or even $1.75 per dozen, it may be said that at least he is not losing any sleep because the income tax has been boosted; it would not affect him if the exemption were still further reduced.

THE man who goes into the florists' business without experience in it rarely finds it as profitable as he supposed, but the young man who makes a start for himself after a sufficient training as rarely scores a failure, and in those rare cases failure usually is due to insufficient experience in handling money.

CROPS AND PRICES.

Florists who do business in the communities dependent on agriculture know that good crops mean good business for them, and that good crops and good prices are a combination that can not be beaten as an assurance of prosperity. Consequently, the government crop report issued June 9 is of much interest to many in the trade. It shows the condition of the various crops June 1, expressed in percentage of their ten-year averages (not the normal), was as

|                                       |       |                   |      |
|---------------------------------------|-------|-------------------|------|
| Pears .....                           | 116.5 | Spring wheat..... | 98.1 |
| Apples .....                          | 112.3 | Alfalfa .....     | 98.1 |
| Field beans .....                     | 109.0 | Watermelons ..... | 98.1 |

| Onions .....                          | 100.9 | Rye .....         | 93.8 |
| Cantaloupes .....                     | 100.7 | Pasture .....     | 93.6 |
| Oats .....                            | 100.1 | Cotton .....      | 87.9 |
| Field peas .....                      | 99.9  | Winter wheat..... | 87.1 |
| Barley .....                          | 99.2  | Average all.....  | 94.2 |
| Blackberries andraspberries ..... | 98.3  |                   |      |

June 1 the index figure of prices was about 99.8 per cent higher than a year ago, 97.8 per cent higher than two years ago, and 107.2 per cent higher than the average of the last nine years June 1.

PUT YOUR CITY ON TRADE MAP.

The Review aims to publish weekly or biweekly news-letters from every important trade center and this is a call for volunteers. Correspondents are wanted to put the following cities on the trade map:

Washington, D. C.
New Orleans, La.
Albany, N. Y.
St. Paul, Minn.
Louisville, Ky.
Syracuse, N. Y.
Utica, N. Y.
Memphis, Tenn.

Anyone who gets around among florists in these or any other city not regularly represented in the news columns is invited to write to the editor about it.

WILL UNCLE SAM FOLLOW SUIT?

Thoughtful men in the trade are watching the development of the government's policies with special interest because all the other great nations at war have seen fit to restrict international commerce in bulbs, seeds and plants; the question is, will the United States follow suit?

England has prohibited the importation of bulbs, not only from neutral countries, but also from the allied countries of Japan and France. Imports of plants and nursery stock also are restricted. France has stopped the importation of bulbs from Holland. So has Germany. All the countries of western Europe have prohibited exports of certain classes of seeds and license the shipment of others only when certain conditions are complied with. The international plant trade, as well as the bulb trade, is almost at a standstill in Europe, by reason of official embargo.

Will the government of the United States ever say to a free people that they shall not buy bulbs from Holland or Japan? A few months ago it seemed unlikely, but no one then supposed the people of this country ever would face government control of our food or our fuel, both of which are being studied by recently appointed federal commissions. There may as yet be no committee on the restriction of the expenditure of money for the importation of bulbs and plants during the war, but it may come, just as it has in other countries.

The possibility is worth considering.

MAY WE DO AS MUCH FOR YOU?

Ruffing up one's own work is a grand little indoor pastime. But the big thing is what others have to say.

Hence, to convince non-advertisers of The Review's economy and efficiency as a "silent salesman" we now and then print expressions from those who pay the bills for Review advertising.
Note how the following letters were all written during one week:

I am enclosing check to balance my advertising account, and I wish to say that the ads have kept me so busy during the last two months that now it is necessary to discontinue them, for I have had to return money orders unfilled on account of the lack of stock.—Evergreen Farm,
C. M. Grossman, proprietor, Petoskey, Mich.,
May 31, 1917.

Accept my thanks for your valuable service during the years my ads have been running in The Review. The large returns and the shortage of color supplies have made this stop order essential.—C. R. Cranston, Newark, N. J., June 2, 1917.

The classified ad, which was inserted only once, sold about 30,000 tomato plants for me, so please change it as follows.—A. A. Winegard, Spencerport, N. Y., June 4, 1917.

Enclosed find my check for $1.50 in payment of one year's subscription to The Review. I cannot do business without The Review.—Baxter Greenhouses, S. Morgan, manager, Le Roy,
N. Y., June 1, 1917.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review

PLEASANT NEWS HERE.

Florists who have expressed alarm over the economy crusade launched by the government probably will find some consolation in the knowledge that this war measure now is meeting with powerful opposition. The cry is raised in many quarters that any change in the buying habits of the nation is fraught with grave danger. A member of the National Council of Defense is quoted in the papers as saying that "extravagance is bad, but an indiscriminating economy is worse. . . . We want more business, not less." Furthermore, economists are wont to point out that economic conditions, not sentiment, make business, and every merchant knows that a spirit of economy, under present conditions, is largely a matter of sentiment. When talk goes around about economy, or about a scare, or a panic, there is a short time during which the consumer holds back his money. After that brief period of emotionalism he goes ahead and spends his money as he gets it. And everybody seems to be "getting it" now, or how is one to explain the good business nearly all florists are doing?

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The condition of the market remains unchanged in its essential factors.
Stock of nearly all kinds is plentiful, while trading is slow, with prices on the whole unsatisfactory. June 8 the market, however, was considerably improved and this bettered condition lasted over the end of the week, but by June 11 lethargy again prevailed.
Shipping business has held up a little more consistently than the city trade, but average prices have been low, partly due to the low quality of much of the stock on the market.

American Beauties are in short sup-

You Can Get Beauties Here

BEAUTIES are, perhaps, the scarcest item on this market—and most in request. There is nothing takes the place of Beauties for commencements, or other presentation purposes. We have a fine crop and the best quality the season affords.

POPULAR ROSES

The market's largest supply of Milady, Ophelia, Killarney Brilliant and Russell and quality that is, as usual, a shade ahead of any other important supply. You will hold your customers if you use Amling's roses.

GOOD CARNATIONS

Amling's Carnations are known as the product of the most expert growers in the middle west. The quality this June is above the average for the season. The supply is large.

VALLEY

Don't let your competitor get ahead of you—he orders Valley here.

IRIS

For basket work, nothing is finer than Spanish Iris—white, yellow, lavender.

SWEET PEAS

The largest and finest supply in the west. You will find our Peas ready sellers. All colors—nothing but Spencers.

PEONIES

Good Peonies are by no means overplentiful, especially white. The Amling quality will be hard to equal.

QUALITY OR PRICE?

Quality is remembered long after price is forgotten—it does not pay to handle "cheap" stock. Amling's prices never are higher than others ask if able to supply an equal grade.

ply and are clearing readily. Other varieties of roses are in large supply. Preference, generally speaking, is given to Russell, of which variety large cuts of fair quality stock are arriving. The color has faded as the result of warm, bright weather. Next call is generally for red roses, Milady being in biggest demand, but the supply of red roses is lighter than other colors. There are great quantities of short Killarneys on the market, but they move slowly. Carnations are in tremendous supply and drag heavily. Much of the stock arriving is of poor quality.

Valley is a little more plentiful than last week and the supply is just about large enough to meet the demand. There are not many Easter lilies and they sell poorly. Callas also are in small supply, but stock arriving moves slowly at low prices. Orchids are scarce. Stocks are in small supply. Good quality stocks sell fairly well. Although there are plenty of peas, there is not much good stock coming in. What high quality peas do arrive, however, find a fair market. Gladioli are selling fairly well, Pendleton leading. There are quite a number of double poeticus on the market. They sell slowly, however.

Peonies are in large supply, some excellent quality stock arriving. Pink is in great predominance, although white is beginning to arrive in larger quantities. Peonies sell fairly well. The first of the local crops commenced to come in last week.

Lilacs are at the end of their season. Snapdragons sell poorly. Quite a bit of candytuft is arriving. New southern ferns have relieved the scarcity of eastern stock.

Mr. Spencer's View.

A. C. Spencer is one of those fortunate gentlemen to whom clear vision has been given; he is able to distinguish between essentials and non-essentials, and he does not permit himself to become too hurried for thought.

Mr. Spencer says the flower business, especially in the cities, undoubtedly has been affected by the use of the word economy by public men when all they meant was to disparage the waste of food and fuel. But Mr. Spencer thinks the campaign for "economy" has spent its force.

The growers have had a good season, Mr. Spencer thinks. He says a few days of glut causes them to forget that for eight solid months flowers have been none too plentiful. To get better prices, one must ask better prices, he says, but in the end wholesale and retail prices, at least in Chicago, are fixed by the law of supply and demand. If growers are not satisfied with values, says Mr. Spencer, the remedy is to be found in growing better flowers, which would mean not so many flowers, which will automatically bring better prices. The trouble, says Mr. Spencer, lies in the fact that not all the growers whose object has been quantity production can see that it may be time to change the program.

Various Notes.

At the home of the bride's parents, 5430 Indiana avenue. June 12. Miss Phyllis Beilman, daughter of John J. Beilman and Mrs. Beilman, and A. Miller, president of the American Bulb Co., were quietly married, none but members of the family being present. Mr. and Mrs. Miller will spend their honeymoon on a western trip.

Wm. Wienhoeber and wife will leave for an extended trip through the west June 19. They expect to be away for a month to six weeks.

C. L. Sherer, of Kyle & Foerster, is happy over the arrival of an 8-pound baby at his home.

"Pessimistic? Not much. I think the flower business will be better than ever," says H. Van Gelder, of Percy Jones, Inc. "June thus far has been better than any previous June we ever had," he added.

One day last week a well-dressed man ordered flowers and change for $20 bill from August Lange, 25 East Madison street. Met girl messenger, Louise Lamarter, at studio at 16 North Wabash avenue, took change, asked her to put flowers in vase and vanished. It was reported to the police.

In the three separate ranges of Marks Bros., whose headquarters are at 4827 West Warrick avenue, 400 tons of coal were burned last season. It is figured that something more than this quantity will be required next season, because one range of new houses did not call for heat until the middle of the season now ending. J. C. Marks estimates the increased cost for next season at more than 100 per cent, and he figures that all the pot plant growers will need better prices than heretofore if they are to make anything out of next year's work. Last season they put up three new Dietsch houses, with a Kroeschell boiler. It had been hoped to add to the range this year, but the plans are in abeyance awaiting a change in conditions.

M. Winandy, Jr., who is well known locally as a greenhouse erector, has joined the army and gone to New Orleans.

The British censor's foot must have slipped recently, as one day last week the American Bulb Co., by parcel post from Holland, received almost 100,000 cyclamen seeds of German origin, ordered long ago. These were not enough Damm Bros., who had a fine Easter crop of lilies, now are repeating their success with bedding stock. They also have a splendidly flowered lot of rambler roses that are being distributed among the retail stores.

Andrew McAdams, Jacksonville, Fla., an old-time florist, was in the city last week visiting friends.

Emil Buettner is not one of the growers who believe in early planting. He says he never has had his best returns from roses that were benched early in the season and that, on the other hand, his best results always have been with late planted stock.

Miss O. A. Tonner, of O. A. & L. A. Tonner, paid a visit to the Austin-Littleford Nurseries, Downers Grove, Ill., June 10, to look over the prospects for the local peony crop. John Furrow, of Furrow Bros., Guthrie, Okla., came to town last week on his annual trip to market peaches. He will be at the Brevoort hotel for a month.

Business in general was good last week, the number of orders for graduation exercises being far in advance of those of any previous year. Some of the schools had regulation bouquets, but these did not take so well. More baskets than ever before were sent as gifts. The greater activity kept the market cleared of stock throughout the week, and stock of all kinds was plentiful. Greens now are scarce; the only good green to be had now is home-grown Sprenger, for which good prices are realized. Roses are of good quality, but sell too cheaply. The same may be said of carnations and lilies.

The large supply of peonies arriving hurts the sale of greenhouse cut stock.

Various Notes.

W. J. Barnes reported a rushing business in cut flowers, bedding work and decorations. He furnished a large number of palms for graduation exercises, and funeral work was above normal for the week. Mr. Barnes now is potting some fine August-sown cyclamen seedlings into 8-inch pots.

A. Newell says graduation exercises are becoming a better thing for florists. More fancy baskets and corsage bouquets were sent out than the common bouquet.

Samuel Murray reported that orders for graduation bouquets increased considerably over those of last year. Mr.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The week ending June 13 saw a tremendous supply of flowers. There were no prices. The wonder was that the market could absorb such a vast quantity of material. The peony season is at its height, but even without the peonies, the market is supplied to an extent seldom seen. Several wholesale houses handled more carnations in this one week than they have ever done before. The number ran up into figures of extraordinary size.

The volume of business was quite large, but the average price was so low that it could not prove satisfactory to the growers. There was a certain amount of shipping business and some local orders that gave the market what little strength it possessed. Then came the quantity orders, mainly from buyers who will take a chance when the price is attractive. The wholesalers found that the only thing to do was to make the price low enough to suit these buyers. They are not too discriminating, taking everything just as it comes, good, bad and indifferent, and they usually get a certain portion of each.

There were, of course, some flowers that were not in oversupply. Valley, for instance, sold fairly well at list prices; but valley was not always satisfactory, unfortunately. Then, too, some Beauties, Russells, Hadleys and Ophelias were in demand; with them were choice selections of other flowers. To these must be added the rather limited supply of outdoor or frame-grown sweet peas. They are extremely fine when not rain-soaked. The indoor peas are getting poor. Peonies have been a great help to the retailers. It is proverbial, however, that peonies, when too late for Memorial day, are a terrible trial to the wholesalers. They are so cumbersome and so cheap that the cost of handling them on a commission basis is a serious expense.

Commencements, weddings, parties, funerals and special offers constitute the bulk of the business. Taken all in all, the market, while bad, is no worse than could reasonably be expected under the pressure of such heavy receipts.

There is no probability, good judges believe, of an improvement for the present. They expect the supply of flowers to decrease in a week or ten days, but they also expect business to decline during the last half of June. Many peonies

Rambler Rose Sprays

For June Weddings and Commencements a decoration of Rambler Sprays, pink, white or red, furnishes one of the most decorative and effective results imaginable. We can supply them in long, medium or short sprays.

Per 100 Sprays, $5.00 to $20.00 (according to length)

First cuts come from our Washington store, then comes Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York, thus prolonging the season for these charming flowers.

are now going into cold storage in anticipation of a better market for them after their regular season is over.

The Plant Market.

A careful survey of the field leads to the belief that the spring plant business is below par at this time. It is true that there was activity at Memorial day, that nearly all the geraniums in flower were sent out; but it is also true the cold, wet weather during May caused so much delay in planting out that today the volume of sales is behind that of previous years. While much was expected in June and some of the hopes may still be realized, it will take hard work to make up the ground lost.

The decline in the demand for soft-wooded bedding plants is due partly to the war scare, with its absorbing interest in vegetable planting, and partly to the change in public taste, now leaning toward Darwin tulips and perennials. Geraniums have felt the lack of support; so have cannas and nearly all of the small flowering plants. The wholesale prices on these plants have varied more this season than ever before. Some of the growers asked and obtained the advanced prices until the end of the first week in June, to the no small benefit of their returns. Others asked last year's prices. Still others were between. Today the prices have fallen and with such excellent stock they afford unusual values to those with belated orders.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

The market was crowded with stock last week and the demand, although large, was not equal to the supply. In consequence of this condition, prices suffered greatly. The glut was in roses, carnations and sweet peas. Roses moved sluggishly and cleared with difficulty. Killarney came in poor quality and the demand was mostly for prime stock in Russell, Ophelia and Sunburst. Good Beauties are scarce.

Carnations are of good quality for this time of the year and $1.50 per hundred was the top price for selects. In lots of 1,000 they could be bought for $1 per hundred. Sweet peas were in oversupply and did not clean up. There is also an oversupply of marguerites, lilies, irises, gladioli and cornflowers, all from outdoors. Peonies are about over for the season. Lily of the valley is in big demand, but is scarce. So are orchids.

Business during the first part of the month was good. Weddings, graduations and college commencements are expected to create a strong demand for all kinds of stock during the next two weeks.

Growers' Association Meeting.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association meeting June 6, at the Eleven Mile House, drew a large attendance, it being the date for the installation of the new officers. Vice-president Thomas Kirkwood, who presided in the absence of President Winter, appointed Martin Ude to induct the new officials into office. They are: President, W. A. Rowe; vice-president, A. S. Cerny; secretary, Joseph Deutschmann; treasurer, Gustave Hartmann; trustee, A. P. Scheidegger.

duced. Mr. Bourdet gave an interesting talk on the coming S. A. F. convention to be held in New York city and urged that the members of the growers' association join the society. David Scott Geddis also addressed the meeting, his subject being the National Flower Show to be held in St. Louis next April.

W. C. Smith told of the plans for the florists' picnic and automobile parade on the same day and was promised the cooperation of the association to make the events a success. J. J. Beneke also addressed the meeting. The visitors invited the members of the association to attend in a body the meeting of the St. Louis Florists' Club June 14. The invitation was accepted and the visitors thanked.

The next meeting of the association will be held on a date to be set later, as the regular day is the Fourth of July.

Flower Show Committee Meets.

The National Flower Show committee met at the Jefferson hotel June 9 and 10 and selected Moolah Temple, 3821 Lindell boulevard, as the place for holding the National Flower Show in April, 1918. Besides the temple, a building will be erected on a lot 155x 300 feet adjoining it, and will be used to house the exhibits. This action eliminates the Coliseum, where it was at first proposed to hold the show. The change was necessary because of financial difficulties which involved the Coliseum.

The members of the committee at the meeting were: George Asmus, of Chicago, who is the chairman; R. C. Kerr, of Houston, Tex., president; John Young, of New York city, secretary, and J. J. Hess, of Omaha, Neb., treasurer of the S. A. F.; Patrick Weleh, of Boston, Mass.; Adolph Farenwald, of Roslyn, Pa., and A. F. J. Baur, secretary of the American Carnation Society, of Indianapolis, Ind. The committee was met by D. S. Geddis, temporary chairman of the local flower show committee, who had made the arrangements for the meeting and for the entertainment of the visitors.

The committee expressed satisfaction with the building selected for the show and with the prospects for a successful exhibition. They left for their homes June 10.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

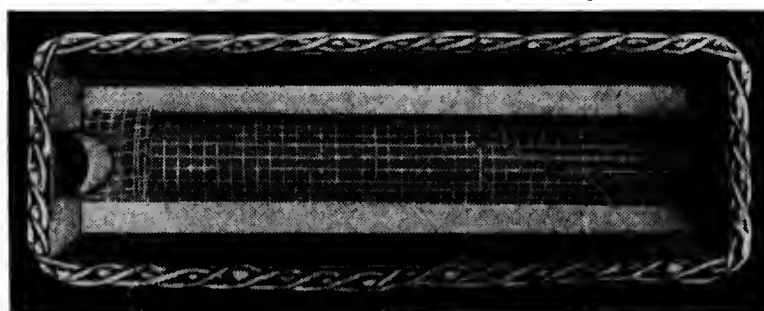

Weddings have been numerous since June 1 and in consequence there has been a considerable demand for flowers. Most of the events, however, have been small. Funeral work has been steady, several prominent residents having died recently. Graduations during the next two weeks promise to have a stimulating effect on business.

The market has been fairly well supplied with seasonable stock. There is a good demand for carnations, the quality of which continues fair. Whites are in shorter supply than the pinks. There is an abundance of roses, which include some fine Beauties in various grades, the sale of which has been larger recently. Montrose, Hadley, Ophelia, Ward, Sunburst, Killarney and White

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

The market is full of peonies, irises, syringas and many other spring flowers. Business seems to be holding up well. The glut of roses did not last long and there is just about enough coming in to take care of the demand. Carnations and lilies are plentiful. There was some fine outdoor valley last week, but it is done. The wholesalers are cleaning up better than usual at this time of the year and the retailers have had no let-down, many weddings helping to keep business good.

Various Notes.

Mrs. E. A. Williams had a fine window of cattleyas, about 400 of them being artistically arranged. The window attracted a great deal of attention.

The A. W. Smith Co. offered cash prizes to high school students for the best street car ad card and received a great number of creditable designs, which made it hard to select the winners.

Plantmen are complaining that the market for bedding plants is not up to the mark, the weather having greatly interfered with their sale. Clarke.

Ferns have been in good demand and the supply of good stock is about exhausted.

The cut flower trade is at a low ebb now, with plenty of stock coming in. Roses are of good quality, but the large supply moves slowly. Carnations are poor and plentiful. There are few besides White Enchantress. Peonies are so abundant that they do not clear at extremely low prices and many of them are sent to the hospitals.

Sweet peas have been rather scarce and not enough to supply the demand. Valley is in such small supply that white sweet peas are being used as substitutes for it. Some gladioli are making their appearance and are sold quickly.

Vegetable planting has hurt business some, but the spring season as a whole has been satisfactory to everyone.

BOSTON.

The Market.

There has been during the last week, and still is, the worst glut of flowers Boston has seen for a long time. Since Memorial day the demand appears to have steadily dwindled, and as a result prices have slumped heavily, and there is a large, unsalable surplus of stock. Roses and carnations are only cleared at low prices in thousand lots, although a limited number of fine quality blooms realize fair prices. Sweet peas are abundant and of splendid quality, but the sales are slow. Darwin tulips and such narcissi as poeticus and albus plenus odoratus are hardly bought at all, while snapdragons, stocks, feverfew, myosotis, candytuft and calendulas realize little. Small-flowered gladioli are almost unsalable and even fine spikes of Halley, America, Augusta and Mrs. King are hard to move at $4 to $6 per hundred.

An abundant crop of outdoor valley is arriving, of better quality than the forced article, but the sales are slow. Lilies have been hard to move at even $3 to $5 per hundred. The only peonies arriving locally are officinalis varieties, but other colors of good quality are coming from farther south. These sell at $4 to $5 per hundred. Lilacs, German irises and other outdoor flowers are abundant. Cattleyas are sluggish at $3 to $4 per dozen. The sales of asparagus have been light.

Congested conditions are always to be expected after Memorial day. Much material planned for that holiday flowered too late and we are now being swamped with this material. An improvement in a few days seems probable.

and other conditions, has not been satisfactory, despite the abundant publicity. All children accompanied by adults are admitted free, and many thousands have visited and enjoyed the exhibition. The gates will not close until June 17 and possibly later. With one exception, the orchid groups were still in position June 10 and looked well after being staged for ten days. The azalea tent has been splendid; also Roland's rose garden. The rhododendrons will not be well opened out before June 20, although some sorts now are good. The magnificent standard wistarias and trachelospermums were splendidly opened June 12.

William Sim received a silver medal for his grand bed of pansies. The W. W. Edgar Co. had an attractive bed of standard Poitevine geraniums, with a base of Mrs. Sander marguerites. B. Hammond Tracy shows some fine Gladiolus primulinus hybrids; also a splendid white seedling. Mrs. Grace Sturtevant has a beautiful iris collection. German irises are also well shown by other specialists, as well as Darwin, breeder, cottage and other late tulips. This week the displays of hardy flowers are being featured daily.

Julius Heurlin's collection of conifers is the most complete ever staged here. It contains sixteen varieties of cypress, twenty-seven of spruce, eleven of fir, eleven of pine, twenty-eight of juniper, nineteen of arbor-vitæ and twelve miscellaneous. The Farquhar rock garden improved much with the warmer and showery weather. The numerous colonies of primulas, gentians, dwarf phloxes, lithospermums, myosotis, saxifragas, violas and other varieties proved most attractive.

The exhibition at this time seems unlikely to prove a financial success. The backward season, war and other conditions, the fact that it was opened eight or ten days too early, the added fact that people could get free, magnificent open-air displays at the Arnold Arboretum, in the parkways and on private estates, militated against the success of the show. In March, or early April, people are hungry for flowers, as the attendance at Boston's indoor March show proved, but in June they have had a surfeit of them.

A mistake made by the managers of the exhibition was in limiting the varieties of plants on exhibition. Orchids, azaleas, rhododendrons, wistarias, etc., may be admired by, but they cannot be grown by, the masses. I noticed more people admiring and taking notes of irises, tulips and perennials than of the more aristocratic kinds. The great British shows, like those at the Temple, Holland House, York, Shrewsbury, Wolverhampton, etc., contain all varieties of plants, flowers, fruits and vegetables in season.

At Boston, displays of bulbs, perennials, etc., were ignored until a week after the opening, while show pelargoniums, begonias, gloxinias, fuchsias, streptocarpi, ferns, palms, cacti, fine foliage plants and many others obtainable were not seen at all. A miscellaneous tent would have proved immensely popular and this year, of all years, vegetables should have been allotted some space. But when all is said and done, the fact is apparent that June flower shows in America are not a success from a financial standpoint. Newport, New York and Boston have all found this out.

Gardeners' and Florists' Club.

The officers of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club have purchased a $500 Liberty Loan bond for their reserve fund. Many members have also purchased bonds. Several members of the club have already joined the colors, while others are expecting to be drafted. All such will be kept square on the books for the duration of the war.

After the transaction of regular business at the next meeting, June 19, a collation and dance will be given. A charge of 50 cents each will be made for the entertainment. At the September meeting W. H. Elliott will talk on California. In October there will be a vegetable lecture and exhibition, the display to be opened for public inspection. In November a chrysanthemum lecture and exhibition will be given.

Various Notes.

What should have been lilac day at the Arnold Arboretum was ruined by a drenching rain storm. This prevented many thousands from enjoying the display. From about 140 varieties flowering, the following small list is especially good: Macrostachya, Marie Legraye, Mme. Lemoine, Philemon, Bleuatre, Souv. de Spaeth, Negro, Ambroise, Verschaffelt, Congo, Alphonse Laval and President Carnot. Lilacs in this section are not flowering so profusely as usual.

H. R. Comley has a good number of June wedding orders and business with him is good. Mr. Comley's son, Lester, one of the most popular buyers in the flower markets, has enlisted in the hospital corps.

Charles Evans was the first grower to bring Pæonia officinalis to the market; this was June 8. Usually this peony is open for Memorial day, sometimes earlier.

William Gray, secretary of the American Sweet Pea Society, reports that sweet peas are promising at Newport. His fall-sown plants now are blooming outdoors. He thinks the dates selected for the Boston show, July 7 and 8, should suit sweet peas nicely.

Mrs. W. H. Ward is bringing in a fine lot of Gladiolus The Bride, which proves popular for brides' bouquets.

William Sim is shipping in a grand lot of sweet peas, in addition to cottage and Darwin tulips.

At the store of Wax Bros., on Tremont street, a moving American flag is an attraction this week. The window displays here are as fine as ever.

Philip and Robert, sons of Thomas Roland, now are in France with the American ambulance corps.

Seed stores still report a good demand for many vegetable seeds. Many varieties of beans, root crops, onions, corn, etc., are entirely sold out. Fertilizers are scarce.

President R. M. Saltonstall, of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, entertained more than fifty of the leading exhibitors and other interested horticulturists at a luncheon in the Hotel Somerset June 6. The tables were beautifully decorated. After a short address, Mr. Saltonstall called on a number of those present for remarks. Among those responding were J. K. M. L. Farquhar, General S. M. Weld, A. F. Esterbrook, John Dillon, James Wheeler, Walter Gott, the representative of Sander & Sons, St. Albans, England, and Thomas Roland.

Penn's brides' window is a center of attraction on busy Tremont street this week. Weddings now keep the firm busily employed. They are using large and attractive ads in the daily papers.

in New York. Retailers made the best of their opportunity and had wonderful window decorations. The big buyers took peonies out of the market in truck loads; the gathering of push carts interfered with traffic and the street merchants were at every corner. Still at the end of the week there seemed to be no diminution in the supply. Many thousands of them were saved by cold storage. They will be valuable at the close of the present week, when the surplus and the decreasing regular shipments are over. June 9 fine flowers were offered as low as $1 per hundred. This refers to the fresh stock of the day's receipts. The day-old flowers did not realize more than 50 cents per hundred; the 2-day-old flowers were given away and the rest sought the inevitable end in the cold waters of the Hudson river.

Some of the individual peony shipments were the result of large plantings. One of the big Pennsylvania growers had fifteen acres of them under cultivation. Many of the flowers should have been here for Memorial day, but the season has been exceptionally late and cold. So when this first hot spell arrived the market was flooded.

Naturally, the whole cut flower market was influenced by the peony situation. Carnations, especially, felt the strain and prices, which for months have been satisfactory to growers, began to fall. From $3 per hundred the first of the week, prices fell to as low as 50 cents per hundred. Shipments continue large and prices will undoubtedly be low so long as peonies remain. The same condition applies to roses, although there has been no noticeable surplus and seldom has the offer for short stems been under $1 per hundred. In the clean-up June 9 there was no serious decline. American Beauties are off quality, but Hadley, Brunner and Prima Donna roses continue excellent and are in demand.

A few orchids sell as high as 40 cents and the rest at 25 cents and under. There are not many in the market. Valley still is $4 and $5 per hundred for the selected flowers, with frame and outdoor stock at $1 per hundred. Lilies were not moving all last week, even when offered at $3 per hundred. Callas were as low as 50 cents per dozen. There was more than a sufficient quantity of other seasonable flowers.

Sunday Closing.

The Wholesale Cut Flower and Allied Trades Association of New York is sending out this letter to the florists of the city:

A New York state labor law, known as the day-of-rest law, obligates an employer to give to each employee one day of twenty-four consecutive hours rest in every seven days, under penalty of a fine, jail sentence, or both, and, inasmuch as we can ill afford to spare any of our employees on week days, and, in order that we may comply with this law, we, the members of the Wholesale Cut Flower and Allied Trades Association, at a meeting held May 19 last in this city, decided to close Sundays.

We wish therefore to bring to your notice that, after June 30 next, all wholesalers and jobbers in cut flowers, and supply houses in Greater New York, will be closed Sundays.

In our endeavor to comply with this law, we ask your cooperation and trust you will find it convenient to make such purchases on Saturdays in the future as you have heretofore made on Sundays.

P. B. Rigby, Sec'y.

June 9 a meeting of the executive committee of the new association was held in the Coogan building, P. J. Smith presiding. There are fifty-nine members.

It is to be hoped that the Sunday closing movement may ultimately influence the retail florists, many of whom already virtually lock their doors on Saturday nights.

Various Notes.

W. J. Scully, called by the trade the mayor of Rockaway Park, had charge of the Harrahan-Mouquin wedding decorations, both at the house and church. Many thousands of white roses were used and 1,000 geraniums were planted for the occasion.

H. T. Phillips, of the G. W. Crawbuck Co., has sold his interest to the company and retired to his home at East Quogue, L. I.

July 11 the Greek-American Florists' Association will enjoy its annual outing at Wetzel's Point, L. I.

Lawrence Theiler, secretary to John Young, and Miss Florence Kelly, of New York, were married June 10 at the Church of St. John the Baptist.

B. Rosens, with his family, is spending the summer at Far Rockaway, N. Y.

N. Lecakes and family will enjoy the summer after July 1 at their farm in Norwalk, Conn.

J. J. Coan is resting his nerves for two weeks at Atlantic City.

M. Frank & Sons, of upper Third avenue, say this has been their best season, especially with gardens and window boxes.

John Young returned June 11 from a trip to St. Louis and Chicago.

The Horticultural Society of New York held a show at the Bronx Park Museum June 9 and 10. The weather was warm and the crowd small, but the exhibits were up to the usual high mark.

The sympathy of the trade is extended to W. E. Maynard, of Great Neck, L. I., in the death of his daughter.

Incorporation papers have been issued to the Heatherhome Seed & Nursery Co., which recently took over the business of the Knight & Struck Co. Authority is given to trade in flowers, seeds, plants, bulbs, nursery stock, etc., with $105,000 capital stock. The incorporators are Julius Roehrs, Thomas Knight and George F. Struck.

The Market.

June weddings are creating considerable demand with the retailers, which provides an outlet for the quantity of stock in the market. Flowers are plentiful and in consequence prices are reasonable. Carnations are abundant in many varieties and are of good quality. Peonies are coming in quantities and other spring flowers are sufficient for the demand.

Various Notes.

A large eagle made of red, white and blue crepe-paper rosettes and an American flag of the same material form parts of a patriotic window display of Fred P. Wolfinger.

spring has held back outdoor roses and spring flowers and the churches were obliged to turn to the florists for flowers for decorative purposes. R. B. M.

OGDENSBURG, N. Y.

As late as June 8 John Lawrence was cutting some of the finest Darwin tulips from a bed of 1,000 intended, but too late, for Memorial day. Peonies are not yet showing color. The hardness of Dendrobium chrysotoxum is noted by a plant bearing ten large trusses of bud and bloom in apparently a state of starvation. What would it do if it were stimulated? A single petunia worthy of the notice of all who grow plants for bedding or window boxes, is named Pride of Portland. It comes true from seed, is of robust habit, a beautiful shade of deep pink, with white throat, and fringed. A bed of snapdragon proved its full worth on Memorial day. Mrs. Sawyer is considered a profitable rose for the small as well as the large grower. It will supersede Killarney here. Richmond also will be discarded.

Mentioning the subject of coal, Mr.
Lawrence told of a bank containing 50,000 tons, which took fire from spontaneous combustion and burned like a volcano for weeks last winter, while everyone looked on, realizing their share was going up in smoke.
"Now, though there is no promise of any," quoth he, "we live in hope."
Nil desperandum. W. M.

Burlington, Vt.—John Wilson is giving up his retail store, intending to confine his business to the greenhouses.
Mr. Wilson says he will give the other fellows a show. He has been in active service here more than thirty years and does not have to worry about an empty coal bin next winter.

President, Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.;
Secretary-Treasurer, O. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.
Thirty-fifth annual convention, Detroit, June 19 to 21, 1917.

THE government reports that to June 1 6,885 cars of Bermuda onions had been moved out of Texas, against a total movement of 4,903 cars in 1916.

IN spite of the reported arrangement by which exports will be resumed, the boats of the Holland-America line still leave Rotterdam without cargo.

THIS week's mail from Japan brings word that the lily bulb market there is tightening up; bulbs are becoming scarce, and prices higher. It is understood that many lots have been sold at low prices.

H. W. BUCKBEE served as a special deputy United States marshal in dealing with the slacker riot at Rockford, Ill., last week. He was one of the guard who took thirty-five rioters to the county jail at Belvidere, arriving there at 2 a. m.

GEORGE W. KERR, of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., has just returned to Philadelphia after a trip to California and is enthusiastic relative to Burpee's early-flowering sweet peas being grown there, produced from crosses made by him at Fordhook Farms. In spite of rather unfavorable weather conditions at the beginning of the season, the crops are looking well. Although there have been reports of the depredations of aphids among the growing crops of sweet peas along the coast, he says he states with pleasure that, by constant hard work, they have kept this pest in check.

IOWA SEEDSMEN CONVENE.

What with a good season behind them and a prosperous future before them, it was a happy crowd of Hawkeye seedsmen who assembled at Des Moines June 12 for the annual meeting of the Iowa Seed Dealers' Association. Although the high water kept many away, according to Secretary Eldridge, there were plenty of help to "put over" a splendid session.

The balloting for new officers resulted in the choice of the following: President, F. H. Page, of the Iowa Seed Co., Des Moines; vice-president, C. E. Ather-ton, of Deep River; secretary, A. M. Eldridge, of the Henry Field Seed Co., Shenandoah, reelected; treasurer, John T. Hamilton, of Cedar Rapids, reelected.

A banquet was held after the business session June 12 and the following day most of those who attended made a trip to Ames to get in touch with the work being done at the agricultural college.

EXPORT LICENSES.

The Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce considers it advisable for exporters at the present time, when making contracts for export, to state in the body of the contract that the sale is made subject to the seller's ability to secure an export permit, if one should be required. The Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce issues this warning in view of the probability of Congress enacting legislation under which the export of certain commodities to certain countries may be controlled by the issuance of licenses. If this is done the exporter will save himself much annoyance and possible claims for damage if this clause is inserted in the bill of sale.

of soy beans for food and manufacturing purposes, there is no likelihood of over-production this year. The soy bean also is a soil improver and the straw is valuable for feeding purposes.

As a seed crop the soy bean should be planted about June 1 in the north. However, in the southern part of the central states plantings may be made as late as June 15. Where clover or grass has winterkilled, the soy bean may be planted to good advantage. The department tells farmers considerable quantities of seeds still are available for planting, but the trade understands the market is bare.

IT IS NOT A WARRANTY.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture makes the following announcement regarding the recent meeting of seedsmen at Washington:

"With a view to devising some practical means for furnishing the farmer essential information concerning the commercial seeds he is buying, the Secretary of Agriculture recently invited representatives of the seed trade to confer with the department on the subject.

"Officers of the American Seed Trade Association and of the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association, as well as representatives of twenty-one leading seed firms, were present.

"Because of the vital importance of the matter in relation to the effort to enlarge the production of staple food and feed crops, the department suggested that the seed trade voluntarily furnish the following information with the field crop seeds they sell:

- (1) Name of seedsman.
- (2) Kind of seed.
- (3) Proportion of pure live seed present, with month and year of germination test.
- (4) Country or locality of origin in the case of the following imported seeds: Beans, soy beans, Turkestan alfalfa, and red clover from southern Europe and Chile.

"The representatives of the seed trade present agreed to adopt these suggestions with reference to their own business, and the officers of the associations represented agreed to recommend that these suggestions be adopted by all firms included in their membership. The question of such adoption is now being submitted to individual seedsmen

ZVOLANEK'S

WINTER ORCHID-FLOWERING SWEET PEA SEED

The Sweet Pea Seed produced by the world-famous expert, Anton C. Zvolanek, needs no introduction. Every variety he has produced has proved so thoroughly superior and reliable that each season finds the orders exceeding the seed available. We urge ordering now at these official prices.

NOVELTIES FOR 1917-18

All novelties here mentioned were under test for several years among many sweet pea growers and several government experiment stations. Each one is a real novelty and an improvement over the past. Never before was there such magnificent set of sweet peas introduced. Every one is of strict commercial value.

- Zvolanek's Pale Blue. The same shape and size as the Mrs. Chas. Zvolanek, only the color is a very light clear blue; entirely new color in sweet peas.
- Zvolanek's Lavender Spanolin. Practically the same curly shape and size as the white Mrs. M. Spanolin, only the color is the finest lavender.
- Zvolanek's Marquis. Navy blue, the same color as the old well known Grandiflora Le Marquis, only double the size.
- Zvolanek's Miss Y. Glibert. Fiery scarlet orange, does not burn on hot days—keeping its fiery color in summer or in winter.
- Zvolanek's Watchung Orchid. Blackseeded white; it is the same size and shape as White Orchid, but as blackseeded variety it germinates much easier.
- Zvolanek's Helen Keller Orchid. White pink variegated. Good where collection is wanted.
- Zvolanek's Miss Irene Pilat. Largest light salmon pink, three shades darker than Mrs. Sim Orchid, and double the size.

OLDER WINTER ORCHID VARIETIES

BICOLOR.

- Christmas Pink Orchid. Standard bright dark rose, wings white; this variety is perfectly fixed, of the largest size, and largely in demand by the eastern and middle states trade. On this variety there is nothing to improve. It will be the leader for the next ten years to come. 1 oz., $1.50; 4 oz., $5.00; 1 lb., $18.00.
- The Czar. Most as the former, only the wings are pink. Price: 1 oz., $1.50; 4 oz., $5.00; 1 lb., $18.00.
- Pink and White Orchid. Of the Blanch Ferry color; better mixed now than in former years. Synonymous:—Sensation, Fordhook, Pink and White. Price: 1 oz., 50c; 4 oz., $1.75; 1 lb., $5.00.

SHELL PINK

- Miss Louise Gude. The largest and best colored in the shell pink class; only introduced last year, but whoever has once grown this splendid sweet pea will always do so. Price: 1 oz., $4.00; 4 oz., $12.00; 1 lb., $40.00.
- Mrs. A. A. Skach. The leader in the pinks amongst thousands of florists. Price: 1 oz., 50c; 4 oz., $1.75; 1 lb., $5.00.
- Morning Star. Lighter pink, long stems and some earlier than former. Price: 1 oz., $1.50; 4 oz., $5.00; 1 lb., $18.00.
- Mrs. Jos. Manda. Synonymous: Salma Swenson, by opening light pink, increasing darker pink as the flowers get older—curly flowers. 1 oz., 75c; 4 oz., $2.50; 1 lb., $8.00.
- Doiansky Orchid. Synonymous: Early Song Bird, light shell pink. 1 oz., 75c; 4 oz., $2.50; 1 lb., $8.00.
- Bohemian Girl. Darker shell pink, standard orange blush, very artistic by artificial light. Price: 1 oz., 75c; 4 oz., $2.50; 1 lb., $8.00.

WHITE and BLUSH.

- White Orchid. Synonymous: Concord White. Fordhook White. For six years the leader in white. Price: 1 oz., 50c; 4 oz., $1.75; 1 lb., $5.00.
- Bridal Veil. Synonymous: Early Snowflakes, fine frilled white. Both of those varieties are white seeded; special attention must be given to start the seed. If watered before sprouting very few will come up; start the seed in damp sand or sawdust, but avoid watering until fully sprouted. 1 oz., 75c; 4 oz., $2.50; 1 lb., $8.00.
- Mrs. M. Spanolin. Synonymous: Fordhook, Sankey, well known blackseeded curly white. 1 oz., 75c; 4 oz., $2.50; 1 lb., $8.00.
- Venus. Synonymous: Fordhook Dainty, for six years known as the grandest, best shaped flower of white, edges pink. Price: 1 oz., 75c; 4 oz., $2.50; 1 lb., $8.00.

LAVENDER, BLUE and MAROON.

- Mrs. Chas. A. Zvolanek. The largest and best clear lavender. 1 oz., $5.00; 4 oz., $18.00; 1 lb., $60.00.
- Zvolanek's Blue. Very large of the brightest blue, or Blue Jay color. I introduced the two varieties only one year ago, and today we have already booked over half of the expected crop. Everyone who has seen these two varieties wants them. No commercial florist can afford to be without them. 1 oz., $5.00; 4 oz., $18.00; 1 lb., $60.00.
- Mrs. A. Lehman. Light blue of the Flora Norton color. 1 oz., $5.00; 4 oz., $18.00; 1 lb., $60.00.
- Rev. Father N. C. Raley. Lavender lilac. 1 oz., $5.00; 4 oz., $18.00; 1 lb., $60.00.
- Black Lady. Dark Maroon, very large. Price: 1 oz., $5.00; 4 oz., $18.00; 1 lb., $60.00.
- Lavender Orchid. Well known lavender pink. Synonymous: Fordhook Pink. 1 oz., 50c; 4 oz., $1.75; 1 lb., $5.00.
- Lavender Nora. Finest lavender of the Unwin type. 1 oz., 50c; 4 oz., $1.75; 1 lb., $5.00.
- Lavender Queen. Synonymous: Anita Wehrmann. Early Heather; for over 8 years grown by our customers. Very good lavender. Price: 1 oz., 50c; 4 oz., $1.75; 1 lb., $5.00.

WINTER GRANDIFLORA SWEET PEAS.

- Zvolanek's Pink. Large shell pink.
- Greenbrook. White blushed lavender.
- Governor Fort. Salmon pink.
- Improved Pink Beauty. Brilliant dark rose.
- Mrs. W. W. Smalley. Light satin pink.
- Watchung. Earliest white.
- Mrs. A. Wallace. Lavender.
- Orange Bird. Orange Salmon.
- Blue Jay. Bright blue. Synonymous: Cord blue.
- Fl. Denzer. White.
- Jack Hunter. Yellow.
- The Moor. Dark maroon. Price: 1 oz., 15c; 4 oz., 50c; 1 lb., 75c; larger lots at 50c per pound.

- Zvolanek's Mrs. Paul Dusha. Very fine clear light pink. It can be described as Winter-Flowering Elfrida Pearson, which it resembles very closely; it is only larger and a more fiery pink.

- Zvolanek's Miss Gertrude Welch. Dark shell pink on white ground.

- Zvolanek's Gudemore. Yellow marbled with pink. Mr. Wm. F. Gude says: "This is one of the most artistic winter sweet peas you have ever originated."

- The last four named are of the same large size and shape, all being the result of one single happy cross; parentage: Elfrida Pearson on Gov. Fort.

- All novelties will be ready in August, and the seed will be mailed directly to the growers from Lompoc, California.

- Price: ¼ oz., $4.00; ½ oz., $7.00; 1 oz., $12.00.

- All of the following varieties do not need much introduction, as they are grown by many thousands of growers.

- Mrs. M. Anderson. Synonymous: Concord Purple.

- Price: 1 oz., $1.50; 4 oz., $5.00; 1 lb., $18.00.

- Nubian Orchid. Maroon blue.

- Price: 1 oz., $1.50; 4 oz., $5.00; 1 lb., $18.00.

- Santa Ynes. Lilac.

- Price: 1 oz., $1.50; 4 oz., $5.00; 1 lb., $18.00.

- Xmas Captain Orchid. Standard maroon, wings sky blue. This color is well liked among the florists.

- Price: 1 oz., $1.50; 4 oz., $5.00; 1 lb., $18.00.

RED, ROSE and ORANGE.

- Zvolanek's Red. The largest flowering sweet pea, on extremely long stems, and of the brightest scarlet red; very tall.

- Britannia. Crimson scarlet, the vines being covered all winter with fine large flowers.

- Price, for both: 1 oz., $4.00; 4 oz., $12.00; 1 lb., $40.00.

- Orange Orchid. Fine commercial salmon orange color. 1 oz., 50c; 4 oz., $1.75; 1 lb., $5.00.

- Belgian Hero. Synonymous: Concord Salmon. Early Morning Star, bright orange salmon, very good in winter, but it burns during the warmer days. 1 oz., 50c; 4 oz., $1.75; 1 lb., $5.00.

- Servian Prince. Fine magenta rose. 1 oz., 50c; 4 oz., $1.75; 1 lb., $5.00.

- Red Orchid. Synonymous: Concord Red, large crimson red. 1 oz., 50c; 4 oz., $1.75; 1 lb., $5.00.

- President Wilson. Magenta, large curly flower. 1 oz., 50c; 4 oz., $1.75; 1 lb., $5.00.

- The Beauty. This has been known for some years as Re-selected Orchid Beauty; it is double the size, the flowers are more apart, making very large bunches, the color is a very dark fiery rose. All commercial growers want it. Price: 1 oz., $1.00; 4 oz., $3.00; 1 lb., $10.00.

- Orchid Beauty. Dark rose, for last six years the leader in this color among the greenhouse men. Price: 1 oz., 50c; 4 oz., $1.75; 1 lb., $5.00.

- Mrs. Sim Orchid. Synonymous: Rose Queen, Concord Pink, light pink, slightly flushed with salmon. Price: 1 oz., 75c; 4 oz., $2.50; 1 lb., $8.00.

- Salmon Orchid. Synonymous: Early Spring Maid, light salmon. Price: 1 oz., 75c; 4 oz., $2.50; 1 lb., $8.00.

- Miss Florence Roland. Salmon on yellow ground. Price: 1 oz., 75c; 4 oz., $2.50; 1 lb., $8.00.

- Apricot Orchid (Apricot). This seems to be more in favor each year, especially by florists who retail. Price: 1 oz., 75c; 4 oz., $2.50; 1 lb., $8.00.

- Golden Orchid. Light yellow.

- Price: 1 oz., 75c; 4 oz., $2.50; 1 lb., $8.00.

- Miss Flora Fabing. Combination of pink, salmon and yellow colors; very large flower and tall grower.

- Yarraua. This is the only winter sweet pea which was not originated by us; the seed is grown from an Australian strain. Color and growth is the same as the former, only standard is more hooded.

- Price: Both, 1 oz., 50c; 4 oz., $1.75; 1 lb., $5.00.

GOLD MEDAL MIXTURE

This mixture consists practically of every Winter-Orchid Flowering variety listed, besides many novelties not yet introduced. Each color is properly balanced, only a few of the maroon, variegated and reds are in the lot. Last year we sold nearly a quarter of a million packages, which had again been resold by retail florists who maintain seed counters. This is the most satisfactory sweet pea mixture, as it is in full bloom at any season—winter or summer.

- Price: 1 package of about 100 seeds each, 15c; 100 packages, $10.00; 1,000 packages, $80.00; 5,000 packages, $500.00, net cash.

LATE SUMMER-FLOWERING SWEET PEAS.

- Pink Spencer. Best shell pink.

- Burnless Orange Spencer. Salmon orange.

- Re-Selected Helen Lewis. Orange.

- Lavender Spencer. Of the Flora Norton color.

- Lilac Spencer. Asta Ohn color.

- Freda White. Same as King White.

- Duplex Red. Best red.

- Fiery Bird. Scarlet orange.

WITH NASHVILLE SEEDSMEN.

I made a complete round of the seed houses last week and also visited a number of other stores that have seed departments, making inquiries as to the volume of business done and the quantity of seeds on hand. All agreed that business has been by far the heaviest this year that Nashville ever has known and, while seed business is usually practically over by this time, sales are only limited at the present time by the quantity of stock on hand.

Mr. Ewing, of McKay, Reece & Co., the oldest and largest seed firm in Nashville, stated that they did not have a Lima bean of any sort left in the store and were unable to secure any more. He stated that Red Valentine is the only variety of string beans that they have on hand at present and the supply of these will be exhausted in a few more days.

On the entire round I did not find enough cow peas and soy beans to supply the normal demand for a week and most of the stock I did find was cheap mixtures, only good for hay.

Everything is in fine condition for good crops, however. Soy beans and cow peas are going into the ground under the most favorable conditions and the supply of seeds should be good this fall. Rye, oats and wheat will be ready to harvest within the next ten days and all that did not freeze out is in excellent condition. The yield of rye promises to be the heaviest for years. F. B.

"THERE'S PANSIES, THAT'S FOR THOUGHTS"

The name "pansy" is derived from a French word signifying a thought.

In England the custom is prevalent of wearing a pansy if one has a friend at the front, and we are told that in France pansies are used more than any other flower to decorate soldiers' graves.

These beautiful customs of our Allies will surely spread in this country, increasing the popularity of the always popular pansy.

Prepare now for next year's increased demand by planting Toole's Pansy seed.

William Toole & Son are pioneers in the raising of pansy seed in America.

Thirty-five years' experience in selecting, breeding, studying, and growing pansy seed and plants especially to suit the wants of American people, have resulted in our superior strain of pansy seed.

Our aim is to grow the kind of seeds we would like to buy ourselves.

Our endeavor is to combine a wide range of bright and pleasing colors with large size flowers, heavy substance of petals, together with an attractive round flower, many of which are ruffled and lightly fringed.

TOOLE'S GIANT PRIZE STRAIN

This strain contains the best pansies we know how to produce. Besides colors and shades of our own selection it contains such novelties and varieties from other growers as we have found worth while after careful trials.

It will produce flowers of large size, splendid form and substance and in the widest range of shades and colors. Packet, 20c.; trade packet of 1,000 seeds, 40c.; 1/8-oz., 90c.; 1/4-oz., $1.25; 1 oz., $5.

COLOR MIXTURES

10. Blue Shades—This is a mixture of all blue and purple varieties of pansies.

20. Black Pansies.

30. Brown Shades—This is a mixture of all the beautiful brown varieties of pansies.

50. Red Shades—All of the showy red and purple kinds are combined in this mixture.

60. White Mixture—All of the different varieties of white flowered pansies are to be found in this mixture.

70. Yellow Shades—Into this mixture we put equal parts of the various shades of yellow pansies.

80. Fancy Varieties—All the fancy edged varieties, such as Freya, Silver Edge, Fire King, etc., are included in this very popular mixture.

100. Masterpiece—Large curled and ruffled flowers in wide range of colors, mostly with large dark center markings.

Leaflet on pansy culture sent free on request.

Any of the above mixtures or varieties, packet, 20c.; trade packet of 1,000 seeds, 40c.; 1/8-oz., 90c.; 1/4-oz., $1.25; 1 oz., $5.00.

New crop ready June 15 to 20.

ILLINOIS PURE SEED BILL.

Applies to All Agricultural Seeds.

One of the most drastic of the so-called pure seed bills thus far offered in any state legislature was passed by the lower house of the Illinois legislature June 6 and is in the hands of the Senate committee on agriculture. The seed trade at Chicago has had several conferences with the House committee and others at Springfield, but did not succeed in securing important modification of the bill, which relates only to agricultural seeds. The bill as passed is as follows:

Section 1. Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly: That no person, firm, association or corporation shall, by himself, his agent, or as representative of any other person, firm, or corporation, sell or offer for sale or distribution within the state for seeding purposes any lot or package of agricultural seeds exceeding ten pounds in weight unless the same, when put up in either open or closed packages, shall have attached thereto a label on which is plainly printed or written, in the English language, the following:

(a) The commonly accepted name of the agricultural seed.

(b) Full name and address of seedsman, importer, agent, dealer, or other vendor and an identification lot number.

(c) Statement of the purity of the seed contained therein, as follows: Percentage by weight within the limits of a one per cent variation of seed as named under (a) section 1, except orchard and blue grass, in which last named cases variation may not exceed ten per cent.

Percentage by weight of foreign matter, other than foreign seed, within the limits of a ten per cent variation, if said foreign matter exceeds one-half of one per cent of the total weight.

Name and number of each of the following noxious weed seed, per pound, within the limits of a ten per cent variation, of seed designated under (a) section 1: Buckhorn, bracted plain-tain, sheep sorrel, Canada thistle, quack grass, dock, Russian thistle, ox-eye daisy, cinquefoil,

(d) Percentage of germination of field seed corn, rape, soy beans, wheat, oats, rye and barley, alfalfa, timothy and red, mammoth, sweet and alsike clovers within a variation of five per cent by test, giving the month and year in which test was made.

(e) State and county where field corn was grown and where alfalfa and clover seed was grown, if known, and if not known, this fact shall be stated on the tag.

(f) Year in which seed was grown, if known; if not known, statement of this fact shall be made on the tag.

The provisions of this section shall not apply to sales by retailers direct to the consumer of seed taken from original packages remaining in the possession of the retailer, provided said original packages are and remain properly tagged, as provided in this section.

Section 2. For the purpose of this act the

New Early-flowering or Winter-blooming Giant Pansies

An entirely new and distinct strain of Pansies. The main advantage of these new Pansies over all hitherto existing Pansies is the extreme earliness of flowering and the unusual hardiness, which enables them to withstand quite severe winters, and to bloom right on into the summer. Sown at the same time as other Pansies, they begin flowering the early part of March, or as soon as the snow is off the ground, many times having four or five large flowers to a plant, when all other Pansies are only showing buds. The flowers are large, well formed and fragrant. They are highly recommended for autumn planting and for very early bedding, as well as for early cut flowers.

term "agricultural seeds" shall include seed of wheat, field corn, oats, rye, barley, canes, red and mammoth, alsike, sweet and other clovers, alfalfa and seeds of other leguminous field crops, rape, timothy, blue grass and orchard grass.

The Noxious Weed Seeds.

Section 3. No agricultural seeds, as defined in section 2, shall be sold or offered for sale or distribution or sown within the state, which contain, in greater numbers in the aggregate than one to 200 of the seeds under examination, the seeds of the following noxious weeds: Buckhorn (Plantago lanceolata); bracted plaintain (Plantago aristata); sheep sorrel (Rumex Acetosella); Canadian thistle (Carduus arvensis by Robs); quack grass (Agropyron repens); curled dock (Rumex crispus); Russian thistle (Salsola Kali tragus); ox-eye daisy (Chrysanthemum Leucanthemum); cinquefoil (Potentilla Monspeliensis); wild mustard (Brassica arvensis); clover dodder (Cuscuta epithymum); alfalfa dodder (Cuscuta epithymum); field dodder (Cuscuta arvensis); corn cockle (Agrostemma Githago); morning-glory (Convolvulus arvensis and Convolvulus Sepium).

Where the seed of the said noxious weeds herein mentioned are present in greater numbers than one to 2,000 of the seed being examined, a statement shall be so made on the label attached to the package naming the said noxious weed seeds present therein.

Sales Affected by Act.

Section 4. The provisions of this act shall not be construed as applying to (a) seed, possessed, exposed for sale, or sold for food purposes only; (b) sales of seed to merchants to be re-cleaned before being sold or exposed for sale for seeding purposes; (c) seed that is in store for the purpose of re-cleaning, or which is not possessed, sold or offered for sale for seeding purposes within the state; (d) mixtures of seeds for lawn or other seeding purposes except that the sale of such mixtures is subject to the following restrictions:

It shall be unlawful to sell or offer for sale for seeding purposes within the state any mixture of seeds for lawns or other seeding purposes which contain more than twenty-five per cent by weight of chaff, trash, dirt or other similar inert matter, or more than two per cent by weight of any weed seeds.

(e) Agricultural seeds grown upon, or sold and delivered from the farm by the growers thereof to a buyer, who himself is to use the seed, for seeding purposes only, within twenty miles of the place where such seeds were grown. If in any such case or in any case the purchaser at the time of such sale shall obtain a certificate from the seller stating that the seed is sold subject to the provisions of this act, then all of the provisions of this act shall apply to such sale.

Inspectors Authorized.

Section 5. The enforcement of this act is hereby placed in the Department of Agriculture of the State of Illinois under the supervision of the director of said department, and he is hereby empowered to appoint such inspectors and assistants as may be necessary to execute its provisions.

Section 6. It shall be the duty of the Department of Agriculture of the State of Illinois to

...THE... Chrysanthemum

By Arthur Herrington

Formerly president Chrysanthemum Society of America.

The most complete and comprehensive work on the cultivation of the chrysanthemum that has yet been published in America. Its scope and character may be gleaned from the list of contents, which comprises chapters on composts, planting; benches, boxes or pots; general cultural details; crown and terminal buds; feeding, its object and application; care of the buds; exhibition and judging; specimen plants, plants in pots; raising from seed and hybridizing; sports; hardy chrysanthemums; chrysanthemums for south and west; insect pests and diseases; classification and selection of varieties for special purposes; history of the chrysanthemum, etc. The book will be welcomed for the lucid, comprehensive, as well as the practical character of its contents. Handsomely illustrated. 168 pages, 5x7 inches. Price 50c postpaid.

WENATCHEE, WASH.

The Milot-Mills Co. has started to build a new addition to its establishment, the lumber, all cypress, arriving from Chicago in twenty days, which is considered fast time. Business with the company has been good, especially in vegetable plants. The new flower and seed store met with such success that it has been enlarged.

The C. H. Raney Co. has assigned its property to the Merchants' Bureau. It is reported that the liabilities greatly exceed the assets. This is the fourth concern that has failed in the same location.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

June has started out finely, notwithstanding the war and troublesome times. Weddings have become numerous and a scarcity of choice small stock suitable for bouquets and corsages has developed. Valley is almost out of the market and the supply of orchids is not nearly up to the demand. In roses we are being helped out considerably by shipments from the north, Russell, Hoosier Beauty, Hadley, Ophelia and others being superior to anything at present in the home market. Greenhouse carnations are still in short supply, but field stock is going to the dump in large quantities, or is given to the hospitals.

Gladioli are now arriving in considerable quantities and in larger variety than before. The old scarlet, brengleysensis, seems to have disappeared from here, but the earlier red types have been plentiful. America and Panama are fine now, so are the Ghent hybrids. In outdoor flowers delphiniums are making a grand display in conjunction with yellow composites of the coreopsis and similar types. The retailers' windows are especially showy now. The supply of greens has shortened up a little, but there is still no scarcity. Funeral work has been good, but not enough to keep the surplus cleaned up in the wholesale houses.

Various Notes.

Owing to the confusion in the place of meeting, there was a small attendance at the June meeting of the Los Angeles Horticultural Society. President Taylor's paper was postponed.

George Smith has decided to relinquish the retail store at Seventh and Figueroa streets and will devote his whole time to the nursery and landscape business. At the new nursery at Sherman stock is coming along in fine shape and Mr. Smith reports an excellent response to his catalogue this season.

Dr. C. H. Castle, who for several years has been interested in the culture of gladioli and other bulbous stock, has quite a number of flowering bulbs this year and is disposing of his cut to the L. A. Floral Co.

J. Whitehead, for many years associated with Dieterich & Turner and later with H. W. Turner, of Montebello, stole a march on his friends lately and was married to Miss Anderson, in Los Angeles, afterwards leaving for a short trip to San Diego. Mr. Whitehead is well known to the trade here and has a host of friends to wish him happiness.

Wolfskills' & Morris Goldenson reported a nice order for seventy-five corsages and a number of baskets for a recent graduation. Albert Goldenson, manager here, says that business kept up remarkably well during May and that the orders for June indicate another good month.

H. Reeve Darling is not given to optimistic statements, but he says that if June goes ahead at anything like the clip it started he will be registering satisfaction at least a yard wide. Seven weddings in one day and the regular amount of funeral work sounds like "something doing."

S. Martin & Co. report a rather sudden drop in out-of-town inquiries and shipping business, which is always to be expected after Memorial day. Local calls have been many and insistent.

Since having the entire management of the business on his own hands, Thomas Wright, of Wright's Flower Shop, is a busy florist, and although he is always willing to greet the visitor, one hates to take up his time. The busy aspect of the store and the spirit of cheerfulness and good nature which radiates from the proprietor downwards, show that the business is coming in fine form and June is the long suit at this store.

Alois Frey, of Crown Point, Ind., arrived in the city this week, his visit being in connection with the lawsuit pending between him and G. Prechtel, regarding the colored freesias.

The sympathy of all in the trade is with John Bodger, Jr., in the loss of his little son, John Hall Bodger, who died June 3, at the age of 2½ years.

F. Z. Howe, who with his brother, John Howe, of Tucson, carried on business under the style of Howe Bros., has left Arizona and is now located in Los Angeles. He has for some time been interested in battery and other electric matters, and has located here in that business. John Howe retains the nursery and florist business at Tucson.

The California Cut Flower Co. is making a magnificent display of northern roses.

H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

The usual post-holiday situation prevailed during the remainder of the week following Memorial day and interest in registration had a diverting effect upon business June 5, but the slump was hardly so pronounced as was anticipated under the circumstances. As a matter of fact, retail business has held up remarkably well, there being quite a bit of funeral work, a good many small hotel and home decorations and the usual run of early June weddings. On the other hand, shipping orders dropped off abruptly at the end of May, which is expected at this time of the year, when the warm weather begins to hover over the interior points. In the absence of the out-of-town demand, stock has a tendency to accumulate here, local business naturally not being sufficiently active to absorb such generous offerings of stock as are now available with the wide assortment of outdoor summer flowers

GLADIOLI

We have secured the entire crop of the famous Riverside Growers of Gladioli and the flowers are extra fine this year. We can ship any quantity, at any time. Send your orders along and say whether you wish the flowers shipped tight or open.

approaching their height. It is perhaps misleading to say that shipping business has stopped without making an exception of strawflowers, as these are being forwarded in considerable quantities.

Unfortunately, carnations were rather scarce for Memorial day and have since then been in too heavy supply, thus making it difficult to maintain prices even on excellent stock. Sweet peas amount to a glut, although quantities of them are disposed of every day. There is little to say about roses. The best Hadley, Ophelia and Russell maintain their popularity well, but a good many other varieties, especially short-stemmed roses, find their way to the street stands at whatever the venders choose to offer. Few of the large-flowering gladioli as yet have arrived, and the limited supply cleans up readily. Baby gladioli are quite plentiful, however. Peonies are going off crop and will not last much longer. Spanish iris is about gone too.

Among the miscellaneous flowers co-reopsis stands out prominently on account of its splendid quality, the blooms being unusually large and a great many of the stems being two feet in length. There are plenty of orchids, gardenias and valley.

Horticultural Society Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society, which was held June 2, was one of the best meetings held this year, both from the standpoint of attendance and interesting proceedings. Mr. Bagge gave a talk on "Fakes and Near-Fakes," which was well received. Applications for membership were submitted and accepted from W. B. Clarke, manager of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, and Victor Ferrari, son of Peter Ferrari, who is an active member. As a rather unusual feature, C. W. Ward sent down some azalea plants from Eureka, which were presented by Mr. Clarke. In connection with the exhibit Mr. Clarke gave an interesting lecture on the growth of this flower, also the growth of the daffodil and narcissus, making effective comparisons between California-grown bulbs and those Holland-grown by means of photographs showing the different stages of development. The azaleas were fine specimens of 1-year-old plants, the growth being hardy. For the picnic committee, all preparations were reported complete for the annual event. Following the regular society meeting, the flower show committee met and decided to prepare for a show to be held the third week in March, 1918. Several hundred dollars have already been signed up to make the event a big success. The evening's exhibits made a creditable showing. Richard Diener,

Mr. Jaeger is one of the pioneers of the florists' business in San Francisco. Bernadau succeeds Mr. Jaeger as manager of the MacRorie & McLaren store, at 141 Powell street. He has been with the company for a little more than a year, but that period represents only a small portion of his connection with the trade, as he practically grew up in the business. uncle, E. Servcau, who is in the business on Fillmore street. He left that establishment to come downtown, thinking the opportunities were better, and evidently he was right in that respect.

The Art Floral Co. did considerable work for Les Darcy, when the boxer's remains passed through San Francisco en route to Australia. For the boxers of New York they arranged a basket of roses, containing forty dozen Radianee, Russell and Ophelia roses. For the boxers of Chicago they made a large wreath and for the Eagles two large pieces.

Marie Louise violets at this time of the year attracted considerable attention at the Art Floral Co. store last week. They were specially grown for that establishment and were easily cleaned up.

H. Plath has his automobile in first-class condition again, a complete overhauling having been necessitated by an accident which he was in recently.

The United Flower & Supply Co. reports a good demand for its new Nippon statice. Mr. Onishi believes the company is the only concern to have this variety, and it is shipping a great deal of it out of the city.

C. Navlet & Co. have moved into their new store at San Jose, Cal., but they still have some finishing touches to make, according to Mr. Picetti, who has charge of the Emporium department in this city, which is conducted by the same company. Mr. Picetti says the demand for plants has held up well.

C. Kooyman, president of the C. Kooyman Co., Inc., reports a nice lot of business coming in as the result of G. Madvig's trip east. The latter, who is secretary-treasurer of the company, has been gone several weeks and will probably remain away for some time yet. Here a nice shipping demand is reported for strawflowers.

J. A. Axell, manager of the E. W. McLellan Co., says the demand for good Russell, Ophelia and Hadley roses absorbs the supply nicely and that general business leaves no ground for complaint.

Business at B. M. Joseph's store has held up unusually well following Memorial day, according to Manager Fred J. Bertrand.

Miss Bertha Cohn, of the Bellevue Florists, says wedding and banquet decorations are the principal feature at present. This work has about offset the slump in counter trade that followed Memorial day.

Friends of Patrick Orr, of the Albert O. Stein force, regret to learn of the death of Mr. Orr's father.

That business is excellent, is the verdict given at Albert O. Stein's place on Sutter street. Mr. Stein handled quantities of flowers for Memorial day and says that table decorations continue to require considerable attention, both hotel and home affairs. Last week he did a big decoration at the Bohemian Club for the Chamber of Commerce, the color scheme being red, white and blue. He has an elaborate decoration for a golden wedding anniversary June 12.

F. J. Bertrand, manager of the B. M. Joseph store, says the force was extremely busy for a few days before Memorial day.

Miss Recardie Lee Murray has no complaints to make about business, as she is kept busy dividing her attention between her store on Geary street, near Larkin, and the Clift hotel stand.

The Market.

Business has been too brisk since Memorial day to allow the florists much rest. The everyday trade has been good; numerous social affairs of a small nature, an unusual number of weddings and a steady stream of graduations have kept the florists busy and have cleared the stock daily. The weather has improved greatly, and this is most noticeable in the way stock is coming in. Sweet peas, carnations, roses and stocks are in better supply, but are not in excess of the demand.

A Magnificent Lavender Freesia

The only commercial colored Freesia in the world, not to be compared or judged in the same class with any other colored Freesia. It stands alone for size, strength, beauty and fragrance. The flowers are very large, with long, heavy stems with foliage reaching well up the stems, and are highly fragrant.

It is a Freesia that will stand the test of time and will be grown by all florists when stock can be offered at commercial prices. Was awarded a Certificate of Merit at the Pasadena Flower Show.

Stock is limited; send in your orders as soon as possible. Is offered in two shades of color, a bluish lavender and a redish lavender. Only good sized, flowering bulbs are offered.

Gladioli are still scarce and few peonies are coming in from local growers.

Some retailers are receiving shipments from Oregon, but the Oregon market seems to be short of peonies also. Lilacs are on the wane, but they are not missed by the florists, as the supply overstepped the demand. Bedding stock and porch boxes are moving slowly. Most of the seed stores have sold out all the standard varieties of vegetable seeds.

has created a strong demand for vegetable seeds and plants. Unfavorable weather caused many of the early-sown seeds to rot, and there has lately been a lively scramble for plants to take their place. The movement of bedding stock is brisk and some growers hope to clean up, though it seems hardly possible that they can do so at this late date.

DANDELIONS IN LAWNS.

Please tell me how to kill dandelions in a lawn. C. E. S.—Wash.

After trying all varieties of weed killers, lawn sand and other advertised mixtures, as well as injecting acids into the crowns of the plants, I long ago came to the conclusion that the only real remedy for dandelions was to dig them out, with their roots anywhere from eight to eighteen inches in length, using a spading fork for the purpose. You can cut the tops off with knives, even taking out four to five inches of root, but it will only give temporary relief, as the remaining portion of the root will send up new growths before long. By picking off the flowers and preventing the plants from going to seed, you can, in a great measure, reduce the dandelion nuisance, especially if your neighbors will do likewise. C. W.

Berkeley, Cal.—If there is anything in names, the newly-born florists' business of R. R. Newman ought to attain success speedily, for the Newman store is not only situated on Telegraph avenue, but also on the corner of Haste street!

Aberdeen, Wash.—Crammatte is one of those astute gentlemen who combine the sale of confections and flowers. The store is known as "The Home of the Big Soda Fountain," but a cut flower business is done that would be a credit to any city of the size.

Olympia, Wash.—According to a ruling made in an opinion by the attorney general, florists are "nurserymen" within the meaning of the state law and must take out licenses. The point was raised by local florists, who refused to pay the state fee, claiming that the nearest thing to a shrub they grew was the geranium.

their agents or representatives, and shall be taken from a parcel, lot or number of parcels, which shall not be less than ten per cent of the whole lot inspected and shall be thoroughly mixed and then divided into two samples and placed in safe containers, carefully sealed and a label placed on each container, stating the name of the agricultural seed or mixture sampled, the name of the vendor from whose stock said samples were taken, and the date and place of taking such samples, and said labels shall be signed by inspector taking samples; or said samples may be taken in the presence of two disinterested witnesses if the vendor or party in interest fails or refuses to be present, when notified. One of said duplicate samples shall be left with or on the premises of the vendor or party in interest, and the other retained by the inspector for analysis.

Samples for Analysis.

Section 7. All lots of agricultural seeds, as defined in this act, sold for use for seeding purposes within this state, shall have representative samples taken therefrom (or of the original lot of seed from which said lot was taken) within ten days from date of first sale; said sample shall contain not less than one ounce with analysis of purity, and properly identified by name, address and lot number as specified in (b) section 1. It shall be forwarded to the director of the Department of Agriculture, who shall file same and promptly acknowledge receipt thereof. It shall be a misdemeanor punishable under the provisions of this act to use falsely any name, address, identifying lot number, or other distinguishing mark.

Section 8. The results of tests of identified lots of seeds made by the department shall be published in bulletins of the department, together with the names and postoffice addresses of and results of tests made by the persons, firms, associations or corporations from whom samples tested were obtained. When publication of germination test is made it shall include the date of test appearing on the original identification tag and the date of test by the department.

Section 9. The director shall notify any person, firm, association or corporation, the test of whose seed by the department shows more than a reasonable variation from the statement on the identification tag, and said person, firm, association or corporation shall be granted a hearing and upon request a second analysis shall be made, before the result shall be published.

The methods of testing seeds hereunder shall conform to the methods of testing adopted by the Association of Official Seed Analysts or the method of testing used by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Section 10. Statements of purity and germination shall be based upon tests made by the Department of Agriculture of the State of Illinois, or by seed dealers, or their agents, subject to retest and ratification by the said Department of Agriculture when it shall deem necessary.

$100 Maximum Fine.

Section 11. Whoever offers or exposes for sale within this state any agricultural seed, defined in section two (2) of this act without complying with the requirements of sections one (1), three (3) and seven (7) of this act, or whoever falsely marks, labels or numbers any agricultural seed under section one (1) of this act, or sells or offers for sale any mixture the sale of which is prohibited in paragraph (d) of section four (4), shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not more than $100; provided, however, that no prosecution for violation of this act shall be instituted except in the manner following:

When the director of the Department of Agriculture believes or has reason to believe that any person, firm, association or corporation has violated any of the provisions of this act, he shall cause notice of such fact to be given to said person, firm, association or corporation, who, either in person or by agent or attorney, shall have the right under such reasonable rules and regulations as may be prescribed by said director to appear before said director and introduce evidence and said hearing shall be private. If upon said hearing or without such hearing, in case said person fails or refuses to appear, said director shall decide that such person, firm, association or corporation has violated any of the provisions of this act, he shall so certify to the proper prosecuting attorney and request him to prosecute said person according to law for violation of this act, transmitting with said certificate such evidence as he shall deem necessary and proper; whereupon said prosecuting attorney shall prosecute said person according to law.

Section 12. Seed shall be analyzed without cost for farmers who have no seed for sale, under the supervision of the Department of Agriculture. Tags showing identification must accompany samples submitted in all cases.

A fee of 25 cents shall be collected by the Department of Agriculture for each sample of seed tested by the Department of Agriculture under the provisions of this act, except as provided in this section.

The plan is to adjourn the legislature Saturday, June 16, and there seems little prospect that the proponents of the pure seed bill will be able to get the measure through the Senate in the rush of the closing days.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSEYMEN.

President, John Watson, Newark, N. Y.; Vice-president, Lloyd O. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Secretary and Counsel, Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.
Forty-second annual convention, Philadelphia, Pa., June 27 to 29, 1917.

PRICING the peony lists is something of a problem this season. The uncertainty as to importations has much to do with the case.

THE Aurora Nursery Co., Aurora, Ill., dealing almost exclusively in ornamentals, reports the season now closed to have been one of the best.

THIS year C. A. Pfeiffer, nurseryman of Winona, Minn., tried out advertising of a new kind. Instead of buying newspaper space, Mr. Pfeiffer picked up a large quantity of tulip bulbs last fall and set them out in a bed of eighteen rows, each row 200 feet in length. Last month people from several counties came to see the gorgeous sight and, incidentally, to receive the Pfeiffer catalogue.

THE WINTER IN NEBRASKA.

The winter of 1916-17, without an exception, stamped its mark of severity deeper on the trees, shrubs and plants in Nebraska than any other for the last twenty or more years. This was not due so much to the extremely cold weather that prevailed in the eastern portion of the state, but to the prolonged fall and winter drought. Records of the weather bureau show that Nebraska has not experienced such a dry fall and winter in twenty years.

Just how dry the weather was is shown by the following experience: During the middle of February we undertook to move several trees of such size as to require the retention of a frozen ball of earth. All those trees that were dug in the nursery at the University of Nebraska, which is located in a valley, were moved with a good ball of earth, as the soil was frozen to a depth of more than thirty inches. It happened, however, that we had several 10-inch elms that we proposed moving. These trees were located on the campus proper. I would judge that the campus is not more than fifteen feet higher than the nursery.

The soil was broken around these trees in the manner customary when big trees are to be transplanted. The first six inches of soil proved to be fairly well frozen, but that below was not. It was so dry that there was not enough moisture to freeze the soil solid. The soil was very easily moved with a shovel and it crumbled into pieces about the size of small marbles.

Under such conditions many of the big trees have suffered. Old white spruce, together with young specimens, and the silver, or Pfitzeriana, and the Japanese golden junipers, all have been killed. Practically all the arbovitae are in the same shape. With this loss the evergreen collection in our arboretum looks sick, indeed. Many of the deciduous shrubs that were unprotected were severely damaged. Our collection of spiraeas, which comprises some fourteen species, showed that Spiraea sempervirens withstood the conditions best; in fact, it appears not to have suffered at all. But our old standbys, the Vanhouttei and the prunifolia, or the bridal wreath, have lost from one-half to three-fourths of their wood.

Many of our herbaceous perennials were wiped out. The white phlox, believed to be the best border plant for Nebraska, shows only a small amount of life, with a shoot here and there from the roots which last year produced a most wonderful sight.

Daily rains for about a fortnight have done the outdoor carnations a world of good. Peonies now are at their height, and they are among the finest ever seen here.

At the Ira H. Landis place, at Paradise, thousands of peonies are being cut daily. In the cool rooms, with the buds just bursting, they look like so many American Beauty and White Killarney roses.

At the B. F. Barr & Co. farm acres of peonies are in bloom, and at the company's store a peony show of finest order is in progress.

Peter Brown, the geranium and pansy specialist, and Miss Katharine Altick were married June 5. After a short wedding trip they will reside on Ruby street.

Thomas R. Fries, Miss Mary Boehler and Edward Beck, our leading plantmen, report a wonderful business in their line.

It is interesting to note what some of the florists are doing to entrench themselves against the increased costs and the exorbitant prices of coal. Two men are erecting tobacco sheds and will increase their acreage. A third has

The Lancaster County Florists' Club will hold its annual picnic at Hershey park, June 21. Special trolley cars will leave Center square at 7:15 a. m. The fare, round trip, for adults, is 85 cents; children, 65 cents. Everyone should attend and bring his friends along. Hershey park, the Hershey chocolate works and the private grounds of the owner are open to inspection. Florists of other towns are especially invited to join the Lancaster crowd. H. K. R.

"The Strain That Leads"

OUR PRIMROSES, grown as usual from the best strains in existence, are ready again. The plants are all grown outside in frames, short, stocky and full of life. All our obconicas are from our own seed, seedbearers selected from thousands of plants. No seed reached this country from our German specialist this season and obconicas of this high-class strain will be scarce. Order early and order enough, you know you need them, you know they are very profitable, you know there will be no Azaleas and you know you must have something to fill the gap.

WATERTOWN, N. Y.

Carnations by the armful were being gathered by August Stoeckle, who remarked that while one could hardly give them away at this time, he was of the opinion that, taking the season through, prices had been well maintained. He is a large retailer of many years' experience and conveys a feeling of optimism. Now the rush is on for porch boxes, etc., with plenty of good stock, especially Asparagus Sprengeri.

F. A. Bennett & Sons are of the few who issue a retail bedding plant price list in the form of a sheet naming the principal items or leaders in their stock. This has been done for several years and has resulted in building up a large business among the surrounding towns. They also are convinced it has been one of the best methods of rural advertising. A large stock of tuberous-rooted begonias was noted as being out of the ordinary; also some 150 tubs of hydrangeas in fine condition, all for the local trade. A novelty in a hybrid geranium, a cross with the foliage of the zonal and heavy pink trusses of the ivy leaved, is a good seller. It originated with a local amateur, from whom the stock was obtained. The planting season now is on with a rush.

KNOXVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

Business during the month of May was exceptionally good. Memorial day, as is usual in the south, brought little extra business. The first week in June was good, there having been a number of weddings and graduation exercises.

The supply of stock was never better at this time of the year. The peony season is about over, but the crop was good and a number of consignments were made to northern and eastern markets. Indoor sweet peas are about gone. Roses now are abundant and of excellent quality, especially Russell, Hoosier Beauty, Ophelia, Mock and Kaiserin. Owing to the cool weather, carnations still are good and the cut is heavy. There is a good crop of orchids for June weddings.

Weather conditions have been better during the last two weeks, but the nights still are cool and stock is not growing so rapidly as is usual at this time of the year. However, vegetation of all kinds looks hardy and healthy.

Various Notes.

A. H. Dailey is cutting some choice gladioli, the first on the local market.

The C. W. Crouch Co. is busy with wedding work, having had a number of elaborate decorations recently.

C. L. Baum is cutting a fine lot of orchids; also some good roses and carnations.

C. H. Tipton and Mrs. Ryno are busy with bedding plant business, the late season making the demand continue good. R. E. M.

SIM'S HYBRID YELLOW POLYANTHUS

This is one of my houses. 20x300 feet. of National Flower Show Gold Medal Polyanthus. These have been in bloom constantly since November.

I had two houses of Giant Yellow Polyanthus in full crop at Easter. A Review correspondent saw them March 31st and wrote:

"They include some beautiful varieties, which are being carefully marked and saved for propagation. One bed 300 feet long, of a pale yellow polyanthus, true to type in every plant, was particularly fine. I measured individual flowers two inches in diameter and many of the stalks stood eighteen inches high. Two houses, each 300 feet long, are devoted to this crop, and a glorious sight they are."

But the best of it is they had a glorious sale. You can do as well next season if you order your stock now.

The Market.

The market is glutted with stock. The demand, principally for flowers for commencements, is fair, but it is not strong enough to clear all of the good stock that arrives at the wholesale houses. The shipping business, as far as ferns and greens are concerned, is excellent, but the movement in flowers has slumped considerably. Prices are low and much stock goes to the dump. Roses are in heavy supply, and in some cases there is considerable room for improvement as to quality. Carnations, too, are in heavy supply, with only a part of them of high quality. Easter lilies and callas are plentiful and excellent, but move slowly. Excellent gladioli may be had. Sweet peas are plentiful, but they do not sell easily. Valley comes in regularly in limited quantities. Snapdragons are in heavy supply and peonies are a glut. Other offerings are larkspurs and cornflowers. Greens are plentiful, with the new ferns selling well.

Various Notes.

Ray Murphy's touring car was in a collision with another automobile this week. Fortunately, none of the occupants of the cars was injured and only the mud-guards and the running-boards on the Murphy car were smashed.

P. J. Olinger is fortunate in having a large cut of his new red carnation, Radium, as well as a heavy cut of Richmond, for the commencement business this week.

C. E. Critchell is experiencing a large demand from all over the country for bronze galax leaves in case lots.

George Klotter sent the first of his cut of coreopsis to L. H. Kyrk last week.

Miss Anna Weiland, of Evanston, Ill., is visiting her sister, Mrs. P. J. Olinger, at the Olinger home at Bellevue.

Osear Leistner, of Chicago, was a visitor last week. C. H. H.

Wichert, Ill.—The gladiolus crop of A. P. Bonvallet & Co. is in splendid condition. The company expects to cut from 300,000 to 400,000 gladioli for the Chicago market.

CAST IRON BOILERS WASTE FUEL

I had a cast iron 8-section boiler before, but was afraid it would crack to pieces. The Kroeschell Boiler is certainly a fuel-saver. My coal bill to heat 5000 sq. ft. of glass surface with your boiler is less than last winter's coal bill, when I had only 2050 sq. ft. of glass, heated with the 8-section cast iron boiler.

Your boiler burns any kind of fuel. I would not have any other boiler than the Kroeschell, and will recommend whenever I get a chance.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

PIPING A TWO-ROOM LEAN-TO.

I intend to add a lean-to at the south side of my present house. The lean-to will be 6x100 feet and will be divided into two equal parts. The west room will require a temperature of 45 to 50 degrees and the east room a temperature of 60 to 65 degrees, in zero weather. Enclosed is a sketch showing the hot water piping as I have planned it. Please tell me whether my plan would provide sufficient radiation. The flow pipe shown in the sketch is already under the gutter in the present house and will supply no other returns. I wish to use the sizes of pipes indicated for the returns, as I have most of the pipe on hand. C. P. L.—Ill.

The sketch shows a lean-to with twenty-seven inches of glass and a board wall thirty inches high. There is a 2½-inch flow at the gutter, with a 1½-inch pipe extended to supply the coil in the lean-to. In the west room of the lean-to there is a coil of four 1½-inch returns, which also run through the east room back to the boiler. To furnish the 15 degrees of extra heat desired in the east room, two 2-inch returns are added and these are fed by a

So far as the return pipes are concerned, we would not suggest any change either in their number or arrangement, but we would not advise carrying four 1½-inch pipes in a coil 100 feet long with one 1½-inch flow. While it could be done with a 2-inch pipe if the coil is well above the top of

A Uniform Temperature In Your Greenhouses —every day of the year

ABSOLUTE CONTROL of temperature conditions in your greenhouses in June and January alike—is what you get from the easily installed Morehead System. Just attach the comparatively inexpensive to your present boiler room equipment and you can dismiss the winter months' problem from your mind.

Morehead Back to Boiler SYSTEM

Eliminates Sluggish Circulation In Your Steam Lines

Substituted for the messy steam pumps you are perhaps using now—the Morehead System will eliminate sluggish circulation forever—and keep all your steam pipes clear of condensation—returning it to the boilers immediately as pure hot feed water—in just the condition to use again with the least consumption of fuel.

Prepare for Next Winter Now!

Now—before the frigid blasts of another winter are upon us—is the time to find out what the Morehead System can do for you. Write immediately for proof that the coal man actually pays for your Morehead System in a few months' time—as well as copies of letters from progressive florists who find the Morehead System invaluable in growing prize-winning flowers. the boiler, we would prefer to extend the 2½-inch flow and use it to feed the coil.

Perhaps the difficulty might be corrected without the use of other piping than that indicated in the sketch, by exchanging one of the 2-inch returns in the east house for the flow pipe in the west house.

EXACT DIRECTIONS IMPOSSIBLE.

Kindly inform us how much piping will be required for a greenhouse 50x50, with five and one-half feet of glass in the sides and one foot of concrete wall all around. We wish to heat the house to 55 or 60 degrees when the outside temperature is 25 degrees below zero. Hot water is to be used.

F. B.—Can.

Without knowing something of the arrangement of the house, we cannot be positive regarding the best methods of arranging the return coils. We would advise the use of about 1,450 square feet of radiation, and this may be secured by using seven 2½-inch overhead flow pipes and thirty-seven 2-inch returns in seven coils, each supplied by one of the flows.

One flow may be at each plate, another three feet below the ridge, and two of the others may be placed on each side of the house, at equal distances between the plates and the ridge. There should be five pipes in each of the return coils except those on the side walls, which should have six return pipes each. The coils should be in the walks if solid beds are used, or underneath in the case of raised benches.

Plant Close Utilize all of Your Space

Below is an excerpt from a letter received from T. J. Opperman, Camp Hill, Pa., concerning his Skinner System:

"I find that I can plant much closer when the supply of moisture is unlimited. This means a whole lot when planting out space is limited as it is with us."

The Market.

There has been little change in market conditions during the last week. The weather has moderated and a few bright days have helped outdoor work. This class of work has been practically at a standstill and has held back the sale of plants quite a bit. The stock is moving better, however, and if the weather remains good for a week or so it will help this end of the business tremendously.

The cut flower division is just about holding its own; business is only moderately good. Carnations are plentiful, but, on the whole, the quality is only medium. It is as good as can be expected, however, under existing conditions. Roses are of fine quality and are cleaning up fairly well. There is a shortage of good red roses, as the demand seems largest for this stock and the crop is not so large as it should be.

Sweet peas are still plentiful, although the quality is deteriorating each day.

Valley is arriving in larger quantities and the quality has improved to a great extent. Lilies are extremely plentiful and of good quality, but they are not moving nearly so well as they should. Snapdragons are not so good as they have been and are moving slowly. There is a good demand for strings of smilax and there is practically none in the market, so that asparagus is finding some extra sales on this account.

There is a good demand for orchids, but the cut is not sufficiently large to take care of the orders for cattleyas. What stock there is, however, is of fine quality. There are still a few Darwin tulips in the market and these bring about $3 per hundred.

Various Notes.

The Milwaukee Florists' Club at its last meeting took up the matter of steady, collective advertising. The idea met with the hearty approval of those present, and it will be taken up in the near future and considered from every standpoint. Everyone in the trade should be tremendously interested, as the plan means much. There can be no question as to the ultimate good of a proposition of this sort.

The stork visited William and Mrs. Lubliner Friday, June 1, and left a bouncing 7-pound boy. Will had to buy a bigger hat immediately, and he is as proud as can be.

The Market.

Business has been exceedingly good, thanks to two or three large commencements last week and the June weddings. The Ward-Belmont, one of the largest schools for girls in the world, had elaborate 10-day commencement exercises this year. All of the florists got a share in the lavish display of flowers used at the various functions.

Roses continue to arrive freely and their quality remains up to the best. Sweet peas are decidedly on the wane and those available are lacking in quality. The home supply of carnations is rapidly decreasing, as most of the stock is now grown out of the benches and the new plants set for next season's crop. Snapdragons are quite plentiful at present and the demand for them seems to be better than ever before. A few months ago it looked as though snapdragons were on the wane, but from present appearances they bid fair to become as popular as carnations and sweet peas.

Lilies are plentiful and many are finding ways of using this flower that they never dreamed of a few years ago. They are using them in all sorts of decorative work, but this seems to be thoroughly satisfactory to customers.

Bedding stock now is little in evidence at the stores, though on the market square there are loads of plants on display each day. There is a small surplus of bedding plants this year; possibly a few geraniums, salvias and petunias.

Various Notes.

Haury & Sons are showing some large plants of hydrangeas in full bloom. Their wagons are doing a good plant business in the city. Louis Haury is repairing the damage done to his houses by the hail. Much of his stock was injured, but not so seriously as to make it unmarketable. In fact, if one judged by the plants Mr. Haury has on the market each day, one would never know that a storm had paid him a visit.

The Joy Floral Co. was delayed in opening its Chattanooga store until Friday, June 8. Thomas Joy went over to assist in the opening and stopped at Murfreesboro on his return to superintend the decorations for an elaborate wedding.

McIntyre Bros. are pushing repairs as rapidly as possible at the range. While the hail broke a large amount of glass, little of the stock was injured. The regular business has not been interfered with in any way as a result of the storm. F. B.

Canal Dover, O.—C. Betscher says business has been and is good. Peonies gave a good crop, but there was too much rain. Labor shortage has been a trying matter, rainy weather adding to the burden.

PLANT TUBS

EVERLASTING VIRGINIA WHITE CEDAR

EVERYBODY agrees that Plant Tubs made of everlasting Virginia White Cedar will best resist rot or decay. The "Keystone" brand of White Cedar Plant Tubs are made of this celebrated wood, and these goods are painted inside and out with best oil paints, a rich green.

They are bound with heavy steel hoops for the large size, and electric-welded wire hoops (galvanized) on the small size. The large sizes are trimmed with handsome drop handles and metal feet, and have perforated, removable bottoms.

These Cedar Tubs are made in all sizes, from 24 1/4 inches top diameter down to 6 inches, amply large for a Bay Tree and small enough for a Hyacinth. Every one guaranteed. Booklet in colors, with prices, furnished upon request.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

FOR THE CONVENIENCE OF FLORISTS who want to grow some really good POT MUMS, we are offering our collection of STRICTLY POT PLANT VARIETIES. This collection has been the result of years of experience in this line and includes only varieties that are especially adapted to pot plant culture.

There are included in this collection, besides the Caprice family and several of the best standard pot plant varieties, many sorts of this year's and last year's introduction, some of them being worth from 15 to 30c per plant.

We sell these in collection only and in not less than hundred lots at $5.00 per 100. Shipped from 2 1/4-in. pots, ready for 4-in.

WE ALSO HAVE READY FOR SHIPMENT out of 2 1/4-in. pots, TOTTY'S TUXEDO COLLECTION OF JAPANESE ANEMONES, new this year. This collection comprises 12 beautiful varieties in a wide assortment of colors. Fine for cutting and especially adapted for pot plants. Greeted with enthusiasm wherever shown.

Strong 2 1/4-in. plants, 25c each, $2.50 per dozen.

You will appreciate our good packing.

AN UP-TO-DATE GREENHOUSE

must be lasting, secure, efficient, properly ventilated

It must be constructed in accordance with the rules which have been approved by knowledge and experience. We have been in the greenhouse manufacturing business for a good many years and our experience is at your disposal. Whether you intend to build your first house or plan an addition, we believe that our suggestions will be of interest to you. Our material is strictly first-class both in grade and workmanship. Our new "Leak-Proof" Gutter is bound to give you satisfaction. Our prices are reasonable. We use only the best grade of Louisiana Red Cypress.

PEONY SOCIETY NOW LARGELY AMATEUR

The American Peony Society, at its fourteenth exhibition and meeting, held at Philadelphia last week, showed the result of its special effort to interest amateur growers. Membership gains are steady, but participation in meetings and exhibitions does not increase.

THE fourteenth annual meeting and exhibition of the American Peony Society, combined with the exhibitions of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society and the Flower Show Association of the Main Line, were held in Horticultural hall, Philadelphia, June 13 and 14. About eighty per cent of the show was provided by the Peony Society, the balance being divided between the Horticultural Society and the Main Liners in the ratio of three to one, showing that the latter are going in for vegetables this season.

The show filled the main hall and, while there was no attempt at decoration, the effect was good. There were not so many large vases of fifties and hundreds as at recent shows, but the individual blooms were fully as fine as any ever staged by the society.

Can't Be National.

Of all the special flower societies, that devoted to the peony suffers more than any other because of the unreliability of the seasons. The short duration of bloom and the vagaries of the weather make it impossible to give adequate notice of the exhibition, so that attendance and number of exhibits both suffer. In fact, the meeting of the American Peony Society has become scarcely more than a local affair, participated in by, perhaps, half a dozen growers in the locality visited and followed regularly by only a few peony specialists, this year only one trade grower competing for the prizes.

Two postponements were considered necessary for this year's exhibition, and the second postponement, from June 11 to June 13, was made so late that no notice could be published. This condition of affairs undoubtedly did much to cut down the number of exhibits.

As the trade interest has waned, the premium list has tended more and more to the amateur side. This year eighteen classes were provided open to all, with eight classes open only to what were designated as "advanced" amateurs, and six classes open only to "novice" amateurs. It was in keeping with the policy pursued in recent years of encouraging the nonprofessional element, from which the society has been obtaining a considerable increase in membership.

The Principal Exhibitors.

Bertrand H. Farr, of Wyomissing, Pa., for eight years president of the Peony Society, brought a large exhibit, including many choice sorts. Mr. Farr considered La Lorraine, a lemon yellow Lemoine hybrid tree peony, as the gem of his collection. Prof. A. P. Saunders, represented in the list of prize awards. The balance of the exhibits were from the large private estates about Philadelphia.

The Awards.

In the classes open to all, in which trade growers were privileged to compete with the amateurs, B. H. Farr was the only commercial exhibitor who had his flowers staged when the hour for judging arrived. The awards in these eighteen classes were:

Collection of not more than 100 named varieties, one bloom of each—James Boyd, Haverford, Pa., first; Bertrand H. Farr, Wyomissing, Pa., second; John C. Wister, Germantown, Pa., third.

Vase or basket of peonies, not less than 100 blooms, arranged for effect—James Fox, Wyncote, Pa., first; Miss Gwena Baugh, Media, Pa., second.

Collection of twenty-five varieties, double, three blooms of each—Bertrand H. Farr, first; James Fox, second; John C. Wister, third.

Collection of single varieties, one bloom of each—Bertrand H. Farr, first; A. P. Saunders, Clinton, N. Y., second.

Collection of Japanese varieties, one bloom of each—Bertrand H. Farr, first; John C. Wister, second.

Twenty-five blooms, white or cream, double, one variety—Bertrand H. Farr, first; C. B. Newbold, Jenkintown, Pa., second.

Twenty-five blooms, light pink or pink and cream, double, one variety—Mrs. Charles T. Jones, Pitman, N. J., first; Bertrand H. Farr, second.

Twenty-five blooms, dark pink, double, one variety—Bertrand H. Farr, first; C. B. Newbold, second.

Twenty-five blooms, red or crimson, double, one variety—Bertrand H. Farr, first; C. B. Newbold, second; Arthur H. Scott, Oak Lane, Pa., third.

Six specimen blooms, double, any one variety—Miss Clara Anderson, Van Wert, O., first; M. Edmund Maule, Moorestown, N. J., second.

One specimen bloom, double, any variety—James Boyd, first; E. Irwin Scott, Swarthmore, Pa., second.

Specimen bloom of new variety, double, introduced since 1910—James Boyd, first.

Collection of new varieties, double, introduced since 1900, one bloom of each—James Boyd, first; Bertrand H. Farr, second.

Vase of six blooms, double, any variety, grown more than 300 miles from Philadelphia—Miss Clara Anderson, Van Wert, O., first; Mrs. L. R. Bonnewitz, Van Wert, O., second.

Most artistic arrangement of not more than twenty-five peonies in either a vase, bowl or basket—Mrs. Arthur H. Scott, first; Mrs. F. H. Bachman, Jenkintown, Pa., second.

Of the three classes in which premiums were not awarded, two failed to fill. There were two entries for the coveted prize of $100, offered by Mrs. Harding, for an American seedling peony of outstanding merit, but neither entry was staged, because of the condition of the flowers on arrival, it was said.

Special mention was given B. H. Farr

PRESIDENT

James Boyd, - - - Haverford, Pa.

VICE-PRESIDENT

Arthur H. Fewkes, Newton Highlands, Mass.

SECRETARY

Prof. A. P. Saunders, - - Clinton, N. Y.

TREASURER

John H. Humphreys, - Germantown, Pa.

DIRECTORS

Bertrand H. Farr, - Wyomissing, Pa.

Lee R. Bonnewitz, - Van Wert, O.

1918 Meeting

Cleveland, O.

of Clinton, N. Y., also brought a collection of choice varieties.

The star decorative exhibit was made by the Henry F. Michell Co., of Philadelphia. It consisted of more than 1,500 blooms in fifty-five varieties.

L. R. Bonnewitz, of Van Wert, O., was the only western exhibitor. His flowers added much to the show.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., staged a choice assortment of handsome varieties from Riverton.

R. T. Brown, of the Cottage Gardens, Queens, N. Y., was present, but at the time the judging began his flowers had not arrived and this exhibitor is not for a bloom of Lemoine's new yellow tree peony, La Lorraine.

The winners in the classes for "advanced" amateurs were James Boyd, Haverford; Elmer K. Schultz, Jenkintown; Arthur H. Scott, Oak Lane; Mrs. Arthur H. Bailey, Harrisburg; M. Edmund Maule, Moorestown, N. J.; Mrs. Herbert Taylor, Ogontz; Mrs. J. Leslie Davis, Haverford, and A. P. Saunders, Clinton, N. Y.

The winners in the classes for "novice" amateurs were Mrs. R. S. Holt, West Summit, N. J.; Mrs. Owen Moon, Trenton, N. J.; Mrs. John M. Webster, Van Wert, O.; Thomas T. Taylor, Ogontz; Mrs. F. H. Jarrett, Bethayres; Herbert K. Taylor, Ogontz; Fisher L. Boyd, Haverford; James Boyd, Haverford, and Capt. J. Franklin McFadden, Rosemont. The best collections of outdoor flowers also came from amateurs, W. Ellis, of Bryn Mawr, and John A. Brown, of Devon. The names are reported so that dealers may add them to their mailing lists if they wish.

The proceeds of the show were advertised as to be donated to the Red Cross, and the attendance of the public, if not of the trade from out of town, was fairly large. The show pleased and no doubt had the usual effect of inspiring people to purchase and plant the newer and better varieties.

Business Meeting.

President B. H. Farr, who has been at the head of the society's affairs since the Queens meeting in 1909, called the annual business session to order. There was a small attendance, made up almost exclusively of local amateurs. As has been his custom, President Farr presented an extemporaneous report of the peony year, conversational in style, and Secretary Saunders presented a report for his office. The treasurer's report was so good that $500 was appropriated for the purchase of Liberty bonds.

A plan for granting certificates to new varieties of merit was approved.

Thirty-two new members were elected, practically all of them amateurs.

The election of a Philadelphia amateur, James Boyd, as president of the society, was in line with the special efforts that have been made to bring in the nonprofessional element and, although the other officers were re-elected, may serve to take the organization out of the rut it has followed for several years.

A Rose Show.

June 14 the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society added its annual rose show to the peony exhibition. This proved to be a disappointment. Instead of thousands of blooms, as was expected by the society, only hundreds, many of them of inferior quality, were shown. The unseasonable weather was blamed for the poor showing. The judges of this exhibition were Dr. Robert Huey and Robert Kift. The half-dozen exhibitors were local private gardeners and amateurs.

This show probably is the last that will be held in Horticultural hall, for, as has been recorded in The Review, the building has been sold as unprofitable to the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society.

Every effort is being made to stamp it out, and with the more natural methods of growing that obtain in Guernsey and England the trouble has not played such havoc as it has in Holland, according to Mr. Van Leeuwen. Probably this is due to the excessively high feeding that bulbs get in Holland, with a view to obtaining roots of abnormal size. Holland growers have for years looked to Guernsey to renew their stocks, their practice being to obtain from Guernsey a healthy, hard bulb of planting size.

Our business as bulb growers, whether in America, Holland, England or Guernsey, should be to find some means to eliminate this pest rather than to throw stones at one another. The Royal Horticultural Society at its gardens at Wisley, England, has been investigating this subject, and we hope in the near future to be able to deal with it satisfactorily. Meanwhile forcers would be well advised to secure hard, well ripened bulbs rather than enormous roots of softer texture, which are much more likely to fall victims to this trouble.

E. T. Wheadon,
President Guernsey Growers' Association.

PARIS GREEN FOR THRIPS.

George A. Knapp, of Nevada, Mo., supplies the formula for the use of Paris green for thrips called for in The Review of June 14. It appears it originally was supplied by Wendland & Keimel Co., Elmhurst, Ill., and was as follows:

"Our formula is: Take five pounds of brown sugar to one pound of Paris green; mix dry; run through a fine screen to take out lumps.

"To apply, take two ounces of the mixture to two gallons of water in sprayer for 200 feet of bench; apply this in the afternoon late, or after syringing, while the plants are still wet, and if clear the next day syringe off to prevent the leaves burning.

"If used about once a week this will keep the plants clean, except possibly in April and May, while lilacs and snowballs are in bloom. During that time it could be used oftener, but never apply a second time without syringing the first application off, or it will burn the plants. Do not mix lime or any other alkali with this, as it keeps the thrips from eating the sugar and kills the effect of the poison."

C. L. Washburn says Bassett & Washburn have used this formula successfully on roses, but the following letter comes from J. W. Jones, of Phipps Conservatory, Schenley park, Pittsburgh:

As a rule, immediately on receipt of The Review I look it over, as I always find something interesting in it. In doing so last Saturday I read the following: "Formula wanted, and directions for using Paris green and brown sugar as an insecticide." I have used Paris green and brown sugar as an insecticide to my sorrow, using the Paris green in a very small proportion, and would never use it again, especially on chrysanthemums. Fearing the reader might experience the same trouble, I would advise him to experiment before using it in quantity. Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., could furnish you the formula, as at present I cannot recall or find it.

Burlington, Vt.—W. E. Peters finds much to encourage him, although the season for planting is so late.

North Manchester, Ind.—The Riverside Greenhouses have become the property of Teel Bros., who will grow heavily of vegetable plants as well as of flowers.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

FOREHANDNESS IN BUYING.

I have been much impressed of late by a condition of affairs which is not unusual, but which is none the less deplorable.

The point to which I refer is a difference in the purchasing of materials, when the small florists and large florists are compared.

The large growers all over the country have placed their orders many months in advance, covering such wire materials as they will need.

The little fellows are, with few exceptions, waiting until the last moment, thinking that wire prices may come down, or failing to realize the scarcity of such material for immediate delivery.

I believe that you can conscientiously call to the florists' attention the desirability of anticipating their needs in fields where supplies are at a premium, thus making it possible for them to avoid a shortage. Joseph M. Wilkin.

A VOICE FROM GUERNSEY.

My attention has been attracted by the paper on "Bulb Growing in Holland" which appeared in The Review for February 15, 1917. The author, J. Van Leeuwen, of Sassenheim, Holland, refers to the narcissus trouble which during the last four or five years has done considerable damage wherever the bulbs are grown.

This trouble, which usually has been styled fusarium, but which recent investigations have proved to be caused by the eelworm, has been known in England and Guernsey for about four years; and we have it on the authority of some of the most reliable English nurserymen that, at the time they first saw it in their stocks, they observed it in bulbs imported from Holland, Guernsey and various districts in England.

The English board of agriculture, in leaflet No. 256, which was issued in June, 1914, and which dealt with this trouble, says: "The disease is known in Holland, from whence it may often be reintroduced into this country (England) by means of slightly infected bulbs."

It is not my business to charge any country with the introduction of this pest, but I wish to emphatically contradict the statement made by Mr. Van Leeuwen that this pest was first introduced into Holland in 1915. Writing from personal knowledge, I have seen many bulbs imported from Holland in 1913 and 1914 which were badly infected with this pest.

THE WAR AND THE TRADE

WHAT HAPPENED IN CANADA.

No Need for Worry.

"We think that in the United States, judging from the experience of the florists in Canada, you will have little need to worry in regard to business in the florists' line."

Thus does George M. Geraghty, manager of Dunlop's, Toronto, Ont., summarize his opinion of what will be the effect of the war on the florists' business in the United States.

Canadian florists have been facing war conditions for nearly three years. So that American florists could get a line on what may happen to their businesses while the United States is at war, The Review asked prominent retailers in the neighboring country to write of their experiences since August 4, 1914, the date Great Britain entered the conflict, for the benefit of their brothers in the trade across the border.

The declaration of war nearly three years ago was sudden and its effect on business in those countries involved was great. Time, however, brought readjustment to meet the conditions. Thus, when the United States entered the conflict, the action of this country brought little change for the simple reason that business was used to it and knew the war would not have the disastrous effect that was expected three years ago.

Panic When War Started.

The panic which the Canadian members of the trade experienced at the outset of the war did not hit the florists in the United States. Neither will it. There are bound to be some readjustments, but on the whole, judging from the experience of the Canadian florists, business will continue as before April 6 of the present year.

The history of the war's effects in Canada, as told by members of the trade there, follows:

"After the declaration of war, the florists' business throughout the country was seized with severe panic, on the theory that everything was going to the dogs. Help in all lines was laid off and those retained had their wages cut anywhere from ten to thirty per cent, people thinking that business would cease entirely. A scheme of retrenchment set in that, for a month or two, practically paralyzed the business. However, things soon took a turn for the better; wages were restored, and business, considering all things, looked promising.

Big Call for Hospitals.

"As a great number of wealthy people, and that means the flower buyers, sent their sons, brothers and husbands to the war, there arose a feeling against anything that would seem to be of too much gayety and, therefore, the florists suffered. Dinners and receptions were cut off and it left only the individual and hospital, not to mention funeral orders, to help the florist out.

"Where a few people used to send to the hospitals, it is now quite the thing, especially as almost everybody, who is in the least indisposed and who can afford it, immediately goes to a private hospital and friends respond by sending quantities of flowers.

"Again, owing to the large number of casualties in hospitals in France and England and through our extensive advertising of the fact that we can have flowers sent to these hospitals by our foreign correspondents, we have considerable of this work to attend to.

"In the matter of funerals, people are sending more flowers than formerly. There is plenty of money in Canada at the present time, and it is in this way that the people are expressing themselves.

More Funeral Orders.

"In the matter of weddings, these are carried out quietly and few of them have any elaborate decoration. The bouquets themselves and the attendants' flowers are just as elaborate as ever.

"We think that in the United States, judging from the experience of the florists in Canada, you will have little need to worry in regard to business in the florists' line.

"It is, of course, known that everything has gone up in price with the exception of flowers, but, so far as we are concerned, we think it inadvisable to place flowers at too high a price, as it would tend to frighten the prospective buyer and the money would then be spent for fruit, books or candy.

"The war will not last forever, and it is well to keep one's customers and have them satisfied. This, we can safely say up to the present time, we have done, although it has been at a cost of profit."—George M. Geraghty, manager, Dunlop's, Toronto, Ont.

"War was declared August 4, 1914, and at that time business was, so to speak, booming. The first part of the year was the best we had ever had. By October sales began to drop off and continued to do so until the spring of 1915, when they picked up to about eighty per cent of normal. In 1916 sales again improved, but during the winter and spring of 1917 business has shown a decided falling off. The falling off in sales is not the worst feature. The cost of production and selling cost have so increased without a corresponding increase in selling price that profits for the time are eliminated.

Training Camps Bring Business.

"An indication that we were more favorably situated than in some other cities and towns is shown by the falling off in business since the large number of troops, from 5,000 to 12,000, which were in training here during 1915 and 1916, have gone overseas. Both officers and men were liberal buyers of flowers and, since their departure, the decrease in demand for the better quality is noticeable.

"The demand for funeral work has not diminished to any extent, while that for weddings is almost a thing of the past. The wealthy people, who before the war were regular buyers of flowers, now seldom indulge. On the other hand, munition workers and others, who are earning a good wage, have become the flower buyers. But with them it is not a matter of quality so much as price. Therefore we found it necessary to change our methods of merchandising."—J. G. Gammage, secretary-treasurer, J. Gammage & Sons, Limited, London, Ont.

It will be understood from these letters that the uses to which flowers are put in Canada have been considerably changed, but business is good. Florists in the United States need have little fear of the war's effect on their business.

THIS DISPLAY SOLD ITSELF.

I want to make a flower bed with a red cross in the center. What would be the best plants to use for the cross? Something bright red is wanted. What would be the best plants to use for white and blue? C. E. H.—III.

Use Alternanthera brilliantissima for the red cross. For blue, one of the dwarf ageratums, such as Stella Gurney, would prove more reliable than blue lobelia, although the latter is decidedly the better blue. For white, Alyssum Little Gem would be suitable. C. W.

POINSETTIAS FOR CHRISTMAS.

When is the proper time to take poinsettia cuttings so as to have plants in 3-inch and 4-inch pots in bloom at Christmas? S. L. L.—Ia.

Cuttings of poinsettias for 3-inch and 4-inch pots need not go in until early August. You cannot, of course, have as fine plants from late cuttings as when they are put in during May and June. C. W.

RED RADIANCE IN MISSISSIPPI.

In the month of July, 1916, I bought 500 2½-inch Red Radiance rose plants and planted them in a bench at once. They made wonderfully strong growth and by September were producing salable blooms. In October I propagated 1,000 cuttings from them, and by December the original plants were producing first-class, long-stemmed blooms, for which I realized twice as much as for Richmond. In the last part of December I propagated 2,000 more cuttings. The stock plants continued to make fine growth and produce excellent blooms. March 1 I used all of the wood, putting into the sand 12,000 cuttings, of which nearly every one rooted. Then I lifted the plants and put them out in the open field, under a Skinner irrigating system. They are now commencing to bloom, and I do not hesitate to say that Red Radiance is the best red rose, both for forcing and outdoor blooming, that I have ever seen.

Among its good qualities, in my opinion, are these: It produces salable blooms thirty days earlier than Richmond in the fall, and continues in flower thirty to sixty days longer in the spring. It is fifty per cent more valuable than most other varieties. It is a free, strong grower and bloomer. It is not subject to mildew; sulphur on the pipes or dusted on the foliage early in the fall will prevent mildew entirely.

I am planting under glass this summer, for next winter's blooming, 8,000 Red Radiance and 30,000 Radiance. They are without question the best roses for this climate, in the vicinity of Columbus, Miss. Often in midwinter the outdoor atmosphere here is such that "it is too warm to fire and too damp not to fire." Radiance stands these conditions better than any other variety and is in every way better than Richmond and Killarney. The thing I need worst now is a white Radiance.

ITS NAME IS GEORGE ELGER.

This little item has reference to the spelling of a name and so will not interest readers who regard questions of orthography as mere trifles, unworthy of grown men's attention. Many people believe they have no time to waste, as they would say, in simply juggling with the letters of the alphabet and trying to drop each individual letter into its proper place. If so employed, many strenuous business men would feel too much like children playing with lettered blocks. Most of the successful establishments, however, are so well organized that every little detail of the business, including the spelling of names, is attended to carefully by some member of the force. Hence, when the proprietors of such an establishment issue a catalogue, the names of the listed varieties of stock are usually spelled correctly. And the accuracy of the catalogue is a reason for just pride.

That brings us to the point at issue. In some of the recent catalogues the popular little yellow polyantha or baby rambler rose, George Elger, is referred to as Elgar, with an "a" in the second syllable instead of an "e." The rose was originated in 1913, by E. Turbat &

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS FOR SOUTHERN FLORISTS

MUMS IN THE SOUTH.

Cultural Notes for Summer.

The end of June should find all the chrysanthemums planted out. Much has been written on the subject of raised beds versus solid beds. In the south the solid bed, especially for chrysanthemums, has all the best of the argument. Along the gulf coast, where the atmosphere is so humid and hot, the plants require to be sprayed several times a day, and the walks also should be dampened well. When spraying the plants bear in mind not to spray always from the same side of the bed, but to do it from both sides; otherwise the back row will have small and thin foliage and the flowers will be much undersized.

The spraying must be kept up until the buds are ready to show color, as the red spider is apt to appear, and whenever spider comes it is good-bye salable flowers. Black and green flies are best kept down by using one of the tobacco sprays regularly—say every ten days. It is most important to have the plants thoroughly clean of this pest by the time the buds show color; otherwise much loss will result. Perhaps the worst pest of the mum is thrips. The minute that the nights begin to get a little cool thrips seem to hunt winter quarters in the greenhouse, and in spite of the greatest care they generally do a lot of damage.

Disinfectants and Fertilizers.

Regular biweekly sprayings with tobacco extracts should be given from the time the bud is taken until it shows color. Tobacco stems should also be used freely in the walks and on the wire supports. The idea is to keep a strong tobacco smell in the houses at all times, so that thrips will keep out.

Those varieties of mums which develop their flowers from the bud in the shortest time suffer less from thrips than varieties that take a long time to develop their flowers. Mrs. H. Robinson is probably the most popular white for All Saints' day; yet in the gulf states it takes two months to develop its flowers. This makes it a regular mark for thrips.

The plants must be kept tied up as fast as they need it, and the surface soil should be frequently stirred. Enough manure is generally put in the soil at planting time to carry the plants along for some time. About August 1 is a good time for a top-dressing. Some finely ground bone should first be applied and then sprinkled over with lime to aid in its dissolution. Lastly a good inch of fairly fresh cow manure should be spread over all. This will keep the plants in good shape until the time comes for liquid fertilizing, after the bud is taken.

COSMOS IN THE SOUTH.

Cosmos are always a useful crop in the south. Seeds may be sown now and the young plants set out in the field as soon as big enough. In the extreme south, seed sown by August 1 will yield a fine crop by the end of October. Where large quantities are grown, plant in beds four feet wide, four rows to the bed, leaving a walk two feet wide between the beds to make picking easy. This method saves much space. The plants will require a few workings after being set out.

HYDRANGEAS IN THE SOUTH.

Any old hydrangea plants ought to be shaken out thoroughly, trimmed back and repotted in the same sized pots in well enriched soil. Young plants in 2½-inch pots may be shifted into 4-inch pots and all plunged in a coldframe. Give lots of water during the summer growing season. As the fall approaches, reduce the supply. A little shade in the shape of lath sash, spaced rather wide, will be of great benefit to the plants.

SHADING FOR GREENHOUSES.

Will you please publish a formula for making a whitewash to be used on a greenhouse for shade? We want a mixture that will not wash off too easily or injure the wood. G. M. T. S.—Ill.

A prominent grower recommends this formula as the best that he has ever tried: Take ordinary Spanish whiting and stir into it enough water to make a thick cream. After allowing this to stand a couple of days, dilute to the desired state and add a 3-inch potful of linseed oil to each three gallons of the spraying liquid. Apply it to the glass with a spray pump. "This material," says the grower, "will not injure the paint, as a lime wash does, and it will not leave a seum on the glass, as mud does."

Another authority says that the best shading he has used consists of whiting and turpentine, but since it is rather expensive and should be applied with a brush, it is not desirable, he says, for large ranges. It is excellent, however, for show rooms and small conservatories.

Where an extremely light shading is wanted for a small area of glass, a mixture of turpentine and boiled linseed oil, in the proportion of one pint of the boiled oil to one gallon of turpentine, answers well, and stands the weather for a considerable time. A heavier shading for a small house is composed of two pounds of whiting, one pound of white lead and one gallon of kerosene. Either of these two mixtures should be applied to the glass with a long-handled whitewash brush.

Ordinary whitewash is the cheapest shading in first cost and is easy to apply, either with a brush or a spray pump, and it does not permit so large a proportion of the heat rays to penetrate the glass as is the case with some other preparations, but it has the serious objection of injuring the putty and thus making a roof become leaky much sooner than it otherwise would.

SURPLUS STOCK WOULD HELP.

So that A. D. King, whose greenhouse range and home at Mattoon, Ill., were destroyed by a cyclone May 26, can get a fresh start, J. F. Ammann, secretary of the Illinois State Florists' Association, now asks those in the trade who cannot contribute cash to the fund for Mr. King to give of their surplus stock. Mr. King's $30,000 establishment was completely wiped out and he was left penniless. Mr. Ammann's letter addressed to the trade is as follows:

After further correspondence with Mr. King, of Mattoon, Ill., he writes me that he has no stock left at all. If any florist could spare him some chrysanthemum or carnation plants or any other stock, I would suggest you write to Mr. King what you have to spare, so he may select what he can best use.

Many, I am sure, who cannot contribute cash will cheerfully give a few plants to a fellow craftsman in distress. J. F. Ammann, Sec'y.

Contributions of cash for Mr. King should be sent either to F. L. Washburn, treasurer of the state association, Bloomington, Ill., or to Mr. Ammann at Edwardsville, Ill.

CYCLONE AT FREEPORT, ILL.

Damage estimated at $4,500 was done at the range of the Freeport Floral Co., at Freeport, Ill., by a cyclone which passed over the establishment June 12. The storm lifted the roof of the boiler shed, a heavy affair, 30x52 feet, carried it about twenty feet and then dropped it on the greenhouses, breaking thousands of lights and straining the framework severely. The growing stock beneath was badly cut and smashed. Louis Bauseher, manager of the company, stated that the heating and ventilating system of the range was ruined. Pipes from an overhead water tank were broken, permitting 10,000 gallons of water to spurt out and inundate the place. There is no insurance covering the losses.

NEW YORK FEDERATION.

The New York Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs will hold a meeting in Syracuse Thursday, June 28, in connection with the annual exhibition of the Syracuse Rose Society. It is hoped that there may be a large attendance of delegates from the federated societies. E. A. White, Sec'y.

BOSTON SHOW DATES CHANGED.

On account of the backwardness of the season it is necessary to change the scheduled dates of the rose, peony and strawberry exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society at Horticultural hall, Boston, from June 23 and 24 to Saturday and Sunday, June 30 and July 1.

This exhibition is one of the most interesting and brilliant of the year, and is free to the public. It will be open Saturday from 12 to 6 and Sunday from 1 to 6 o'clock. Wm. P. Rich, Sec'y.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Callas.

The blooming season for callas now is over. The plants should be placed outdoors, laid on their sides in a warm, sunny location and left alone until August, when they will require repotting. Plants in benches should be dried off. As the foliage ripens off, lift and pack the tubers in a loam that is tolerably dry. If you are short of strong flowering roots it will pay you to plant out a number of offsets, in well manured ground. It is really surprising how these will increase in size and vigor in a few months.

Hardy Lupines.

Of the June-flowering hardy perennials which are adaptable for cutting, lupines are among the best. They come in several colors—blue, white and pink. The variety Moerheimii is a beautiful pink shade; so is Pink Beauty. Seeds sown now will give plants of sufficient strength to flower before cold weather, and they will be plants of good size for either fall or spring sales. Lupines, like most herbaceous plants, are fond of a rich soil and an open, sunny exposure. They sometimes are attacked by black aphids as the flowers open and may need a soap or nicotine spray.

Pyrethrums.

The forms of Pyrethrum roseum are all valuable for cutting and in some sections prove useful for Memorial day bouquets. They carry quite long and stiff stems, last remarkably well in water, are reliably winter-hardy and can be grown from seeds quite easily. The single varieties are of the easiest culture and propagation. The doubles are occasionally grown from seed, but most frequently by division. White forms of the latter are as valuable as carnations or asters in design work. Plants, if divided in late July or August, will be well established before winter. Late divisions will probably die. Undivided plants can be safely set out as late as the end of October. They should always have well drained land; a heavy winter protection is liable to rot them. There still is ample time to make a sowing of these. They germinate readily and make a fairly rapid growth.

Viola Cornuta.

As an edging plant, especially where it can hang over stones, Viola cornuta is unrivaled. The variety cornuta has somewhat pale blue flowers. V. cornuta atropurpurea has dark blue flowers and it is more vigorous than the type. I consider it the finest low-growing perennial in cultivation, as it blooms continuously from May until December. I have even seen flowers on it in January. While it can be grown from seed, it does not always come true; but this is no drawback, as a single clump can be increased by hundreds or thousands in a season by division of the root or cuttings. There is also a pure white form of this viola which makes a charming companion to the dark blue one. Any florist who is as yet without Viola cornuta should lose no time in securing it. He should remember that it is perfectly hardy, and that plants 2 or 3 years old are vastly better than those only a year old. For the rock garden it is one of the finest plants we have. It makes a splendid ground cover and edging. In addition it is not attacked, so far as I know, by any insects or diseases.

Delphiniums, or Larkspurs.

Spikes will soon be opening on the delphiniums, or larkspurs. Peonies are considered by many the queen of herbaceous perennials and it is true that during their comparatively brief season they make a gorgeous showing. They are, however, a heavy and clumsy flower compared with larkspurs, which have a stateliness none can gainsay. Some growers complain of stems dying on their plants. This is specially true of clumps which are old and have not been transplanted for a number of years. Larkspurs to succeed well should have a shift once in four years. A large number of named delphiniums have been raised by Amos Perry, Kelway, and other specialists, and these can be secured from reliable seedsmen who specialize in perennial seeds; but for the average country florist it will suffice to sow mixed packets of light blue and dark blue hybrids of formosum and that beautiful variety, Belladonna, which now is procurable from seeds and comes perfectly true. Sow the seeds now and most of the plants will bloom before frost, provided they are pricked off first and later carefully transplanted to nursery rows or beds. No grower can go far wrong in working up a good stock of the hardy larkspurs. Ask your customers to come and see them when in bloom. They are sure to order them.

Ashtabula, O.—The Tong & Weeks Floral Co., E. A. Adams & Sons and C. C. Phelps & Son have petitioned the city for permission to extend gas mains across certain streets, for the purpose of getting gas delivered from the main distributing point. Perhaps the Ashtabula growers calculate to asphyxiate the high cost of coal this winter by substituting gas for the precious black diamonds.

SWEET PEAS OF TOMORROW.

The Early-Blooming Spencers.

A cordial invitation from Howard M. Earl to visit the Fordhook Farms of W. Atlee Burpee & Co. was one of those happy incidents that promise an hour of absorbing interest. Mr. Earl said that George W. Kerr would be there to show the sweet peas and to tell of his trip to the seed growing farm at Floradale, in the Lompoc valley of far-off California. So on the morning of June 15 the first train over the Reading railroad to Lonsdale was taken. Then over a single-track road, through a beautiful rolling country, to the Farm School, where Mr. Kerr was waiting on the station platform with a hearty greeting.

Every moment of the hour and a half that followed was delightful. The walk through the woods to the trial grounds at Fordhook has always possessed an especial charm. That day it was of the morning freshness after the rain of the afternoon before. During the walk Mr. Kerr described his visit to California, from which he has just returned. He dwelt especially on the 100 acres of the firm's seed farm at Floradale, where the sweet peas are being grown and tested. The favorable climatic conditions were carefully described. The early spring rains, the cool nights continuing into summer, the even temperature, the dryness during harvest—all were mentioned as factors in aiding a fertile soil to produce results that are little short of marvelous.

Outdoor Peas in Bloom May 15?

The sweet pea trial grounds at Fordhook were a distinct surprise. It was the fifteenth day of June. No one in this locality has sweet peas in bloom outdoors. You say you have them? I do not doubt your word, but let me tell you that they have been scarce in Philadelphia, where all the sweet peas from outdoors that are coming into the market are from coldframes. Here were peas in full bloom, long rows of them, peas that evidently had been in bloom for at least a month. This sight was the more surprising because I clearly remembered that on a previous visit, when the Burpees had a party at Fordhook at about this season of the year, the sweet peas were only just coming into flower. Mr. Kerr explained the matter. These sweet peas were early Spenceer varieties. Practically nobody grows anything but Spenceers now, but they were started in pots under glass. Here was something worth while. Sweet peas are wanted in the Philadelphia cut flower market and probably in the markets of many other cities from May 15 to June 15. During that month sweet peas that are grown in greenhouses are apt to be poor. The early-flowering varieties started in the greenhouse and transplanted outdoors, or grown in coldframes for the market requirements, and the Spencer varieties grown in the same way, are too late. They will not flower until after June 15, when the market commences to decline. Here, right in front of us, lay what the sweet pea growers of America want, early-blooming Spencer sweet peas.

Mr. Kerr's Nine Years' Work.

Mr. Kerr said that when he first came to this country from England nine years ago he had been attracted by the sweet peas in the store windows in winter. He had never seen them at home—often in summer, never in winter. Sweet peas had been his life's work. He commenced then to improve the sweet pea by hybridizing with the object of securing early-blooming winter sweet peas that would be the peer of the finest summer-flowering varieties. The varieties in the store windows then were, of course, of the old grandiflora type. Countess Spencer and the first of her great train of descendants had just become generally known and admired. So Mr. Kerr began work with the definite aim of producing a race of Spencer peas that would flower as early as the varieties of the grandiflora type. This has been accomplished after nine years' work.

The first crosses were made with the earliest varieties of the grandiflora type, Burpee's Earliest of All, Burpee's Earliest White, and so on. Then came crosses with the Spencers, by that time an increasingly numerous family. Then Yarrawa appeared. The merits of this sterling variety have made it Mr. Kerr's choice for a pod parent. Chief among Yarrawa's good qualities is its ability to stand variations of temperature in the greenhouse without showing signs of stress. So on Yarrawa the pollen of many promising crosses was carefully dusted. An important precept of Mendelism, one which Mr. Kerr has proved correct, is seed variation in the first year. Inability to recognize this law has undoubtedly cost sweet pea hybridizers dearly. I tried to shake Mr. Kerr in his belief on this point, because, being ignorant of it, it seemed to me somewhat improbable. Mr. Kerr only became more firm. It is absolutely impossible to tell what a sweet pea seedling will be until its second year, was his final statement. Not even half of them retain the same color in their second year they displayed during their first season of blooming. After the second year the type is apt to remain fixed.

Burpee's Fourteen Seedlings.

There were fourteen seedlings in the trial grounds; all were of tried merit. A few have been sent out in a limited way; the remainder are to be sent out next season. They covered a wide range of colors and all showed Spencer blood. Commercially speaking, Fordhook Pink and White is the most interesting, because, in plain English, it is an extra early sweet pea of Blanche

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE—AND WHY

COMMODORE JOHN NEWTON CHAMPION.

JOHN NEWTON CHAMPION, of New Haven, Conn., faces the terrors of the deep and the deep terrors of a lodge initiation with equal fortitude. Not only is he commodore of the New Haven Yacht Club, but is a member of all the New Haven Masonic bodies, the Odd Fellows, the Elks, Eagles, Moose, a colonel of the military rank of Knights of Pythias, veteran of the famous New Haven Grays and Governor Fort Guards, a member of the Chamber of Commerce, Auto Club, Publicity Club, Sachem Head Yacht Club, Sons of the American Revolution, Founders and Patriots of America, French Bull Dog Club of America, Western French Bull Dog Club and a delegate of the American Kennel Club. Besides, he is a member of the S. A. F. and F. T. D. He is the champion of Champion & Co., florists, and has been in the business for forty years. No man could belong to all the organizations the Commodore does and not be a good fellow.

Ferry coloring and Spencer form and size. Mr. Kerr thought that three-quarters of the sweet peas grown commercially under glass are of this color. Next in point of interest among these wonderful seedlings is Snowstorm, a pure white sweet pea, as its name so well implies, and one of large size. Already one and one-half acres of Snowstorm are growing at Floradale, although its early history bade fair to end in a tragedy.

The remaining twelve varieties are all good. They range in color from scarlet and carmine through sunburst shades and lavender and pinks to palest primrose. Their names are so cleverly chosen as to be descriptive to those familiar with the leading varieties of sweet peas.

Near the sweet pea trial grounds are a few rows of peas that illustrate one of Mr. Kerr's points of culture in fall planting of sweet peas to secure early flowering outdoors. Many of the experts claim that fall planting succeeds about once in three times. On the other two occasions the seed will rot. Here at Fordhook is Mr. Kerr's answer—a heavy, vigorous, free-flowing lot of sweet peas. He insists that his method insures the grower against failure. It is simply this: Sow the seeds, for the latitude of Philadelphia, during October. Protect the rows from December until March with slanting boards, running lengthwise, with a pane of glass over the top; then remove the glass and later the boards. Of course, this method is in addition to the usual cultural course for securing early outdoor sweet peas. The demonstration was proof of its efficiency.

THE PLANTS IN THE FIELD.

The Rains and the Weeds.

The frequent rains are not altogether to the liking of the young carnation plants in the field. While the plants enjoy a plentiful supply of water, there is a limit beyond which moisture becomes a detriment rather than a benefit. A heavy shower will do no harm if the soil be cultivated before the next one, but when one heavy rain follows another, with no chance for cultivation between, it soon packs the soil down so that it cannot be worked into proper condition during the current season. Do not work the soil while it is wet, but get into it at every opportunity.

About this time we usually find it necessary to go through the carnation field with the hoe, cutting out the weeds and loosening the soil between the plants. With the cultivator you can keep down the weeds rather well between the rows, but between the plants in the row you must use the hoe. If you have experienced men for this work, you are fortunate, as in many instances it is necessary to put on men who have had no experience, except, perhaps, in the corn field back home. We find most of these men inclined to draw up the soil around the plants, the same as they did when hoeing corn. Others will draw away the soil, leaving the plant standing high and likely to fall over after the first rain. Avoid both of these conditions. Stoop down to pull the weeds that are too close to the plants to be hoed out properly, leaving the soil as it was before the hoeing, except for the loosening up.

When the Young Shoots Lengthen.

You now will find it necessary to go over the plants every little while to top back any young shoots that begin to lengthen out. It is better to go over them often, taking out one or two shoots at a time, rather than to top back a large number of shoots at one time. In that way you will get shoots in every stage of development and promote a steady cut of blooms throughout the season, rather than in crops. In topping always strive to produce well balanced, bushy plants. Aim to secure plants that will stand upright and re-plant without breaking when transferred to the benches. There is a great difference in varieties and this must always be kept in mind when topping. Such varieties as Beacon and Enehan-tress will need little topping as compared with Gloriosa, Good Cheer, Nebraska and others of that type of growth. The former will make four or five breaks when topped, while the other type will usually make two breaks and sometimes even only one, which makes it necessary to go over the latter type oftener to avoid straggly growth.

When topping the plants be sure you do not merely pull out the leaves, leaving the heart to grow right out again, as is often done. This is a waste of time and does the plant no good. A good plan is to leave a shoot until you can see the stem between the leaves, and then break out the tip, leaving as many joints as the habit of the plant warrants. Hoeing, cultivating and topping the young carnations constitute the major portion of the plants' requirements while they are in the field. If you attend to these matters properly, you should have good plants to bench, but you cannot expect to have good plants unless you do attend to the field work properly.

ABOUT THE GLASS.

I am going to build a greenhouse this summer and would like to know what is the best grade of glass to use. The size I need is 14x18. I have been told not to get double A because I shall not be able to get good insurance on it. I have also heard that the majority of houses are built of extra heavy single strength B. I shall need sixty boxes of glass and would like to know about what the cost would be per box. Can you give me the name of some good glass manufacturing company?

G. H.—Mo.

The best glass for greenhouses is double strength A; anything else, at best, is on the "just as good" order. Many builders of greenhouses use the B grade on the north side, although they pay the extra price for the best grade for the south side. Double strength glass costs more, but breaks less easily and the insurance on double strength is less in proportion than on single strength. Single strength glass usually is plenty strong enough to carry a winter's load of snow, but sometimes a hail storm will break most of the single strength glass and little that is double strength. Many buyers of glass no doubt are influenced principally by the price, but the man who is building a large place for cut flowers would do well to consider first the freedom from blisters, the color of the glass and its even thickness, rather than the few pennies per box that may be saved on a less desirable quality. There is a great deal of difference in this respect. For quotations on any quantity or grade write to the advertisers who are offering glass in The Review.

MUMS FOR A BEGINNER.

What varieties of chrysanthemums would you advise a beginner to grow, and how would you proportion the colors? We expect to grow about 1,000 plants. Would 2¼ or 2½-inch plants be satisfactory? We want to grow the greater part of these one flower to a plant. We also wish to grow about 250 plants in pots, 100 of them yellow, fifty pink, fifty white and twenty-five each of white and pink pompons. When is the proper time to start the plants?

J. S.—Mich.

A beginner in mums should grow the varieties known to the trade as "easy doers," as they are the varieties that give maximum satisfaction and blooms with minimum effort and trouble. It is somewhat difficult to tell any man what to grow when one is not acquainted with his market, but it is a safe rule that every market has a larger call for yellows than for any other color. Of 1,000 plants, I would suggest that at least 400 of them be yellow, 300 white, 200 pink and 100 bronze. The following varieties cover the season fairly well and are all of what is known as the commercial type:

Yellow, Golden Glow, Chrysolora, Yellow Eaton, Major Bonaffon and Yellow Chadwick. Golden Glow gives the first flowers, from September to about October 1, and Yellow Chadwick may be planted to flower from Thanksgiving to Christmas.

White, Early Frost, Oeonto, Polly

Rose, White Chieftain and White Chadwick.

Pink, Unaka, Pacific Supreme, Chieftain, Nerissa and Patty. Many growers cling to the old Maud Dean for a late pink, but if one wishes an extremely late pink, he should try W. T. Broek. This is the best one, in my opinion.

Bronze is neglected in most markets, wrongly so, I think. New York city will take more bronze mums than anything else. The artists know that the color blends well with the autumn foliage. Three satisfactory bronze varieties are: Tints of Gold, early; Mrs. O. H. Kahn and Glenview.

Regarding the pot plants, I would suggest the Cap family, which is the standard almost the world over for pot plants. Use 100 Yellow Cap and fifty each of Pink Cap and White Cap. Two fine white and pink pompons would be White Doty and Lillian Doty, or Queen of the Whites and the pink Esa. Two splendid whites in the Japanese anemone types, largely grown for the eastern markets, are Garza and C. L. Hutchinson.

Regarding the proper time to plant, florists usually plant stock as soon as they get the houses cleaned out, in June. Pot plants can be planted any time now. Plants in 2½-inch pots would be entirely satisfactory to buy. It is not suggested that the list submitted will be satisfactory for every section of the country, but on broad, general lines, it will be found as good a list as any.

GUARANTORS FOR NEXT SHOW.

Backers for St. Louis Event.

Now that the question of the building for the Fifth National Flower Show, at St. Louis, has been decided upon, the work of the show will be pushed with vigor. The flower show committee will, of course, consult the St. Louis Florists' Club and local florists' interests before going ahead with any of the arrangements, and the wishes of these bodies will be considered wherever possible. With everyone working in a spirit of harmony, there is no question but what the Fifth National Flower Show will be as successful as any held in the past.

The following have placed their names on the guarantors' list, and the total subscribed is a few hundred dollars less than the $10,000 required, so if you are interested we would ask that you send in your subscription promptly so that the list may be closed:

Springfield, Mass.—Charles M. Fuller, chief clerk at the L. D. Robinson flower store, and Miss Margaret J. Cochrane were married at Granby, Mass., May 16. Mr. Robinson furnished the decorations for the wedding, which was an unusually pretty affair, and the designer at the Robinson store produced artistic bouquets for the bride, maid of honor and bridesmaids. Both Mr. and Mrs. Fuller are popular in Springfield.

THE CONVENTION GARDEN.

Some active work is now in progress at the New York Botanical Garden, Bronx park, covering the layout of the Convention Garden. The backward season has been greatly in favor of the plantings, and at present it looks as though planting operations may continue for two or three weeks more. The public, too, is taking extraordinary interest in the Convention Garden, as is usual with all the work of the Botanical Society, and the work is being done under acute observation. Judging from the interest commonly expressed in the society's garden work, it is expected that the Sunday crowd of visitors alone will run to the 75,000 mark. These visitors are not altogether flat-dwellers, as one may observe when looking over the license plates on the automobile parkings of a Sunday.

The rate for planting space is low, only 10 cents per square foot. Conse-

Special Notice

Because the Fourth of July falls on Wednesday this year, it becomes necessary to go to press with that week's issue of Contributors and advertisers who wish to avoid possible disappointment will have their "copy" in this office MONDAY for the issue of July 5.

quently anyone who has a specialty in the horticultural lines to exploit will lose a grand opportunity for publicity if advantage is not taken of this garden.

George V. Nash, the head gardener at the Botanical Garden, is giving the Convention Garden personal and constant supervision, a fact which speaks well for its success.

Of course, the plantings are not confined solely to novelties. Many retail florists would do well to think of the publicity they could get for small cost by making artistic plantings. The opportunity is here. Will it avail?

Up to June 15 the following have secured space in the garden: W. A. Manda, John Scheepers & Co., Inc.; Bobbink & Atkins, A. N. Pierson, Inc.; Conard & Jones Co., Henry A. Dreer, Inc.; John Lewis Childs, Raymond W. Swett, Arthur T. Boddington, Inc.; Arthur Cowee, B. Hammond Traey, Wm. Trieker, Thomas Meehan's Sons, A. L. Miller, R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., and Vaughan's Seed Store.

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

New Buildings Secured.

In The Review of June 14 the news was published that new buildings at St. Louis had been secured for the National Flower Show to be held there next spring. Secretary John Young now has issued the following statement regarding the committee's meeting:

There was a meeting of the National Flower Show committee at the Jefferson hotel, St. Louis, June 8 and 9, to complete arrangements for the 1918 National Flower Show to be held in St. Louis, April 6 to 15.

There were present: George Asmus, Chicago, Ill., chairman; John Young, New York, secretary; J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb., treasurer; Patrick Welch, Boston, Mass.; Adolph Farenwald, Roslyn, Pa.; Robert C. Kerr, Houston, Tex., president of the S. A. F., and A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis, Ind., secretary of the American Carnation Society.

While the Coliseum building, where it was originally intended to house the show, was still available, it was, in the opinion of the committee, entirely too small for the purposes of the exhibition, and for the meetings and the convention of the S. A. F., which will be held at the same time. It was finally decided to lease Moolah Temple, 3821 Lindell boulevard, and also the adjoining vacant lot, 155x300 feet, upon which a temporary building will be erected for the flower show. This temporary building will be connected by a passageway with the second, or lower floor of the Temple, where the trade exhibits will be located.

Ample for Trade Exhibits.

At no previous National Flower Show were conditions more adequate for exhibits in the trade section. The floor space dimensions are about 100x200 feet, and the quarters at present are used as the dining hall for the members of the Temple after their sessions. The main floor, about 75x200 feet, is expected to be used for exhibits and displays of retail florists. The business meetings of the society will be held in one of the side rooms on this floor.

The lot upon which the temporary building that is to house the National Flower Show will be erected, is located at McPherson and Van de Venter avenues, in one of the best residential sections of the city. As the exhibits in the temporary building will be placed on the bare ground, there will be no danger of damaging any hardwood floors. Consequently, there will be unsurpassed watering facilities.

Financial Outlook Good.

The decision of the society to hold the convention and National Flower Show at the same time, in the spring, is approved by the S. A. F. members in all sections of the country, and even at this early date, before the floor plans have been issued, exhibitors are reserving space in the trade section, so the outlook is encouraging as to the financial success of the exhibition.

From now until the date of the show, there will be on the site of the temporary building a huge signboard to be used for publicity purposes.

The schedule committee will meet at an early date to revise the schedule already issued, which was compiled to meet the somewhat limited space afforded by the floor area of the Coliseum. The new arrangements insure ample room for the exhibits of rock gardens, rose gardens and other displays if it is decided to have such exhibits.

Red Cross May Coöperate.

The committee also held a conference with George W. Simmons, head of the American Red Cross in St. Louis, and it may be that the Red Cross organization will coöperate in the entertainment plans, if such course does not conflict with its rules and regulations, on lines similar to those followed by the organization at the New York show.

The committee is grateful for the many courtesies extended during the session by the local florists' interests, especially to D. S. Geddis, F. H. Meinhardt, Wm. C. Smith and Frank Gorly, who were indefatigable in their efforts to assist the committee in its work.

Chagrin Falls, O.—A busy spring during which the demand was continually outstripping the supply, has convinced Carlton Lowe that an investment in another greenhouse now would bring good returns. Accordingly, Mr. Lowe will superintend the erection of a good-sized house when the hot days come around.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

It was another week of low prices because of the flood of peonies, which dominated the market and made all other flower prices weak. Many of the peony arrivals were affected by the hot spell and were useless for the trade. Thousands never left their boxes. Tens of thousands are in cold storage. Now come the local and more northern crops, of finer quality.

June weddings now are at high tide. Some of the large retail houses are averaging two or three weddings per day, but there are few, if any, large decorations, and prices are badly cut when one compares them with the conditions in the trade before the war.

Roses are not in oversupply, and choice flowers of Beauty, Hadley, Brunner, Russell and Prima Donna bring fair prices. Other roses, if of good quality, also are accepted at good prices by the leading retailers and maintain their popularity. Shipments are not excessive.

There have been large shipments of carnations for many weeks. Accumulations were inevitable, and they found almost their only refuge in the pushcart brigade. Longiflorums did not rise above 3 cents; neither did callas. Many were sold at $20 per thousand. Valley holds at last week's quotations. Stock must be perfect for wedding bouquets to touch $5 per hundred. All kinds of seasonable flowers may be seen in the wholesale windows, and most of them remain there.

Various Notes.

Last week Liberty bonds were the principal topic in the market, and every florist seems to be wearing the button. Some of the trade have bought heavily, and many of the wholesalers have made it possible for their employees to own bonds on easy terms.

The interest in the coming S. A. F. convention is growing daily. The decision to avoid unnecessary display seems to have met with unanimous approval. Secretary Young has received many communications to this effect. It is believed this will be the most practical and businesslike convention the society ever has held. Members of the trade intending to have exhibits are especially jubilant because of the increased attention that will be given to their displays. The Grand Central Palace will be the center of all interest all the time.

In the advertisement of the wholesalers who had joined the Sunday closing movement, the names of Riedel & Meyer, two of the chief movers in its behalf, were inadvertently omitted by the writer of the announcement.

Ed. Hanft, of the Hentz & Nash staff, is enjoying two weeks' vacation with his family at Rockaway Park.

William Knight, a respected employee of Herman Warendorff, of the Ansonia, during the last twelve years, died Thursday, June 14, of pneumonia. He leaves a wife and family.

Miss Edmondson, bookkeeper for M. C. Ford, is contemplating taking up Red Cross work, to be ready when her country calls.

H. E. Froment has been serving his country as a juror in the Supreme court, and John Gunther is "doing his bit" in the United States court.

Since the Sunday closing movement matured they call J. K. Allen "deacon" in his home town in New Jersey. Mr. Allen's store has been open every Sunday at 6 a. m. during the last thirty years.

W. Gunther has been elected a trustee in his church since he gave up business on Sundays.

The Cadjeaux Co. decorated the Church of St. Stephen and the ballroom of the Majestic June 27 for the Rowan-Hill wedding.

G. E. M. Stumpp has opened his summer store at Southampton, L. I.

The New York florists who have branches at Newport, R. I., have decided to continue them this season, notwithstanding the unfavorable factors.

The Convention Garden, retarded by the exceptionally cold season, now begins to look well and promises to be at its best when the conventionists visit it in August. Visitors to Bronx park can find the garden easily by keeping to the right after passing the conservatories.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

The weather was warm last week, and there was a large quantity of flowers in the market. The general demand was excellent, commencements creating the biggest call, while weddings were exceedingly numerous. Large funeral orders were a feature of last week's business, including several orders for casket blankets. The shipping trade has been good.

Home-grown peonies are flooding the market, but the sale of them is good. Prices are holding up exceptionally well. Roses are in plentiful supply, Russells being especially fine, the best of these selling at $15 per hundred. There also are splendid blooms of Shawyer, Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty, Ward and Sunburst. Carnations are more than plentiful, and their quality is excellent. Easter lilies are in good supply and the demand for them in funeral work continues good. Gladiolus offerings are of fine quality and the supply is increasing daily.

Sweet peas of the Spencer varieties continue to arrive of splendid quality. Callas are in moderate supply and outdoor flowers are increasing in variety.

Outdoor snapdragons appeared on the market last week; also cornflowers, mignonette, larkspurs, Spanish irises, candytuft, calendulas, pansies, daisies and valley. Orchids are scarce and the prices are high. Greens of all kinds are in excellent demand, especially smilax.

The demand for bedding plants continues good. June 16 more bedding plants were sold than during any week of the bedding season this year.

Various Notes.

The June meeting of the Fort Wayne Florists' Club was held June 13 at the Doswell Floral Co. store. In the absence of the president and vice-president, the chairman of the program committee, Mrs. Richard Blossom, presided. The club decided to hold its annual picnic July 11, the members to go in cars to some lake. Mrs. R. W. Doswell was appointed chairman of the committee in charge of the arrangements. The paper for the evening, "Landscape Gardening," by John H. Doswell, was most instructive.

Clem Lanternier and Herman J. Leitz, of the New Haven Floral Co., New Haven, Ind., spent last week in Chicago on a business visit.

The Flick Floral Co. had some handsome baskets for the opening of the Steele-Myers department store. This concern has had an unusual quantity of wedding work this month and funeral work has been heavy.

The Doswell Floral Co. reports a larger number of weddings than during any previous year in June.

Frank Knecht is shipping large quantities of Ophelia, Shawyer and Mrs. Chas. Russell roses to eastern markets.

A. J. Lanternier & Co. have had a record business in June weddings and school commencements. They are cutting a fine lot of roses at present.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Blossom and their son, Flick Blossom, are spending a week at Rockford, O., with friends.

Ralph Tinkham, of the J. F. Sullivan establishment, Detroit, Mich., is spending several weeks in this city, having come here to attend the wedding of Miss Mildred Flick. Mr. Tinkham and Miss Flick were in the same party that went abroad three years ago, and they were in Lucerne, Switzerland, when the war broke out.

London, England.—There will be no spring shows of consequence this year. Both the London and Birmingham daffodil shows were abandoned.

Lisse, Holland.—J. J. Grullemans states that it has been terribly dry, little snow or rain having fallen for six or eight weeks during the winter, and the spring has been abnormally cold. Early tulips and hyacinths were in flower when the Darwins should have been in full bloom. Mr. Grullemans says it is a unique season in his forty years' experience.

Paris, France.—The reforestation of the evacuated battlefields already has begun, coniferous seeds being procured in England for the purpose.

London, England.—Some of the local War Agricultural Executive Committees in Lincolnshire have been putting pressure on bulb growers to destroy their stocks and plant corn or potatoes. The growers, while willing to do all in their power to assist food production, pointed out that to destroy an acre of bulbs worth $1,250, to grow corn worth $100, would be ruinous.

OBITUARY

Rodman M. Eisenhart.

After an illness of short duration, R. M. Eisenhart, of Torresdale, Pa., passed away June 12. Many years ago Mr. Eisenhart's skill as a violet grower won for him the cognomen of "Violet King" among Philadelphia tradesmen, and in later years he became famous for his fine sweet peas. He is survived by his wife, a daughter and two sons.

John Young.

John Young, gardener to Col. Samuel P. Colt, Bristol, R. I., died suddenly June 9 at his home in Bristol. Mr. Young was stricken with apoplexy while at work on the Colt estate and was assisted to his home, where he collapsed and died soon after. He was born in Scotland eighty years ago and after coming to this country was employed on private estates in New York city and at Troy, N. Y. He had been at Linden Place, the Colt estate, twelve years. He leaves a widow. W. H. M.

CINCINNATI, O.

The Market.

The market is well supplied with all kinds of seasonable stock, though there is noticeable a reduction in the number of receipts under those of a week ago. The demand, while fair, continues too weak to take care of the large supplies, or even to clear enough stock to support substantial prices. Numerous weddings have been productive of good business and last week's school commencements created a lively call, although the demand was confined to a few items of stock.

Roses are in good supply. Carnations are plentiful, but from now on the supply undoubtedly will grow smaller. Easter lilies are most plentiful; gladiolus offerings include excellent blooms of America; valley meets with a good demand. Among others present are sweet peas, snapdragons, larkspurs, coreopsis and cornflowers.

Greens are plentiful. The demand from out of town for new ferns is strong.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell has been making large shipments of new ferns during the last fortnight.

L. H. Kyrk is back again at his desk, after having been confined to his home last week with a severe cold.

William Taylor is cutting excellent America gladioli.

P. J. Olinger's blooms of his new red carnation, Radium, were in large demand last week for commencement business and realized the best carnation prices of the crowded market.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange has been marketing an excellent lot of Easter lilies. C. H. H.

Canton, O.—The greenhouse formerly conducted by J. W. Martin, on Route No. 4, has been acquired by W. H. Clouse, Jr.

Iola, Kan.—The greenhouses formerly operated by J. W. Primmer have passed to the ownership of J. S. Stremmer, who has renamed them Iola Greenhouses.

VEGETABLES AND FRUITS DEPARTMENT

THRIPS ON CUCUMBERS.

What is the best method of exterminating thrips on cucumber plants? Do thrips thrive best in a damp, moist atmosphere? I have tried a lime and sulphur spray and also cyanide gas, but neither of these has done the work.

F. J. L.—O.

Thrips, or leaf hoppers, thrive best in a dry atmosphere. Try spraying them with a nicotine spray. Add a couple of pounds of soap to every fifty gallons of water to make the mixture sticky.

DISTINGUISHING MUSHROOMS.

There is no simple test for distinguishing between edible and poisonous mushrooms. The only safe mushrooms to eat are those which are gathered by a collector who knows exactly what he is doing. In order to make easier the all-important distinction between poisonous and nonpoisonous growths, the U. S. Department of Agriculture has just published a new bulletin entitled, "Some Common Edible and Poisonous Mushrooms," Farmers' Bulletin No. 796.

The most common edible mushroom is known to scientists as Agaricus campestris. This variety is not only cultivated commercially, but is widely distributed and is abundant in the wild state. The cap is fleshy and hemispherical in shape, but later becomes expanded and nearly flat. It is smooth, in color white or light brown, and the flesh is white and firm. The gills are white at first, later become pink, and finally turn a blackish brown. The stem is stout, smooth, and furnished with a ring. This type of mushroom is readily recognized, but there is some possibility that it may be confused with an amanita, of which there are several varieties, most of them extremely poisonous. The risk of mistaking the common mushroom for one of these may be avoided if the fungus is not picked until the gills are pink or turning to brown. The gills of the amanita remain white.

HOW TO GROW PEANUTS.

Will you kindly let me know how to grow peanuts? C. F. S.—Ill.

As a garden plant the peanut can be grown as far north as central New York, but only a few pods will actually mature seeds. The planting season, as well as the field care of peanuts, is practically the same as for corn. Scatter shelled nuts six to ten inches apart in rows thirty to thirty-six inches apart. The vines are tender and will be killed by the first frost. The crop is harvested by lifting the vines and piling around a stake placed upon cleats to keep them off the ground. The roots with the nuts attached should be next to the stake to prevent discoloration by weather.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

Christian Dehn, of Saratoga Springs, N. Y., handed in his subscription with the remark: "Send me that big book, The Florists' Review. Too busy to say more now. Good-bye."

H. L. Crandell, of Glens Falls, N. Y., has a fine display of Darwin tulips, pronounced by a purchaser "darlings." He would rather have their room now, although they come in splendidly for funeral work.

A. J. Binley, Glens Falls, N. Y., is an inventive genius. Following his successful cut rose box holder, he has an arrangement by which his typewriter gives expression to his utterances in various colors. Business is good with him and has been right along.

John L. Watkins & Son, of Hudson Falls, N. Y., consider Geranium Marquise de Castellane the best all-around variety. It is not new, but well worthy of special notice, its heavy foliage and flower spike of deep salmon making it a most desirable kind to grow. Myron J. Watkins, the junior member of the firm, is spending his vacation from Cornell University to good advantage with A. N. Pierson at Cromwell, Conn., getting practical experience in landscaping.

The shrubbery and hardy flowering plants in the suburban gardens of Philadelphia are perfectly gorgeous this season. Japanese maples and hardy Ghent azaleas are a brilliant sight. The golden laburnum, seldom seen in good specimens, was as heavily flowered as wistaria, which was never known to bloom so freely as now. The good people of the Quaker city seem to take this exhibition of Nature's spring adornment as quite natural, while our Boston friends see that due recognition is given by the press.

Fred A. Danker, of Albany, N. Y., notes that while the call for elaborate designs for Memorial day was not so heavy as on some occasions, the house had a fine sale of general stock, practically clearing all the best stock at the greenhouses.

William C. Gloeckner, of Albany, made a fine display and reaped his share of business for the day. The Gloeckner greenhouses, at Menand, grow large quantities of stock for the Albany store.

H. G. Eyres, of Albany, was crowded in his basement store, but made a good display nevertheless. He remarked that all hands had all they could do to handle the Memorial day business.

A. D. Carpenter, of Cohoes, N. Y., did not notice any decline in purchases for Memorial day, the fine weather and the excellence of general business in this district doubtless proving big factors.

A. J. Courcelle & Son, of Rutland, Vt., recently rebuilt their establishment, and wonder now how they did business so long in the old place. Better stock and bigger sales are the result. Three promising sons are ready to serve and are awaiting the call of their country. W. M.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.
Officers for 1917: President, Robert O. Kerr, Houston, Tex.; vice-president, A. L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y.; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb.

Thirty-third annual convention, New York, N. Y., August 21 to 24, 1917.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

THERE still is a large unsatisfied demand for vegetable plants, particularly tomato and sweet potato.

WITH the certainty that the supply of outdoor flowers will be less than usual this summer, the next two or three months promise usually well for the outflower business.

REPORTS from transportation companies and resort hotels indicate that there will be much less vacation traveling than usual this summer, which should be a distinct gain to the retail trade of the home florist.

WATCH the Pacific Coast Department for offers of stock not obtainable elsewhere. Soon the western edge of America will be the trade's principal source of supply for many items heretofore procured from Europe.

THE spring bedding plant season has been two or three weeks late almost everywhere, but as soon as weather conditions became right the work assumed heavier volume than ever before. It is turning out to be an excellent season, but there was so large a quantity of stock grown this year that it has not nearly all been sold as yet.

THE Hollanders still on this side of the water have become confident that the fall importations of bulbs and nursery stock will come. They base their belief on the official news from Washington that two steamers of the Holland-America line are on their way here with cargo, the first boats to bring cargo since the famous recall of the Nieuw Amsterdam in the last days of January.

THIS IS THE KIND.

The following paragraph, from the Kansas City news-letter, is the kind we like to read:

E. G. Bunyar, of Independence, has cleared his greenhouses of bedding plants, having sold more than 200,000 of all kinds. The sales netted him $2,000 more this year than last and he has invested the profits in Liberty bonds. He has his houses planted for fall trade and is now on a fishing trip.

There are many florists who have bought Liberty bonds with the season's profits, in spite of increased expenses, and we hope they find the fishing good.

PLEASE NOTE.

Each week a number of letters containing advertising instructions reach The Review while the paper is on the press—just a few hours earlier and they would have had attention a week sooner than is possible.

It is the aim to give prompt service, but to secure it advertisers should note: "It is impossible to guarantee the insertion, discontinuance or alteration of any advertisement unless instructions are received by 4 p. m. Tuesday."

"BOOST BUSINESS"—WILSON.

Every means of stimulating business should be used now, President Wilson said in a letter to E. P. V. Ritter, of the Merchants and Manufacturers Exchange of New York City, made public June 17. Mr. Ritter wrote the President concerning the advisability of holding commercial conventions during the war.

"I not only see no reason why commercial conventions should be omitted during the war," the President replied, "but should regret to see any instrumentality neglected which has proved serviceable in stimulating business and facilitating its processes. This is not only not a time to allow any slowing up of business, but is a time when every sensible process of stimulation should be used."

ANTICIPATING OUR WANTS.

Constantly increasing costs of most of the materials used by the trade make it impossible for growers and those who deal indirectly or directly with the public to make a profit without raising prices. In consequence the prices asked for bedding stock have been raised without any noticeable decrease in demand. This is a sign that the business of producing and selling flowers is in a healthy state.

But production costs have not stopped mounting. As the war progresses they are steadily advancing and it is predicted that they will continue to advance. There is a way, however, by which the trade can keep the costs down and every member of it who is in a position to do so should take advantage of it. That is by anticipating our wants so far as is possible and getting a stock of materials and supplies.

Large growers have been doing this. Others would do so if their capital was sufficient. But there are many others who, believing that by the next time it is necessary to purchase prices will be lower, have been buying as need has demanded and find that every purchase calls for a larger outlay.

The raw material market of the United States is higher than for many years, and promises to continue upward. Manufacturers assert that there is every reason to believe that before the war is over and the reconstruction necessary in Europe is finished, the prices of today will be considered low.

There seems not much chance that greenhouse supplies will be cheaper. On the other hand, there is every evidence that they will cost more. Buying now will probably mean a saving.

$2,000 FOR $3.75! DON'T CROWD!

One of the most curious aspects of the many differing ideas regarding advertising is the queer conception that only the advertising which involves a large expenditure of money is greatly successful.

Scores of advertisers with individual expenditures of only a few dollars are regularly gaining tremendously effective results from the use of The Review.

Such results are, indeed, so common that they secure only passing interest, except from those who are directly interested.

For example, one advertiser in The Review sold $2,000 worth of stock through six insertions of a 5-line Classified advertisement. The advertising cost was $3.75, or less than one per cent. Here is the letter, verbatim:

Please discontinue our leaf-mold ad in the Classified Section. Six insertions sold four carloads, or 1,600 barrels!—G. M. Reburn & Co., 160 North Wabash avenue, Chicago, Ill., June 18, 1917.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising, you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

GOVERNMENT ORDERS COAL.

The government has ordered 1,750,000 tons of coal for the navy, principally from the West Virginia mines from which many florists have been obtaining smokeless coals. It is not new for the navy to use this fuel, but this year its needs are increased. Last year's contract price was $2.88 per ton delivered at Newport News, Va. The mines asked the government to pay $2.95 at the mine for the present purchase. Exercising its authority, the government ordered shipments to begin and agreed to pay $2.33 at the mine on account, the final price to be fixed in the course of time by the President or a duly appointed commission.

Florists who feel that they must have Pocahontas or New River smokeless coal are asked to pay $5 to $6 per ton, f. o. b. the mine, for mine-run.

The Market.

A decided change for the better has come over the wholesale cut flower market. With stocks of all kinds plentiful and demand lethargic up to June 16, a marked shortening of stock took place and demand strengthened considerably, cleaning the market satisfactorily for the week. As most growers are going off crop and replanting, a large increase in the supply is not looked for in the near future. Shipping trade is moderately active, with local demand holding up its end well, so that, speaking by and large, no complaint as to the condition of the market is warranted.

Usually the peony is the dominating flower at this date. It is not so this year. The arrivals, while large, have

Here's Another Good Novelty-- Colored Bachelors' Buttons

WE are able to offer Double Bachelors' Buttons in Pink and Cerise at $1.50 per 100—the only real novelty now in market. These were extremely popular last season, when we offered a small quantity, and we arranged for a large crop this season. Ready now. Single blue, 50c per 100.

PLENTY OF VALLEY

You can take orders for brides' bouquets of Valley without danger of disappointing your customers—just order the Valley from Amling.

AMERICAN BEAUTIES

There is nothing takes the place of Beauties for commencements, or other presentation purposes. We have a fine crop and the best quality the season affords.

POPULAR ROSES

The market's largest supply of Milady, Ophelia, Killarney Brilliant and Russell and quality that is, as usual, a shade ahead of any other important supply. You will hold your customers if you use Amling's roses.

"LOCAL" PEONIES

Our home crop of Peonies is being cut—it is the finest stock of the season.

GOOD CARNATIONS

Amling's Carnations are known as the product of the most expert growers in the middle west. The quality this June is above the average for the season. The supply is large.

SWEET PEAS

The largest and finest supply in the west. All colors—nothing but spring-blooming Spencers—fine for corsages.

QUALITY OR PRICE?

Quality is remembered long after price is forgotten—it does not pay to handle "cheap" stock. Amling's prices never are higher than others ask if able to supply an equal grade.

been much less than usual. Only a few have been put in storage, although it has been possible to obtain only low prices. The local cut is just beginning. It does not promise to be large, and so far as can be learned only two or three growers and no commission dealers are planning to put away the flowers. Usually the fresh stock is all in by this date and the freezer holds large quantities. The peony has not been anywhere near so important a flower as usual so far this season, and it looks as though it would be of still less importance after another week.

American Beauties remain in short supply and clear readily. All other varieties of roses are in greatly decreased supply and sell better than they have been doing. Russells still hold their place at the head of the list. It is true that the color has faded somewhat, as a result of the warm, bright weather, but its keeping qualities at the season recommend it to buyers. Red roses are in next active demand, with Sunburst and Ophelia following.

There is a superabundance of carnations on the market, but the quality is deteriorating rapidly as a result of the warm weather, and it is expected that a few hot days will finish them for the season. Carnations now are the most unsatisfactory item on the market, there being scarcely any demand for them.

Easter lilies are plentiful, but move slowly. Callas are at the end of their season. Orchids remain scarce. Good valley also is less plentiful than in other years, but the demand is not nearly so heavy as last year at this time. Stocks are scarce, but in little demand. There were plenty of sweet peas, but the quality is on the down grade except the spring bloomers. Good peas found a ready sale. Calendulas sold fairly well. There is not much good mignonette obtainable. Spanish iris is about finished. Gladioli sell well, Pendleton, America, King and Augusta selling best and in the order named. Daisies find a fair market. Pansies are of poor quality and sell slowly. Double poeticus is out of the market. Candytuft arrives in fair supply and sells readily. Good snapdragons move well, poorer quality dragging, however.

There is a marked scarcity of flat ferns. Sprengeri also is proving a trifle scarce. The supply of plumosus is sufficient to meet the demand.

Various Notes.

At the monthly dinner of the Wholesale Cut Flower Association June 14 early closing was discussed. It appears all the wholesale houses will close at 5 p. m. during July, August and September, but there is no chance that all will remain closed on Sundays. While several wholesalers who cater only to city trade are anxious to stay closed on the Sabbath and some may do so, the houses that enjoy large shipping business feel the need of being open seven days a week. Some of them ship more flowers on Sundays than on Saturdays.

A tremendous quantity of bedding plants has been sold in the last three weeks. Everyone who deals in this class of stock has been on the jump, and the occasional cold, rainy days, when outside work could not be done, have only given a chance to catch up with necessary work inside. But there are large quantities of bedding plants still to sell, especially geraniums and cannas, and some of the smaller growers have taken to peddling them at low prices.

John Evert wants to sell out or lease his place on Devon avenue and go to farming. He benched carnations last summer, the range accommodating from 50,000 to 55,000 plants, but he received so little for the flowers that after the holidays he threw them out and planted lettuce and cucumbers. These have given a little better returns, but not enough to encourage Mr. Evert to wish to stay in the business.

A. J. Zech, of Zech & Mann, and A. C. Kohlbrand, of the E. C. Amling Co., went to Eagle lake in Wisconsin, on the out that the life of the flower business depends in a measure upon the keeping up of social events during the war and that florists should set an example for others to follow by holding their annual picnics, etc., as always.

A. Pasternick, of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, leaves for Wendell, Idaho, June 25, where he will take up farming.

Fred Nelson, of the Geo. Wittbold Co., is not complaining about business, a heavy demand for funeral work keeping his staff hustling.

The first crop from the young Ophelia and Russell plants is being cut at the greenhouses of Peter Reinberg.

Visitors.

There have been many western seedsmen in town during the last few days, on their way to their trade convention at Detroit. They all tell of a big season and high costs, especially of farm labor.

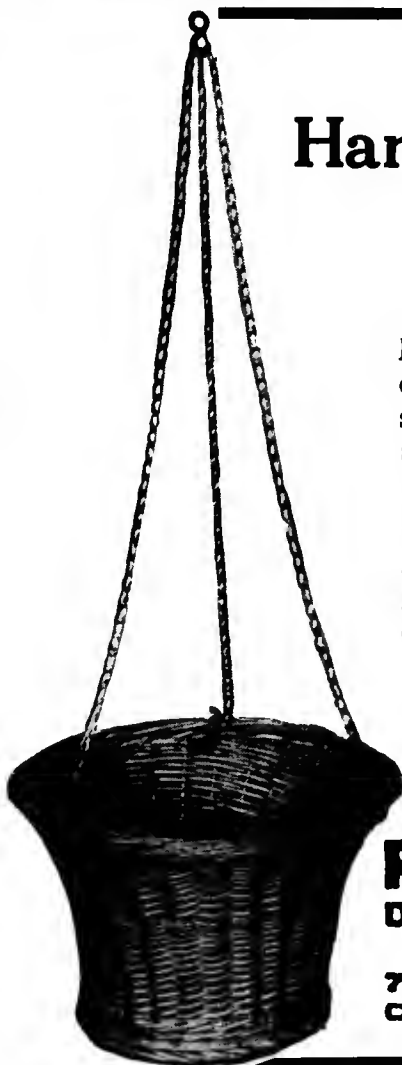

H. and A. G. Lozier, of Des Moines, Iowa, were visitors last week.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

There has been little change in the weather during the last week. We had a few days of cloudy weather that helped to keep down the supply of stock so that it could be handled. The supply, even with the cool weather, has been exceptionally heavy and bargains have been the usual thing.

Carnations last week were more than plentiful and, while the stock was in fairly good condition, the demand was far short of the heavy supply. Sweet peas also were in abundance and large consignments were disposed of cheaply. They were a drug in the market and even with bargain offers there were quantities that could not be moved at any price. Roses have been in good supply, but they have cleaned up well. Prices might have been somewhat higher, considering the quality of this class of stock, but the demand was better than for other stock and there was no surplus.

Easter lilies are in large supply and while they were disposed of in quantity, there were enough to fill all orders and some to spare. The quality of valley has improved tremendously and the quantity has increased to an appreciable degree. This stock is moving readily, despite the fact that outdoor valley is to be had in quantity. There were a few small consignments of local peonies, at the end of last week, but only reds. The other colors will not be ready for a week or two. There are plenty of snapdragons in the market, but the stock is deteriorating and is not moving well. The cool, wet weather still retards the sale of plants, although some outdoor work is being done.

While there have been some good-sized funeral orders during the last week, there has been no graduation work, and the local tradesmen have only been fairly busy.

To sum up the conditions, we can say that business just about holds its own with that of last year in the cut flower end and that the plant end is still behind its schedule.

Various Notes.

E. P. Holm, of Holm & Olson, St. Paul, Minn., paid our city a flying visit Tuesday, June 12. Mr. Holm's son, as well as the son of Mr. Olson, graduated from St. John's Military Academy, of Delafield, Wis., on that day, and, of course, Mr. and Mrs. Holm attended the exercises. The party made a short stop in Milwaukee on their way home, and this gave Mr. Holm an opportunity to see his friends of the trade.

The delivery car of the Baumgarten Floral Co. quit on the job the other day. The car was traveling downhill at Eighth and Cedar streets when, to avoid striking another car that had gotten in front of it, the driver turned short and the car upset. There was no one hurt and the car was only slightly damaged. The glass panels in the top and the fenders got the worst of it.

Miss Gretchen Baumgarten, who has been seriously ill, is reported to be somewhat improved, although her progress is necessarily slow. She has the best

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

Business last week was helped by a number of weddings, patriotic parties and dances and by high school and college graduations. Despite these outlets, the supply of stock, with the exception of roses and lilies, was not absorbed. Because of the graduations, roses were in big demand. The quality of all stock has been good. The weather has been cool, the temperature falling so low as 41 degrees, and has had an effect on the quality of the roses reaching the market.

Carnations still are of good quality and supply. The best bring $2 per hundred. Peonies are clearing better than had been expected, the fancy varieties selling for $2 and $3 per hundred. Other grades were at low figures.

The market has been flooded with outdoor flowers. Delphinium, daisies, pyrethrum, coreopsis, garden pinks, gypsophila, snapdragons and irises are among those offered. Iris has had its day, but snapdragon still is in good demand. There were few sweet peas, the outdoor stock not having come in and the indoor stock being of poor quality. Feverfew is used for filling, but otherwise there is

The Market.

The market is like a great ship on the ocean that has been pursued and overtaken by an immense wave, which completely engulfed it. From this deluge it is now slowly recovering, righting itself, as it were, and resuming its natural poise. The deluge of peonies is passing. Nothing like it has ever been seen in this market; not merely because there were so many of them, but because they missed their natural outlet of Memorial day by fully a week and have poured down upon us for the last fortnight, carrying everything before them. Such conditions have never been seen here before. Peonies were so plentiful that they sold at ridiculously low prices, or they sold not at all. Everything else was so affected by them that values were reduced to a fraction.

Today conditions are slowly improving. The crest of the peony wave has passed. The crop from now on will be largely from cold storage. Also the great wave of roses and carnations appears to be receding. The poorer flowers are steadily dropping out. The line between select stock of choice varieties and ordinary stock of ordinary varieties is more clearly marked. For instance, choice Beauties, Russell, Hadley, valley, white roses and other fine flowers are more eagerly sought, at better prices, while peonies, carnations, ordinary roses and other staple stock lack support. Snapdragon has been having a hard time, indeed. Good outdoor sweet peas are in demand. Easter lilies and a few fine callas coming into the market are slowly coming to the front. These general notes will give a clear idea of the rather unhappy conditions that have prevailed during the last fortnight. Everybody is tired of handling the tremendous quantity of stock at such inadequate prices.

some Holland rose growers. It fell to my lot to arrange the details of these sales and to sell the plants. We never had any sales that aroused so much popular enthusiasm. I grew fond of the representatives of these Holland firms; they were fine fellows, with whom it was a pleasure to do business. They sent us invoices containing an exact list of the number of cases of rose plants and just how many bushes there were in each case. The bushes were tied in bundles of ten, each bundle containing the correct name of the variety, clearly labeled. The packing and invoicing were so carefully done that we had no difficulty with the varieties.

"The method of selling was to take each variety separately, and to offer to the highest bidder all of that variety, or as many as he or she desired. The excitement sometimes grew so great that choice varieties, such as the Lyon rose, of which there would be only five bundles, or fifty plants, were bid up on one occasion as high as $1 each. When the successful bidder took the whole lot at this price there was a chorus of expostulations from the unsuccessful bidders. I told them that they must bid higher—then they would not be disappointed.

"Our most successful rose plant sale ran up to nearly $4,000. We abandoned these sales, however, after four or five years, because the commission—in this one case something over $300—was not sufficient to cover the cost of the necessary work. While the handling of the plants themselves was not serious, we were obliged to move much expensive furniture and other bulky and easily injured material in order to make room for the plant cases. I have regretted that we could not find some way to continue these sales profitably."

BLACK SAFETY TREAD TIRES

PICTURE to yourself the ROAD TEST Goodrich's Test Car Fleets put to Goodrich Tires.

With light and heavy cars, the fleets hammer Goodrich Tires against sand, rock and gravel in every part of the country.

The Atlantic Fleet, crunching over the hills and valleys of New York and New England;

The Pacific Fleet, pounding along the Western Coast;

The Dixie Fleet, braving the sun grilled roads of the South;

The Lake Fleet, ploughing the sands of Minnesota;

The Prairie Fleet, scouring the region of Kansas City;

The Mountain Fleet, grinding over the rocky trails of Yellowstone and Glacier Park;

All put the ROAD TEST cruelly to Goodrich Tires through millions of miles of roughing it.

Only the BEST can withstand such a TEST.
ONLY the BEST does.

You get it, the TESTED certainty of lasting service, freedom from tire trouble, mileage, backed up by Goodrich Fair Treatment, in Goodrich Black Safety Treads.

THE original Album of Designs was published in response to many requests from florists who felt the need for an up-to-date book that could be used in taking orders for Funeral Designs, Wedding Decorations and Bouquets, Table Decorations and all cut flower work where it was not practicable to show the customer the finished article as it would be when ready for use. With the publication of this album it became possible to show the finished work in beautifully printed pictures. The first edition sold like hot cakes, a second and third edition went quickly. Now a fourth edition is off the press. Everything is in it—all the standard designs and many new pieces.

96 pages, nearly 300 designs and decorations, beautifully printed on heavy art paper, handsomely bound in a cover that will stand wear

The Market.

During the last week large quantities of flowers have flooded the wholesale houses, and prices on nearly all items have been low. There has been a decided lull in business, and consequently stock has remained on sale longer than usual. The peony season, two weeks later than usual, is now at its height. The earlier varieties drag somewhat, but the week-end trade cleared several large batches. An oversupply of carnations prevails, the demand at this time not being large enough to clear the blooms, which are in good condition. The supply of roses is large, but the cuts fail to clear as quickly as they might. Fine

Ophelia, Russell, Ward and Maryland roses sell well.

There are a number of weddings, but most of them are small. Funeral work, also, is somewhat slow, although the Saturday trade was large. Commencement and graduation exercises start next week, and the trade looks for better business.

A large quantity of Easter lilies drags heavily. Indoor peas are becoming poor, only a few especially good ones reaching the market. They sell readily, as do pink snapdragons. Yellow and white daisies sell well. Orchids are scarce and stocks are in small supply. Gladioli sell well, a number of double poeticus narcissi are offered and bachelor's buttons meet with favor. A good supply of irises continues to arrive.

There are other wholesale houses at your service—but there is only one house in Chicago to give "Out-of-town" Buyers F. T. D. Service in a Wholesale Way—

30, was held. Chairman John Dunbar, in the absence of President H. B. Stringer, informed the members that he had been in touch with several of the largest peony growers in the state, who had promised him liberal exhibits. The earliest varieties will be shipped to the George B. Hart wholesale house and there put in cold storage. The decorating and staging of the show are in charge of E. P. Wilson, and the advertising is in the hands of Charles H. Vick. A tea room will be conducted under the auspices of the Lady Florists' Auxiliary. The chairman of the committee covering the musical program is George Boucher. The net proceeds of the show will be donated to the American Red Cross Society.

Colin B. Ogston, the well known orchid expert, spoke of the damage done to the vegetable gardens by dogs and cats. Seeds that today are scarce and expensive are being ripped up by canines, the owners of which allow them to run wild at the expense of those who are trying to grow more foodstuffs. He proposed that the newspapers should do everything to get this important matter before the public.

Various Notes.

John Dunbar, assistant superintendent of parks, has returned from Boston, where he attended the outdoor show.

The Rochester Floral Co. had an attractive window display last week on behalf of the U. S. marines.

The Market.

The market last week was in good condition. Stock of all kinds was plentiful and prices were low. The retailers had a busy week with wedding and funeral work, together with school graduations, so the supply moved well.

There was a big supply of roses, the best sellers being Ophelias, Russells and Killarneys. The calls for Brunners were many, but they were scarce. Carnations were plentiful in all varieties, the price being $1 per hundred for the best of the medium quality stock offered.

Outdoor sweet peas are now coming and the supply is equal to the demand for choice stock. Extra quality gladioli are in the market. The best sellers are Pink Beauty and America. Candidum and Easter lilies are plentiful, with the latter standing still at present.

There is an abundance of outdoor stock, such as coreopsis, phlox, cornflowers, delphinium and daisies, in the market. There are also fine Spanish irises, but there has been little call for them. Flat ferns are scarce, with other greens in plenty.

Club Meeting.

The St. Louis Florists' Club held its monthly meeting June 14 at the Missouri Pottery & Supply Co. establishment. The club members, who were taken to the pottery works in automobiles, were escorted through the place by Paul Reden, president of the company, and other officers. Many of them, for the first time, had an opportunity to see how the pots they handle daily are made and it proved to be an interesting experience.

After President Bourdet had called the meeting to order, the trustees reported that all arrangements for the club's annual picnic, to be held at Ramona park, July 26, had been completed. First there will be an automobile parade starting from the wholesale district. All florists who own machines were asked to decorate them and join in the parade.

J. J. Beneke and F. J. Fillmore were appointed members of a committee to draft resolutions on the death of Alexander Siegel, a former member of the club. It also was decided that the president appoint a new publicity committee. Julius Koenig, city forester, was elected a member of the club.

J. W. Ferris spoke in behalf of Liberty bonds. The National Flower Show, to be held in St. Louis next April, was discussed.

After a vote of thanks had been tendered the Missouri Pottery & Supply Co. for its entertainment, the meeting adjourned. The members were then entertained at luncheon by Mr. Reden, who had presented President Bourdet with a gavel in the shape of a flower pot.

It was the thirty-second anniversary of the club and it was agreed the meeting would long be remembered. Several members of the St. Louis County Growers' Association were present.

Various Notes.

Jules Bourdet, state vice-president of the S. A. F., was busy last week arousing interest in the society among the

The Market.

There is a somewhat better tone to the market, this condition being attributed, in some degree, to weddings, graduations and other school and college exercises. Demands from schools are below normal, as the authorities in quite a number of cases have forbidden the use of flowers on so-called economical grounds. The roses arriving are of grand quality for the latter half of June, due to the fact that we have had little warm weather as yet. Prices vary from 50 cents to $10 per hundred. A limited number only exceed these figures and the demand is chiefly for the medium grades. White Killarney has been selling better, on account of wedding demands. Carnations have been cleaning up more easily, but prices are low, few flowers selling above $1.50 per hundred.

Lilies continue druggery and the large-flowered gladioli go slowly. Sweet peas have arrived in poor condition in many cases. All are from under glass, but the damp and sunless weather has made them soft and they spot easily. There is a heavy supply of both white and yellow marguerites, with only a moderate demand. Local peonies, with the exception of officinalis, are hardly in yet, are almost due. Sales of these will be slow on account of the lateness of the blooming period. Outdoor valley has passed, the flowers having been spoiled by the rain. There is only a moderate call for orchids, and few gardenias are coming in. No hardy roses will this year be available for the school and college graduations. The bedding plant trade promises to be prolonged this season; the demand for vegetable plants this year has never been equaled.

Club Meeting.

There was the usual large attendance but at the monthly meeting of the Gardeners and Florists' Club June 19, more than 200 men and women being present. The action of the executive committee in purchasing $500 worth of Liberty bonds was endorsed. It was voted to give $50 to the American Red Cross Society, which plans to raise $7,000,000 in New England this week. Announcement was made that plans for the annual club picnic at Cunningham park, East Milton, were well under way; also of the club's plans for lectures and exhibitions at the September, October and November meetings. It was voted to carry all club members who have enlisted or who will be called to the colors on the books for the duration of the war.

Following the regular business session a collation was served, after which dancing was enjoyed until midnight. There will be no club meetings during July and August.

Various Notes.

Unfavorable weather has been the lot of the open-air flower show at the Wentworth Institute, which will close on or about June 22, after a three weeks' run. New features have been added almost daily. These have included irises, peonies, lilacs, show pelargoniums, herbaceous perennials and other seasonable flowers. The standard wistarias have been fine and the large rhododendron displays are at their best as the closing time approaches.

Ernest Borowski, the genial and popular Roslindale florist, met with a serious automobile accident June 9 when a large touring car, which was traveling at sixty miles an hour on the wrong side of the street, crashed into his small auto, at Forest Hills. The driver of the touring car was sentenced June 15 to three months in the house of correction. Mr. Borowski, I am glad to say, is convalescing satisfactorily.

The Roper Estate, of Tewksbury, is sending in some grand blooms of the new rose-pink carnation, Albert Roper, which realizes top-notch prices. This carnation seems to be a splendid summer as well as winter variety.

S. J. Goddard and A. A. Pembroke left June 14 for a fishing trip in Maine with C. S. Strout, the vice-president of the American Carnation Society, and had good catches of the finny tribe.

Robert Montgomery, of Natick, is cutting some splendid Russell roses that have brought as high as $16 per hundred this week. All his roses still are in good crop and he continues to get a fine pick of carnations.

We are having a decidedly humid June, not unlike that of 1916. Gardeners and farmers are having a hard time keeping their crops clear of weeds and the army of amateur growers is becoming somewhat discouraged.

The rose and strawberry show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, scheduled for June 23 and 24, has been postponed one week, and unless really hot weather comes along further postponement may be found necessary. Only five of the first eighteen days in June have been clear.

The Welch Bros. Co. is doing a splendid shipping business. It is getting extra fine shipments of valley, lilies, peonies and roses.

As illustrating the lateness of the season, some Darwin tulips were still in good condition June 19; so were many lilacs, tree peonies and most varieties of German irises. Hardy azaleas are not yet at their best, while rhododendrons will not be in good bloom before June 25. Florists who planted carnations and asters on low ground are worried, on account of the frequency of soaking rains and the deficiency of sunshine.

[This is the second and last installment of Tate's story of the life and achievements of John Cook, of Baltimore.]

Two articles are inadequate to tell of the life-work of a man like John Cook; but then we must remember we are only touching the high places—that is, what to us as florists seem to be the important events in this busy life. Now, to anyone who knows what hybridizing roses means, the wonderful things, when you consider the list of good ones he has produced, are the great amount of patience displayed by the man and the knowledge required of the good and bad traits of each variety so that an intelligent cross may be made. For in producing a new rose there is much to be taken into consideration.

There first is the blooming qualities;
then the color, the shape of the flower and its habit. It must be a sturdy grower, one with a stiff stem and good foliage. All of these qualities must be possessed by the parent. Sometimes all the study and labor result in failure.
For instance, one of the finest looking roses Mr. Cook produced was never named, because, he said, it would not pay to grow it on account of its being a shy bloomer. But he is obliged to grow some of it, for several of his best customers demand it and one cannot blame them. It is hard to think of this one as a black sheep, as it has a long stem, fine foliage and a well shaped flower, about the color of old Malmaison. And yet it will not do.

I asked Mr. Cook if he had many failures. He replied: "Thousands."

Is a Patient Man.

Now, we have all heard of the patience of Job, but I do not think he ever produced a new rose; at least I have never read of his having done so. Take Mr. Cook's first hybrid tea, and do not let us forget that this was the first one ever grown in this country. It was a cross between that good old deep pink, Bon Silene, and Louis Van Houtte. Everyone knows what these two varieties are, so it is little wonder that Souvenir of Wootton has stood the test of time.

As we were talking about this old one, Mr. Cook told me an interesting bit of history, which some of the older readers of The Review will recall, as to how it came to get its name. It was during an S. A. F. convention at Philadelphia that J. U. Childs, the great lover and patron of flowers, invited the visitors out to his country place, where they were entertained royally. Someone made the suggestion that the first new thing produced should be named either for the host of the occasion, or for his fine estate. John Cook had this hybrid tea, not yet named. So he christened it Souvenir of Wootton, after the name of Mr. Child's place, in honor of a pleasant occasion.

Won Many Prizes.

There is nothing that gives this old veteran keener pleasure than to sit down with someone he likes and show him the medals he has won, and, if you would listen to him, it was always by some mere chance that his exhibit was judged better than the other fellow's. One medal that he prizes highly is of silver and was given him by the old Maryland Horticultural Society for the best collection of cut roses. Then there is a loving cup from the same society that was donated by Mrs. Robert Garrett (now the wife of Dr. Henry Barton Jacobs) for a best table decoration. Two others that he is proud of were awarded by the American Rose Society. Another is a gold medal from the Pan-American Exhibition for a best bed of roses. This was won with Admiral Schley, one of his family of which he is proud. Another medal is from the Jamestown Exhibition for a bed of roses there.

Mr. Cook's Pet Roses.

As we sat on the porch and talked about his collection of roses—and it was much like a man talking about his children—I asked him which one of them he liked best. His reply was: "There is no better rose grown than Francis Scott Key, if you give it sufficient heat; but for both outside and in, nothing can beat Radiance. From the quantities of My Maryland I have seen the last winter, the boys must think well of it."

Then we got to talking about naming his new roses. He told me that when he was a poor boy in a strange land, without a home and unable to speak the language, the good old State of Maryland took him in; all that he has he owes to her and when there is an opportunity to bring luster to her sons or institutions, she shall have the credit.

On one occasion one of the largest rose growers in the east was negotiating with him for the stock of one of his new roses. Everything was settled until it came to the name. The purchaser wanted to change the name. Mr. Cook's reply was: "I am a Marylander; that rose has been named and it stands." The sale was not made.

But as we say good-bye to our old friend, who stands today among the foremost rosarians, let us impress on him that it is his duty to name the new rose, that will go out in 1918, "John Cook," so that those who work with it in the future can say: "This rose was named for one of the greatest florists of his day." Tate.

Carnations and roses have done remarkably well this season, and the cooler weather has been an extra help, but even at $5 and $4 per hundred for No. 1 and No. 2 quality there is not much margin left after the expenses are taken into account.

The wage increase this year is far greater than at any other time in the country's history. Nobody seems to care whether the goose with the golden eggs is killed or is only badly mauled; in more ways than one it may be said that we are leading a hand-to-mouth existence these days.

Conscription and community gardens are the two main topics, apart from the wonder aroused by William Fendley, who recently brought to perfection three long benches of fine cauliflowers. These were planted about at Easter and are now ready for the market. Mr. Fendley says they are the result of the first attempt to produce cauliflowers under glass in Canada. The crop is a great credit to him.

OMAHA, NEB.

The banquet of the Omaha-Council Bluffs Florists' Club was a pronounced success, the get-together spirit of the fifty participants carrying the affair along in splendid style. President John Bath presided, and O. H. Herman caused the sparks to fly as toastmaster. Roy Wilcox read a paper on "The Relationship of Employer and Employee," to which L. S. Hines responded on behalf of the employees. J. J. Hess spoke interestingly of the S. A. F. The orchestra and vocalists rendered some particularly pleasing selections, and at the conclusion of the feast each banqueter said he was happy, or at least looked it. Credit for the manner in which the affair was struck off belongs to Secretary Gardner, the indefatigable.

THE DETROIT CONVENTION.

Largest Ever Held.

Following on the heels of the most unusual season the seed trade ever has experienced, the attendance at the thirty-fifth annual convention of the national organization of seedsmen appears to be the largest on record.

The consensus about the Hotel Ponchartrain, Detroit, where the convention is being held, is that it has been a wonderful season. Of course, higher prices have accounted for part of the increase, but usually only for a small part of it. Everyone reports an increase, mostly forty to sixty per cent, but some 100, 200 or even 300 per cent. The marvel is, where did they get the stock to do it with? The high cost of food of course is responsible. It is expected to continue. Consequently another big season is expected next year; not so large as this one, perhaps, as many an amateur's garden will fail and discourage him, but still enough to make the question of supply the all-important one today. "What have you for sale?" It is the question heard on all sides. Stocks of vegetable and field seeds are at the lowest ebb in the history of the trade. It appears there has been no unusual demand for flower seeds.

Getting Down to Business.

The program was outlined with only four sessions, two open and two executive. President White introduced Wilber Brotherton to make an address of welcome and Watson S. Woodruff to reply. Each was brief, eloquent and witty.

The president's annual address, which will be found in full in this issue, was referred to the executive committee, but for the members who registered for the draft Alling Woodruff expressed hearty concurrence in the recommendation that the trade do not seek occupational exemption from military service.

J. L. Hunt was named to act on the membership committee, in place of H. G. Hastings, unavoidably detained, and the committee subsequently reported favorably on twenty-four applicants, the largest list in years.

J. A. Jossman, Leonard Vaughan and Lee Gillespie were named as a banquet committee.

David Burpee, Linnaeus Allen and Ed. Leonard were appointed as the auditing committee.

On motion of George S. Green, a resolution was adopted expressing the sense of the meeting that, in view of the courteous and full service which American seedsmen enjoy on the part of the Canadian seed control office, the Secretary of Agriculture at Washington be petitioned to grant similar facilities to Canadian seedsmen with regard to our import law.

Committee Reports.

In a general way, conditions in the seed trade have been less disturbed this year than usual and the committee reports, part presented at the open session June 19 and part at the executive session June 20, reflected the high degree of business activity and the abatement of outside pressure. It was apparent, however, in the report of the May conference of the executive committee with government officials at Washington and in some of the other reports, that pressure is being increased to secure the marking of all important packages of grass and field seeds with full information regarding the contents. Also, with the development of facilities for prompt tests, a change in the attitude of the trade is apparent. No seedsman of standing objects to stating the exact nature of the stock offered and many, indeed, believe voluntary control measures will result greatly to the benefit of the legitimate trade, the objection being to the application of impracticable standards and the imposition of harsh penalties for mistakes.

The standing committees and their chairmen, most of whom reported briefly, are:

Legislative—John L. Hunt.
Postal Laws—W. F. Therkildson.
Experiment Stations—L. L. Olds.
Government Charges—C. D. Boyles.
Tariff—J. C. Vaughan.
Terms of Credit—L. B. McCausland.
Nomenclature—H. G. Hastings.
Pure Seed Growers' Associations—C. A. Burnham.

There also was a report from Counsel Curtis Nye Smith, who also is counsel for and secretary of the American Association of Nurserymen.

The Association's Year.

C. E. Kendel, secretary and treasurer, reported on the business year as follows:

Papers and Addresses.

It seems that seedsmen no longer have anything new to say to each other, as the programs of recent years have been, in steadily increasing proportion, made up of papers and addresses by those the trade calls "scientists," men whose work is connected with agricultural research, instruction or the administration of laws. This year the program announcements were limited to two, both at the open session Tuesday afternoon, June 19, as follows:

"Voluntary Seed Control," by Hon. George H. Clark, seed commissioner for the Dominion of Canada.

"Disease Resistance in Plants," by Dr. L. R. Jones, plant pathologist at the University of Wisconsin.

At the executive session on the morning of June 20, H. A. Johns, of Sioux City, Ia., led a discussion to which the secretary had assigned the title "Crop Stealing." It is a subject of which nearly every seedsman is sure to be full after a season of rising prices. The remedy lies not so much in the law as in cooperation.

Social and Entertainment Features.

The evening of June 19 was left open for the principal social event of the convention, the reception by President Kirby B. White, his official staff and their ladies. It was held at Mr. White's handsome residence on Woodward avenue and was a brilliant affair.

The time from the adjournment of the executive session of Wednesday morning until 5 p. m. Thursday, when the election and installation of officers is to close the convention, is given up wholly to diversion and social features.

Wednesday afternoon automobiles were provided by the Detroit seedsmen for two parties, the larger one of which visited and was shown through the Ford and Packard automobile factories, returning to the hotel via Belle Isle park. The second party, including most of the ladies, was taken through the city and Belle Isle, to Grosse Pointe, on the return stopping at the residence of Dexter M. Ferry, Jr., where refreshments were served. The two parties returned in time for a boat trip and informal dinner on the river scheduled for 6:30 p. m., including an address by Dr. John Merle Coulter, professor of botany at the University of Chicago.

For the morning and early afternoon of Thursday, the third and last day of the convention, a trip by trolley to the trial grounds of D. M. Ferry & Co., at Oakview Farm, has been arranged, noonday luncheon being served there. Although the season is late and growth not so far advanced as usual, this promises to be, for most of the members, one of the most interesting events of the meeting.

Those Present.

The opening session, said to have brought out the largest attendance in the history of the association, was closed by President White in a new way—he called on every person present to rise and state his name, firm name and address, Rotary fashion. This is the result:

"THERE'S PANSIES, THAT'S FOR THOUGHTS"

The name "pansy" is derived from a French word signifying a thought.

In England the custom is prevalent of wearing a pansy if one has a friend at the front, and we are told that in France pansies are used more than any other flower to decorate soldiers' graves.

These beautiful customs of our Allies will surely spread in this country, increasing the popularity of the always popular pansy.

Prepare now for next year's increased demand by planting Toole's Pansy seed.

William Toole & Son are pioneers in the raising of pansy seed in America.

Thirty-five years' experience in selecting, breeding, studying, and growing pansy seed and plants especially to suit the wants of American people, have resulted in our superior strain of pansy seed.

Our aim is to grow the kind of seeds we would like to buy ourselves.

Our endeavor is to combine a wide range of bright and pleasing colors with large size flowers, heavy substance of petals, together with an attractive round flower, many of which are ruffled and lightly fringed.

TOOLE'S GIANT PRIZE STRAIN

This strain contains the best pansies we know how to produce. Besides colors and shades of our own selection it contains such novelties and varieties from other growers as we have found worth while after careful trials.

It will produce flowers of large size, splendid form and substance and in the widest range of shades and colors. Packet, 20c.; trade packet of 1,000 seeds, 40c.; 1/8-oz., 90c.; 1/4-oz., $1.25; 1 oz., $5.

COLOR MIXTURES

10. Blue Shades—This is a mixture of all blue and purple varieties of pansies.

20. Black Pansies.

30. Brown Shades—This is a mixture of all the beautiful brown varieties of pansies.

50. Red Shades—All of the showy red and purple kinds are combined in this mixture.

60. White Mixture—All of the different varieties of white flowered pansies are to be found in this mixture.

70. Yellow Shades—Into this mixture we put equal parts of the various shades of yellow pansies.

80. Fancy Varieties—All the fancy edged varieties, such as Freya, Silver Edge, Fire King, etc., are included in this very popular mixture.

100. Masterpiece—Large curled and ruffled flowers in wide range of colors, mostly with large dark center markings.

Leaflet on pansy culture sent free on request.

Any of the above mixtures or varieties, packet, 20c.; trade packet of 1,000 seeds, 40c.; 1/8-oz., 90c.; 1/4-oz., $1.25; 1 oz., $5.00.

Grass Seed Dealers.

The Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association met at Detroit June 18 and 19, preceding the American Seed Trade Association's meeting.

A resolution was adopted unanimously that the association does not approve of asking for exemption for seedsmen as a class from performing patriotic duty as soldiers. The president and directors were authorized to call a midwinter meeting if desired. It was voted that Curtis Nye Smith be retained as counsel if he will serve. Measures were authorized for establishing an efficient arbitration committee under the new constitution and by-laws. The Philadelphia Seed Co. was elected to membership. W. A. Wheeler, specialist in seed marketing, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, delivered an address on "Keeping Records of Seed Stocks."

Officers were reelected, as follows: President, A. E. Reynolds, Crawfordsville, Ind.; vice-president, C. C. Massie, Minneapolis; secretary and treasurer, John A. Smith, Toledo. Directors and standing committee chairmen also were continued, the latter to select their own colleagues. An invitation to Louisville for 1918 was received.

The Caughey-Jossman Co. entertained the members at dinner at Lakeside Inn on the evening of June 18.

PRESIDENT WHITE'S ADDRESS.

[The full text of the address of Kirby B. White, president of the American Seed Trade Association, delivered at the convention at Detroit, Mich., June 19, 1917.]

The thirty-fifth annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association comes at the close of one of the most eventful years in the history of the seed business. It comes also at the beginning of a year that may be even more fateful for us as seedsmen and citizens. It is therefore with a feeling of solemnity and unusual responsibility that I address you.

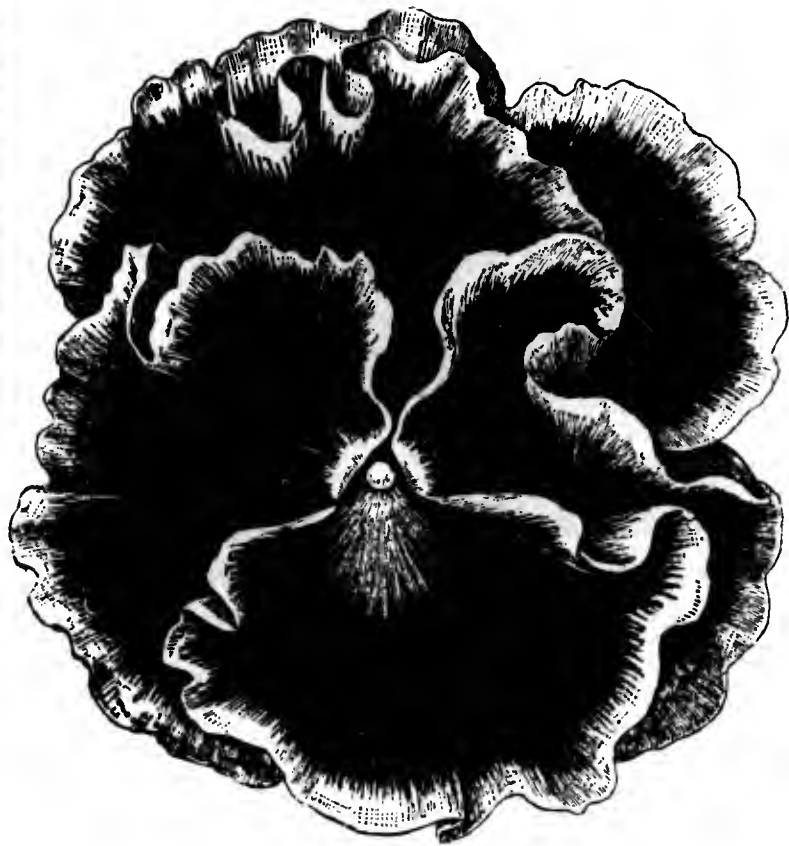

It is natural as we reconvene that our thoughts should first turn to the vacant places in our ranks. W. C. Langbridge, Walter P. Stokes, John A. Salzer and H. K. White are missed by their many friends. The proper

The KENILWORTH Giant Pansy

Seeds are all grown by myself and are offered in the following mixtures and separate colors:

All sorts and mixtures except where noted are: $5.00 per oz., $1.25 per ¼ oz., 5000 seeds, $1.00; trade packet of 1000 seeds, 25c; any 5 packets, $1.00. Please order by number.

12. KENILWORTH GIANT PRIZE is undoubtedly the largest flower and longest stemmed Pansy in the world. The enormous flowers are of perfect form and of great substance. Petals overlapped and undulating. The rich colorings and markings are widely varied, some flowers being almost self-colored. 500 seeds 30c, 1000 seeds 50c, ¼ oz. $1.35, ½ oz. $2.50, oz. $10.00.

10. KENILWORTH GIANT EXHIBITION is the very finest complete mixture ever sent out. Seed carefully saved only from marked plants of all varieties, with the largest and best shaped flowers and richest coloring. It is impossible to convey an adequate idea of the delightful variations in color and markings of this unrivaled mixture. 500 seeds 30c, 1000 seeds 50c, ¼ oz. $1.35, ½ oz. $2.50, oz. $10.00.

New Early-flowering, or Winter Blooming

An entirely new and distinct strain of Pansies. The main advantage of these new Pansies over all hitherto existing Pansies is the extreme earliness of flowering. Sown at the same time as other Pansies, they begin flowering the early part of March or as soon as the snow is off the ground, many times having four or five large flowers to a plant, when all other Pansies are only showing buds. The flowers are large, well formed and fragrant.

14. WINTER SUN. Golden yellow with dark eye.

15. ICE KING. Silvery white, with dark eye.

16. CELESTIAL QUEEN. Light or sky blue.

500 seeds 25c, 1000 seeds 40c, ¼ oz. $1.10, ½ oz. $2.00, oz. $7.50.

20. PRINCESS. (The New Upright Pansy.) This strain is entirely distinct from all others. It is absolutely compact, upright growing. The flowers are mostly blotched and frilled like the Masterpiece, of good form and heavy velvety texture on heavy stem carried well above the foliage. Attractive by brilliancy of its colors.

17. CHARM OF MARCH. Dark velvety blue.

18. MIXED. The above four colors with other shades and variations. Each color separate or mixed.

22. GIANT KENILWORTH STRAIN. The flowers are of perfect form and substance; many of the immense flowers are from 3½- to 4-in. It is a striking collection of beautiful colors and markings, rich with shades of red, brown, bronze, mahogany and many others too numerous to mention. Light, Medium or Dark Mixtures.

24. GIANT KENILWORTH SHOW. An extra fine strain of large flowers; the immense flowers are of circular form and great substance. A beautiful collection of colors and markings.

26. GIANT KENILWORTH CUT FLOWER MIXTURE. Is a distinct class by itself, surpassing all other strains as a cut flower for inside or outside growing; the large flowers are carried erect above the foliage on heavy stems, 7 or 8 in. long, in the most graceful manner, and stand the hot, dry weather well.

28. GIANT MASTERPIECE. A remarkable type; the curled, wavy petals giving the flower a double appearance; large flowers of great substance, on long, strong stem.

30. GIANT THREE AND FIVE BLOTCHED PANSIES. A superb mixture. Flowers large and of circular form and of great substance. The display of coloring is unsurpassed. A combination of almost every shade of rich, velvety colors; reds are particularly conspicuous; the petals being distinctly marked with three or five large, dark blotches.

32. GIANT PARISIAN. The flowers are of enormous size and beautifully marked, mostly five dark blotches on white and yellow ground; an unusually showy mixture.

34. GIANT BRONZE. A fine mixture of all shades of velvety brown, bronze, Havana brown, mahogany and copper shades.

36. TRIUMPH OF GIANT. Remarkably beautiful. The imposing five-spotted flowers on long, vigorous stalks surmount the foliage in the most graceful manner, are of enormous size, perfectly round and of unusual substance. The individual petals are very broad and cover each other in such a manner as to make the flowers appear almost double, the border of every petal being conspicuously curled. The plants are of a robust growth and form compact bushes of a round shape.

40. GIANT BATH'S EMPRESS. The finest of fancy English Pansies. Flowers are very large, mostly frilled and blotched and of great substance and the colors are brilliant and varied.

70. ORCHID-FLOWERED, Mixed. A dwarf, free bloomer, with a range of delicate colors that do not exist in any other Pansies; a remarkable combination of light rose, shell pink, bluish mauve, fawn, light brown, orange and chamolais.

GIANT PANSY SEED

In Separate Colors

38. Mme. Perret. Red and wine shades.

42. Adonis. Light blue, white center.

44. Black. Almost coal black.

46. Giant Apollo (Masterpiece type). New bronze, veined and blotched.

48. Lord Beaconsfield. Purple, shaded white.

50. Goliath. Large, curled yellow, blotched.

56. Light Blue Shades.

58. Indigo Blue. Deep, velvety blue.

80. Purple. Large, rich deep color.

84. Mercury. New. A deep blackish purple, really self-colored.

86. Pres. McKinley. Yellow, dark blotched.

90. Vulcan. Dark red, with five blotches.

92. Victoria. Blood red, violet blotches.

94. Red. A collection of rich, red shades.

98. Psyche. Curled white, with five blotches.

100. Yellow. With dark blotch.

102. Yellow. Large golden yellow.

104. White. With violet blotch.

106. White. Large satiny white.

110. The preceding 10 colors mixed in equal proportions.

committee will prepare resolutions formally voicing the feelings of the association regarding our loss.

The material affairs of the association have, on the whole, prospered. We have suffered comparatively little from the operations of legislators. An unusually large crop of unusually stupid bills—the exact number is 118—has received the attention of our state correspondents, and under the able direction of our attorney and the legislative committee the bills as a rule have been satisfactorily met with. If any laxness has appeared, it has not been at headquarters.

The Defense Against Unfair Laws.

The trend of the year has been toward centralizing more than ever before the responsibility for directing the association's legislative defense. The task has grown to such proportions that it takes up too much time for any seedsman to administer its details. The association ought never again to impose upon anyone the volume of work it gave to Messrs. Scarlett and Boyles. Upon our attorney and his assistants should be placed each year this increasing burden.

In this connection I desire to say that I have had an opportunity as an official to observe the work of the attorney's office, and I have been impressed by the enlargement of the duties of the attorney. From a small beginning our needs have grown to require not merely the occasional attention of a lawyer in general practice, but also the direction of a specialist and trained assistants, all of whom give their time to the needs of seedsmen and nurserymen. The function performed by our attorney is most important and should continue to expand. Every year's experience adds to his value and to the volume of the work it is found desirable to give him. I recommend that Curtis Nye Smith be retained in this position.

The Business of Tagging Seeds.

As time has developed the complexities of seed control, it is gratifying to see how nearly those who administer and those who work under seed laws

The Market.

Much the same conditions prevail with regard to stock as reported last week, except that cheap and medium-grade flowers are more plentiful, while for really first-class stock both wholesalers and retailers have to hunt the corners. The one bright spot is that filled with gladioli, these useful flowers having never been so plentiful and good as during the present season. America still holds its own for funeral work, but for big decorations some of the hybrids are fine. More valley than usual is on the market now—not by any means enough to meet the demand, but enough to remind people what valley looks like.

Weddings and funerals are now the outlet for the larger portion of the stock, the passing trade being small. While some elaborate decorations have been carried out, the trend seems to be toward lower-priced work. Economy is in the air. Cut Easter lilies are plentiful and of good quality, and the refrigerator car service makes it possible to ship them longer distances than generally.

In plants there are excellent samples of French hydrangeas, especially of the larger sizes, but the demand is not heavy. Ferns of all kinds are scarce, but greens are plentiful.

An unusually high temperature, hot sun and desert winds played havoc with the outdoor flowers June 14. Sweet peas, carnations and other flowers were shriveled up, and for a couple of days the cut will be short. Hydrangeas in full bloom wilted down to the ground. Gladioli, being cut tight, did not suffer, and the native matilija poppy seemed to revel in the heat. The temperature at Los Angeles was 95 degrees, at Pasadena 104 degrees, and even at the beach towns there were no cool spots.

Various Notes.

Arthur Falkenhayn, proprietor of the Marine Florist, of Long Beach, is a frequent visitor to this market. He reports business good in wedding work, and he has practically all of the work for the mayor and city officials. Several hundred corsage bouquets for graduation exercises were among recent orders. Mr. Falkenhayn is progressive, a hustler and has worked up a nice business in a short time.

The H. N. Gage Co. has purchased the entire stock of maidenhair ferns from Mrs. Alfred Roedder, of Shorb, consisting of Adiantum Roedderii, A. cuneatum and other popular varieties, aggregating about 20,000 plants. These will be removed to the Montebello nursery. H. N. Gage is enthusiastic about the new growing grounds at El Monte and says that certain types of bulbous stock do better there than at any other of the firm's holdings. Both brothers are busy men these days, H. N. with the sales end and L. L. with the growing.

Vacations are already in order at the establishment of W. Armacost & Co. J. Williamson, bookkeeper, has left for Lexington, Ky., for his recreation and it is reported that he is not coming back alone from the state that is renowned for fine scenery, fine horses and beautiful women. W. Lockhard, of the sales force, is also talking vacation.

The California Cut Flower Co. is handling a fine line of valley and roses, both from northern growers. Business is firm at the Seventh street store.

R. W. Saake has an attractive window at his store on Broadway. A miniature lake, made with a virgin cork border, and with small ducks floating around, does not sound particularly original, but in this case it is so pretty and so well carried out that it deserves mention. The stock shown is good.

May proved a record-breaker for the Redondo Floral Co., and June so far looks good, both for present and prospective work. Fine gladioli and the first of the season's Golden West dahlias are making a splendid showing in the window. One day this week A. F. Borden also made a fine showing in his "ice cream" suit and Panama hat. A. Knopf says we can surely look for warm weather now.

Eldred's Flower Shop reports business excellent and Mr. Eldred has so far recovered his health as to be able to visit the stores in the city.

During the week just passed large orders for tomato plants for canners have been filled at the S. Murata & Co. store; also orders for clover and blue grass seeds.

In the windows at Wright's Flower Shop the orchids are always a big attraction, and there is usually something a little different. Flowers of the old, fringed Brassavola Digbyana, the parent of many fine brasso-cattleyas and brasso-laelias, were the attraction, as well as some splendid flowers of Cattleya gigas.

Darling's Flower Shop reports big business in wedding decorations.

H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Stock of all descriptions is plentiful, except orchids and valley, which continue on the short side. Some retailers said they had been able to get enough orchids to fill the demand, but in such cases it developed that the demand was light rather than the supply large. No one seems to have enough valley.

It is generally conceded that business is holding up exceedingly well, considering the season, and this condition is attributed largely to the fact that the exodus of city families to the country for the summer vacation is not so pronounced this year as usual. At several establishments house orders, which are usually a minor consideration at this time, are reported to be quite an item. A number of large decorations and many less pretentious affairs continue to furnish an outlet for quantities of flowers which might otherwise find their way to the dump.

The condition of the rose market is decidedly in favor of the buyer, it being more a question of how much one will pay for the flowers than how much is asked for them. Hadley shows excellent quality, and the cut of Ulrich Brunner leaves nothing to be desired. One florist said he had never before seen such a fine cut of Ulrich Brunner roses as at present. Carnations are good, but are inclined to drag. Sweet peas are plentiful and sell well. The pink shades predominate, although white and lavender are much in evidence.

A late crop of peonies is being received from Mendocino county. This flower has been uncommonly popular this year and continues to clean up readily. The large-flowering gladioli, such as Francis King, Panama and America, are welcome arrivals. They were about a month late, but will soon be at their height. Miscellaneous offerings, including mignonette, sweet williams, daisies, pansies, cornflowers, etc., are utilized to good advantage in basket arrangements. Broom and delphinium find a splendid demand for decorative purposes. Statice moves well. In flowering plants hydrangeas and spiræas are the principal items.

Frank Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., Peter Ferrari, of Ferrari Bros., and his son, Victor, with Robert Newcomb, of the American Bulb Co., Chicago, as their guest, were planning an automobile trip to Mount Diablo.

E. James, of Oakland, is bringing in a nice lot of spiræas.

Friends are hoping for the speedy recovery of Frank Mills, leading florist of Palo Alto, Cal., who has been seriously ill.

B. M. Joseph has taken a cottage at Alameda for the summer, the principal attraction being the bathing beaches. Mr. Joseph and his employees have subscribed to $10,000 worth of Liberty Bonds. Vacations start at the Joseph establishment July 1. George Wagner is scheduled to leave first. Manager F. J. Bertrand expects to get away the latter part of the month for an outing on the Feather river. He says business is holding up well, last week bringing the store about the best funeral work it ever had.

Many pedestrians last week halted in front of a "pink" window at the Pelicano, Rossi & Co. store. It showed a wonderful variety of pink flowers, in-

The rose cut of the E. W. McLellan Co. is holding up well, both as to size and quality. Manager J. A. Axell says the best grades clean up well, but that the cheaper varieties drag more or less.

Fred C. Jaeger has completed arrangements for opening a new store at 152 Powell street, almost directly across the street from MacRorie & McLaren, with whom he was formerly connected. He is having his place nicely fitted up and expects to be ready for business before the end of June. The firm name will be F. C. Jaeger & Son. F. Decorations for weddings and dinner parties are helping to keep the Francis Floral Co. staff busy, according to Francis Schlottzauer, the proprietor. The first half of June, he says, has shown an increase over the corresponding period of last year.

A flower booth was one of the features at an allied bazaar held in Union square Saturday, June 9, the proceeds of which will go to war sufferers. Mesdames Victor Podesta, A. J. Rossi and John Carbone presided. Flowers were donated by various growers.

V. Lusciani, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., is hailed as an orator by his fellow employees since he took a leading part in a recent school entertainment.

Robert Newcomb, traveler for the American Bulb Co., of Chicago, says local growers have shown much interest in a red sport of Gorgeous carnation which he brought down from the Martin & Forbes Co., of Portland, Ore.

W. F. Pitts, of the W. F. Pitts Seed & Nursery Co., expects to leave early in July on an extended trip visiting nurseries. S. H. G.

TACOMA, WASH.

"Business is good," is the average report of tradesmen. Now, some thought that the war would put us out of business, as people would not buy luxuries when necessities were so abnormally high. Others thought that the increase in salaries and the fact that money is changing hands would benefit the business. Far be it from the writer to express an opinion, but the fact remains, "business is good."

The great army post at American Lake bids fair to become a big business asset. This proposition will bring the brains and the brawn of the nation almost to our doors, as it is only a few minutes' auto ride from Tacoma to the post. As almost all other lines of business are looking forward to financial benefit from this big undertaking of Uncle Sam, it is only reasonable that the flower business should also receive a slight boost.

There has been a decided improvement in the weather. The last few days have been hot enough for any westerner, and the effect is soon noticeable in the gardens and parks. Potatoes are in bloom in some gardens; also in many front parkings. Roses have not been entirely eliminated, however, in favor of the spud, and are coming into bloom nicely outdoors. They are usually in full flower at this season.

There was considerable speculation as to just how the Portland rose carnival would show up this year. The regular Tacoma rose show was postponed until June 30 on account of the backward condition of the roses.

The present offerings include sweet peas, snapdragons, carnations, baby gladioli and roses. Peas are quite plentiful and are much appreciated in funeral work, baskets and corsages. They meet with a splendid demand at 25 to 35 cents per bunch. Baby gladioli are still rather scarce and of inferior quality, but are not missed seriously on account of a sufficient supply of carnations and snapdragons.

The graduation work was divided up nicely among the local retailers. There has been a splendid run of weddings and funeral work has held up well. Growers report a shortage of help for greenhouse work. B. G.

The Rose Festival.

Patriotism was the keynote of the eleventh annual rose fete, which was held June 13 to 15. The streets in the business center were decorated with flags and bunting, and on Broadway flowers were used, planted in urns with pedestals resembling marble. Good weather brought out large crowds and standing room was hard to find along the streets over which the parades passed.

The features of the opening day of the festival center were the children's parade, the crowning of the fairy king and queen and the unveiling of the replica of the Bartholdi statue of liberty, the President at Washington pressing a key for the last event. On the second day the patriotic pageant was held, and on the third day the grand floral parade took place.

The board of governors was organized much later in the season than usual and contracts for filling the beds were not signed with the growers until late in May. The result was that little specimen stock was grown for exhibit, and the beds were filled with whatever stock the growers happened to have on hand. Hydrangeas, snapdragons, petunias, geraniums, miscellaneous perennials, lilies, calceolarias, heliotropes, eupheas, roses, border plants, hanging baskets, porch tubs, and displays of cut flowers in the booths were the prominent features. The plants were in pots, plunged in wet sawdust and covered with sand.

The centers of the beds were raised

A most creditable display was pro-below last year's standard. The area covered by the beds was about 20,000 square feet and a uniform price of 10 cents per square foot was paid for filling with plants. The same blocks were used for the center as in the previous two years and the central feature, where last year stood the floral fountain, was a replica of the Bartholdi statue of liberty. It stood over fifty feet in height, with the base decorated with potted roses.

SPOKANE, WASH.*The Market.

Trade conditions remain practically unchanged. Stock of all kinds is plentiful and good. Business is keeping up well, with a continued call for bedding stock. The demand for vegetable plants and seeds has been greatly in excess of anything ever experienced, the reason, of course, being the national gardening movement. Flower seed sales, however, fell off to almost nothing, except in sweet peas, which will always be the favorite flower in Spokane.

While some of the graduating classes at the high schools voted against the use of flowers at their commencement exercises, contributing the savings to the Red Cross, the demand for flowers for the graduates at the grade and country schools showed a decided increase.

Forty-second annual convention, Philadelphia, Pa., June 27 to 29, 1917.

NEXT week's convention of the American Association of Nurserymen, at Philadelphia, probably will bring out the largest attendance of eastern nurserymen in the history of the trade, but it appears that the western representation will be composed principally of wholesalers.

TRAVELERS for Holland nursery houses have not been so numerous as usual this spring; they do not leave home until after the spring shipments have gone and this season the spring stock got no farther than Rotterdam. The exporters want to see a fair prospect of making shipments before they spend money canvassing for orders.

THE annual convention of the Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen will be held at Tacoma, Wash., about the middle of July. The meeting will be attended by many of the leading nurserymen of California, Oregon, British Columbia, Idaho, Montana, the Dakotas and Washington. The Mitchell Nursery Co., of Tacoma, is in charge of the arrangements for the meeting.

THE Texas State Nurserymen's Association will hold its annual meeting at Denton, August 2. Among those on the program are William B. Munson, president; Prof. H. Ness, of College Station; J. M. Ramsey, of Austin; Samuel L. Dale, of Daingerfield; George J. Bayer, of San Benito; J. R. Mayhew, of Waxahatchie; F. T. Ramsey, of Austin; J. S. Kerr, of Sherman; J. B. Baker, of Fort Worth; J. B. Strayhorn, of Tyler.

IT IS KALMIA LATIFOLIA.

We are sending a twig showing leaf and flower of a shrub growing here. Will you kindly give us the name of it and give information as to habit, blooming quality, where to obtain supply and its probable cost?

F. P. F. C.—Kan.

Kalmia latifolia, or mountain laurel, the finest broad-leaved flowering evergreen native to America. It attains a height in its native haunts of as much as twelve feet, but is more often seen half that height. It prefers a light soil; one with peat is specially good. It dislikes lime in the soil, grows well in woodland shade, but flowers best when grown in full sun. This is offered in nursery or collected stock by many nurserymen who advertise in The Review and is not at all an expensive plant.

PRESIDENT WHITE'S ADDRESS.

have approached common ideals and common opinions as to what constitutes legitimate seed legislation. I hope and believe that before this convention ends the convention of the seed analysts, sitting in Detroit this week, will have aligned their association with us in vigorous support of the uniform state bill.

The action of the Secretary of Agriculture in requesting seedsmen to mark seeds of field and forage crops as to purity and viability has met with almost universal compliance. It will be observed that this practice of voluntary marking is, in effect, the same as the European system of voluntary control. There is no criminal liability, but there is every incentive for the vender to have the label represent both accuracy of analysis and a high grade of seeds. It is possible that the voluntary control which has been the sole system in Europe will prove equally satisfactory here.

Investigation of Government Charges.

I desire especially to commend the work of the committee on government charges. It is ably discharging the duty you imposed upon it. Our association is pledged both to approval of the publicity of the Department of Agriculture's findings and to vigilance in the defense of association members, whether it be against unfairness from without or treachery from within. If the name of a member appears in a government report as adulterating or misbranding seeds, it is obvious that action must result. If the government report is unfair, as such reports have sometimes been thought to be, the accused member is entitled to the united support of the trade in remedying the wrong.

If, on the other hand, the report is true, this association demands that the facts be presented to it, through its committee, for such discipline as may be just and necessary. This association and each of its members cannot escape sharing in the disgrace any member may bring upon himself. I recommend that the committee on government charges continue to receive your cordial support and coöperation.

Bulletin as Means of Coöperation.

This interdependence of the entire trade is more and more being recognized, not merely as a liability, but, in even greater degree, as an asset. It is only necessary that we become conscious of our solidarity to make it profitable. The truth that the highest common good is also the individual's highest good, once grasped, is a mighty factor in individual success. Every aid to solidarity is therefore to be welcomed. I commend to the association as one of the best means of fostering solidarity the confidential Seedsmen's Bulletin. I recommend further that a committee be appointed to report on extending the field of the bulletin to cover garden seed crop reports and announcements of the ruling wholesale prices of garden seeds. This course is not as revolutionary as it may sound. I submit that every seedsmen would find it easier to get a fair price for his goods if all seedsmen knew more about fundamental conditions of supply. In the face of a great shortage, seeds are often sold at less than reciation members would carry greater weight than information received elsewhere, because the reporting agency would be quite disinterested. Moreover, the association would have access to all sources of knowledge. Each member might, then, if he chose, make his vision of the general supply world-wide.

In recommending that the bulletin carry in its columns the range of ruling wholesale prices, I advise that names be omitted. High, low and average prices could be given for leading articles. For example, Early Jersey Wakefield cabbage might be quoted as low as $1 per pound and as high as $4, with an average of $2.50 per pound. The range of prices, particularly when the service had been in existence long enough to afford comparisons of one year with another, would be a valuable guide and enable individuals to get their prices into line with those of the trade as a whole. I believe the reporting of crop and market conditions, if properly conducted, would be worth much more than it would cost.

I recommend that a committee be appointed or selected to advise the association with regard to the compensation of each of its employees. Many factors should be taken into account in this connection. If the present ratio between service and pay is not right, there should be a proper readjustment. If readjustment entails increasing the dues, let us remember that the power of the association does not lie in its being cheap.

The power of the association, it perhaps would be trite to say, lies in its exemplification of the principles of justice, wisdom and even taste. The coming year will be a period of trial to us all. The war has forced upon us problems involving our financial existence, our private honor and our public duty. With regard to the obligation of contracts between members, I advise that the convention take no stand. The contracting parties are the only ones concerned, except insofar as the good name of all is affected by the conduct of each.

ROSES

1000 My Maryland, own root, 2¼-inch, $7.50 per 100; $60.00 per 1000.

JOHN WELSH YOUNG,

recommend the adoption of the following resolution:

To the President and the Secretary of Agriculture of the United States:

At the thirty-fifth annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association it was unanimously resolved that the President of the United States and the Secretary of Agriculture be tendered the support of this association in all reasonable measures designed to prosecute the war with the utmost vigor. We count ourselves fortunate to be able to do our full share in supplying men and money, but our greatest service may well be in maintaining under extraordinary strain the machinery of producing and distributing seeds, without which agriculture must fail.

300,000 Chrysanthemums, from 2¼-in. pots, 20 varieties, $2.50 per 100, $22.50 per 1000.

Also thousands of Bedding Plants. For list see our display ad in Review, June 7th, page 72. Correspondence solicited.

Roses — Carnations Verbenas

J. L. DILLON
BLOOMSBURG, PA.

Because we realize in some measure the magnitude of the task to which our country is committed, we are the more earnest in pledging to it our entire resources. The seed trade is happy to be able to say that it can and will meet whatever disturbances in its organization may arise from the draft or voluntary enlistment of its younger men. We propose to do our best to fight and to save and to work for the one great event of complete victory.

DAVENPORT, R. ISLAND, MOLINE.

The Markets.

Business was good last week. Roses, with the exception of White Killarney and Beauty, are in good supply and the quality is all that could be expected at this time of the year. Carnations are in large supply and selling well, although the quality is on the decline on account of the hot weather. Lilies are plentiful, but gladioli are about over with. Sweet peas are none too plentiful, and the prices are high. Peonies are in heavy supply, but other outdoor flowers are rather scarce as yet. Bedding plants have sold well with most of the dealers. Better prices were obtained, as a general rule.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Tri-City Florists' Club was held at the residence of Harry Bills, with President Anderson in the chair. J. Bloom, of Bettendorf, was elected to membership. It was decided to hold the annual picnic at the Knees summer cottage on Rock river and the following committee was appointed to make the necessary arrangements: P. J. Pearson, C. J. Reardon, H. Pould, H. Gaethje, L. Stapp, A. Anderson, C. Sorensen, J. Hanssen.

The secretary was instructed to send R. McNutt, mayor of Muscatine, a special invitation to attend the picnic, in appreciation of the royal way in which the club was entertained in that city when the August meeting was held there last year. Emil Kranz again invited the club to hold its August meeting in Muscatine, and the invitation was accepted. A vote of thanks was extended to Mr. and Mrs. Bills for their hospitality.

Various Notes.

Ada Danacher, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Danacher, died June 12 at the family home at Bettendorf.

Mr. and Mrs. Arvid Anderson welcomed a baby daughter to their home June 8. Mother and daughter are doing well. W. G.

WOONSOCKET, R. I.

Howard Vose, of Cumberland Hill, was in Washington, D. C., last week attending a lodge convention.

S. Colitz had the decorations for several weddings last week.

The Market.

The outdoor flowers are piling into the market, although the continued inclement weather has served as an effective check on an excessive production. Gladioli and peonies have become more prominent and bedding plants are at the close of their inning. Hydrangeas of special merit receive their share of attention. Graduations are here, but, alas, they do not mean so much as in previous years, the presentation of flowers to graduates having been prohibited by the powers that be.

Various Notes.

At the June meeting of the Essex County Florists' Club the annual outing of the members came up for lengthy discussion. The matter of holding a fall show also received some attention. Committees will report on both propositions at the July meeting.

Charles Luthy says that business at his branch store at 459 Elizabeth avenue has been so good that he intends to continue it indefinitely.

Business has quieted down for a spell, say McLaughlin & Murphy. R. B. M.

NEWPORT, R. I.

The Newport Horticultural Society, at a meeting last week, voted to subscribe to the Liberty Loan bonds to the extent of $1,000. Another patriotic step was taken when it was voted to request all the prize-winners at the annual flower show to turn their awards over to the Red Cross. A request from the Newport Garden Association to donate the admission fees received on the first day of the show to the Red Cross was also agreed to. Guy C. Caldwell, who gave an address on "Tree Surgery and Native Bird Conservation" at the recent open meeting of the society, was presented by President John B. Urquhart, on behalf of the society, with a set of studs and cuff links, in recognition and appreciation of his work.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Bunyard, of New York, with their children, arrived last week for the summer season.

Wadley & Smythe had a large number of orders on special pieces for the recent funeral of Elisha Dyer. They are unusually busy on outdoor work.

Ralph Armstrong has taken a part of the Gibson Bros. store, at 138 Bellevue avenue, having subrented his store on the avenue.

Mrs. Joseph Leikens came from New York last week to join her husband here for the summer. W. H. M.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

The Market.

Stock was plentiful in the market last week and as a result prices slumped. Much of the supply was of inferior quality. American Beauty roses are in short supply and the quality is not of the best. Other roses are plentiful and those of good quality clear easily. Russells are beginning to be in short supply.

There is an abundance of carnations, many of which are small and weak-stemmed. Outdoor valley is done, the season's cut being small, due to excessive rains. Local cut peonies are arriving, with white predominating. Snapdragons, calendulas and mignonette are selling slowly. Lilacs are gone. Sweet peas are of poor quality. Ferns again are scarce.

Various Notes.

June weddings still are the center of activity. W. J. Palmer & Son had four large wedding decorations in one day last week.

Miss Mildred Lucile Palmer and Raymond Percival Fowler were married June 16 at the bride's home on North Lincoln boulevard. The bride carried a bouquet of lily of the valley and Sweetheart roses showered with valley. Mr. and Mrs. Fowler have left for an automobile trip to the Berkshire mountains. Mr. Fowler is a member of the American Ambulance corps and will soon depart for the front in France.

Although it was rumored in florists' circles some time ago that Miss Helen Cassidy, of the William F. Kasting Co., and Emil Hoffman had been quietly married, the wedding was not announced until recently, when Miss Cassidy or Mrs. Hoffman resigned her position. The trade extends congratulations.

Window and porch boxes are more popular this year than ever before.

Graduations from the high schools, seminaries and colleges have been keeping the local florists busy during the last week. A. E.

Sedalia, Mo.—The Archias Floral Co. recently came upon an unusual double-spashed calla. While double callas are not uncommon, they all are freaks and no two are exactly alike. The one found in the Archias greenhouse had completely separated stems and the extra part resembled a calla leaf more than it did another spathe.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

TWO BOILERS INSTEAD OF ONE.

Will you please tell me what boiler capacity is needed for my greenhouses, which contain about 20,000 square feet of glass? I have been heating them with a 100-horsepower boiler, but I am taking it out and wish to install two boilers in its place. We seldom have outside temperatures lower than zero.
 A. L.—Mo.

Nothing is said regarding the temperature desired in the houses, but for an average of 60 degrees we would not consider it necessary to have more boiler capacity than fifty horsepower. However, we would not advise putting in two boilers of twenty-five horsepower each, since one of the boilers would hardly be able to handle the radiation except in comparatively mild weather. With two boilers of thirty to thirty-five horsepower each, it will be possible to hold one of them in reserve, and with the other heat the houses to 60 degrees except in the coldest weather. In fact, if one boiler gets out of commission a satisfactory temperature can be maintained with the other, by a little extra attention to firing.

SIZE OF SMOKESTACK.

I am building two greenhouses, each 21½x108, with eaves seven feet high, and I am installing a No. 2 Kroeschell hot water boiler, set in a pit four feet deep. Will you kindly tell me what size of chimney I ought to erect? Please state the height and width, giving both inside and outside diameter. Would a chimney of concrete blocks be as satisfactory as a brick one? There are no high buildings in the immediate vicinity. W. B. D.—Wis.

The size and height of a chimney should depend, of course, upon the area of the grate and the amount and arrangement of the fire surface, which in turn should be governed by the amount of glass to be heated and the temperature desired in the houses.

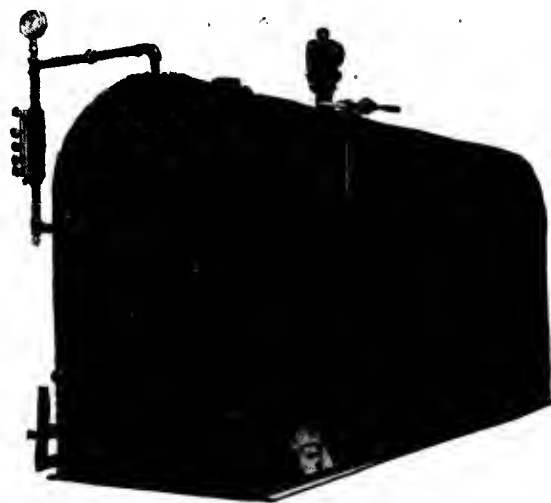

For greenhouses of the size mentioned, with not over thirty inches of glass in each of the side walls, to give a temperature of 60 degrees when the temperature is 20 degrees below zero outside, we would use a hot water heater rated for 1,250 to 1,500 square feet of radiation, and this would, in most styles, require a 10-inch smoke

HEATING AND COOLING SYSTEMS

Heating and Cooling are two branches of engineering on which we specialize for the florist trade.

Over thirty years have been devoted by us to the construction and designing of boilers and refrigerating apparatus.

During this period we have furnished and installed heating and cooling systems for many of the most successful greenhouse men in this country.

The Boiler shown at left is designed for steam plants 100 h. p. or less.

For steam plants over 100 h. p. use the high pressure Kroeschell, capacity 100 h. p. to 400 h. p.

The Kroeschell Water Tube Steam Boiler

NO MASONRY—NO TUBES TO CLEAN

We manufacture every type of boiler from the smallest house heater to the largest 600 h. p. steam unit.

When you are in need of a boiler for your greenhouses, use one of the following; they are best suited for greenhouse heating:

The Kroeschell Hot Water Boiler.
The Kroeschell Tubeless Boiler.

The Kroeschell Water Tube Steam Boiler.
The Kroeschell High Pressure Steam Boiler.

The Famous Kroeschell Hot Water Boiler
 Made in twenty-two sizes.

We call your attention to the Kroeschell System of Refrigeration installed by us recently for the following greenhouse concerns. The high efficiency and low cost of operation place the Kroeschell system in the foremost rank for florists' use. We invite you to write these parties:

pipe, although a 9-inch pipe would answer. For this the chimney should be twelve inches in diameter, inside measurement, and twenty-eight inches, outside measurement. The height of the chimney will depend somewhat upon the surroundings, but it should be at least thirty feet in height, and even more if there are taller buildings or trees that will prevent a good draft.

The comparative value of concrete blocks and bricks for the stack will depend upon how well they are made. We should have little choice if both are of good materials and proper attention has been given to their manufacture. As a rule, the blocks are more likely to be defective.

MORE PARTICULARS NEEDED.

I had a hot water heating plant installed at my greenhouse last fall. The house is 16x50, with an office 12x12 at the east end. The piping comprises 550 feet of radiation and is connected with a 900-foot boiler, the top of which is three feet below the coils. The flow pipe is fifty-five feet long and its highest point is at the farther end from the boiler. All other pipes drop toward the boiler, with a slope of an inch and a half in ten feet. I do not think the system is working properly, because when the water reaches a temperature of 150 degrees the boiler commences to sing, and when it reaches 180 degrees a boiling noise is heard. The lower end of one of the coils does not get warm till the water reaches 180 degrees. Please let me know how I can remedy this trouble.

A. J. B.—Wis.

The description of the heating system does not contain all the particulars that are necessary to enable us to determine the cause of the trouble. There is ample radiation for a temperature of 65 degrees and the boiler is large enough for a house 100 feet long, unless there is more than the usual amount of glass in the walls. The only change we are able

Morehead Back-to-Boiler SYSTEM

Big representative concerns like the Minneapolis Floral Company, the Memphis Floral Company, the Pittsburgh Floral Company, etc., etc., now drain their steam lines and return the pure hot condensation immediately to the boilers as feed water with the Morehead System.

Quickly and easily attached to your present apparatus, the Morehead System gives you absolute control of the temperature in every foot of your houses—and soon pays for itself in the saving of fuel.

Tell us about your present heating troubles—our engineers will give you expert information on exactly what you may expect the Morehead System to do for you—and send you a book which covers the greenhouse steam plant situation thoroughly.

and that the expansion tank be connected at that point. It is possible that the flow pipe is too small or that the return pipes are too small, or that both defects exist.

If A. J. B. will send a sketch showing the location, number and size of the pipes, with the arrangement of the benches and the amount of glass in the walls, the information will aid us in offering suggestions for the correction of the difficulty. We should also know the temperature desired in the house, as well as the minimum outside temperature. If there is any difficulty in securing a good circulation in the office coils, the sketch should also show the location and size of the windows and doors.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

An unusually large number of weddings calling for bouquets and decorations were the feature of local conditions last week, although funeral work was also a big item. Roses and carnations are plentiful, especially of the short and inferior grades, one downtown department store offering carnations at eleven for 10 cents, while fakers on the streets were hawking roses at 10 cents for half a dozen June 16.

There is a heavy cut of stocks and snapdragons, much of the former coming on about two weeks late and thereby causing a glut. Gladioli are arriving in larger quantities, while sweet peas, irises and lilies are also abundant.

Various Notes.

Richard Higgins, of Academy avenue, is having a new office building erected. Walter Lowe is removing from 2177 to 2202 Broad street, Pawtucket.

PUSHING Your Boiler to Push Your Heat is Bad Business.

PUSHING or crowding your boiler to push your heat fast enough into the coils, pushes more heat out of the chimney than it does into the coils. It also pushes the life out of your boiler.

Any way you figure it, it is bad figuring for your bark balance.

If the boiler is too small, that's most likely your fault in trying to save a little when you bought it. At present price of coal, it's going to cost twice as much as ever to push your boiler.

It may pay you to buy a new boiler.

Let us figure it out with you.

You know we go anywhere for business. Or to talk business.

The Market.

There was a superabundance of stock in the market last week. Roses and carnations were extremely plentiful and sold at the lowest prices of the year. Easter lilies were numerous and cheap. Peonies still are in the market in large quantities. Only the best are sent to the wholesalers, as they cannot get the express charges out of the inferior qualities. Fancy gladioli were in the market and sold at good prices. Sweet peas still are of fair quality, but the demand has been rather light. Gypsophila, daisies and other outdoor flowers are coming in good shape and sell well. Greens of all kinds still are scarce.

Various Notes.

The greenhouse range at the Phil P. Toll farm has been increased considerably under the management of John Klauss. The houses all were built by Lord & Burnham Co. There are two old houses, 25x150, filled with carnations and chrysanthemums and two new houses, 35x201, with Ophelia, White Killarney and Russell roses. Another, 10½ x201, houses chrysanthemums. The houses are of the latest type, with cement walks. There are two reservoirs, one holding 37,000 gallons for water and the other 7,000 gallons for liquid fertilizer. It is the intention of the owner to further increase this establishment.

E. G. Bunyar, of Independence, has cleared his greenhouses of bedding plants, having sold more than 200,000 of all kinds. The sales netted him $2,000 more this year than last and he has invested the profits in Liberty bonds. He has his houses planted for fall trade and is now on a fishing trip.

Tom Kane has returned from Vermont, where he spent three weeks planting evergreens and pines on a large private estate. He and Mrs. Kane left June 17 to spend several days on a farm near Pleasant Hill.

John Stevens has been sending in gladioli of extra fine quality, the stems of some being four and five feet long.

T. J. Noll & Co. have been cleaning house at their store and taking an inventory at the same time.

Henry Kusik & Co. have received a carload of moss. Mr. Kusik reports that business in this line has doubled this year.

The George M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. has been busy with funeral work both in and out of town. Mr. Kidd is now on his vacation. He will return June 25.

Arthur Newell turned out a large design for the Bernheimer funeral last week. It was a wreath forty inches in diameter, cascade style, on a tall stand. He is now making a window display of baskets filled with summer flowers.

Samuel Murray has returned from an eastern trip. He found his store exceptionally busy for this time of the year.

PLANT TUBS

EVERLASTING VIRGINIA WHITE CEDAR

EVERYBODY agrees that Plant Tubs made of everlasting Virginia White Cedar will best resist rot or decay. The "Keystone" brand of White Cedar Plant Tubs are made of this celebrated wood, and these goods are painted inside and out with best oil paints, a rich green.

They are bound with heavy steel hoops for the large size, and electric-welded wire hoops (galvanized) on the small size. The large sizes are trimmed with handsome drop handles and metal feet, and have perforated, removable bottoms.

UTICA, N. Y.

W. A. Rowlands says the greenhouse end of his dual interests has been most satisfactory. While foreign to the legitimate, the doctor thinks this an item of interest, showing the upward trend of taste: He has opened an Italian dental parlor and notes that his patients demand solid gold. He coincides this with his high-grade carnations, which always bring top prices.

C. F. Baker received a telegraphic order for a floral piece to be placed on the casket of the victim of the recent disastrous flood in Oriskany Falls. Situated twelve miles distant, with no other means of delivery, the risky trip was made with his private car, to insure carrying out the principles of the F. T. D.

William Matthews was reminiscent, and recalled the incident when Selfridge, the great Chicago department store merchant, now located in old London, paid him a visit and purchased an orchid of large value. "Times have changed, and we have changed with them," said our old friend, "but I really think we live in an age of more general sentiment, even if it is so thoroughly practical. I expect to see a return to what is termed sensible conditions soon; in fact, it's up to us to bring it about," concluded our octogenarian and successful confrere.

J. J. Williams' place seems doomed, or, shall one say, the opposite—three times and out for a new start? Twice it has been visited by fire and now by a flood, which, by the way, has caused much damage to the truck gardens in the valley nearby. The sympathy of the craft and the best wishes for a new start go to our confrere. W. M.

Wichita Falls, Tex.—C. H. Wittenbach has added flowers to his "general merchandise," and has completed the erection of a small house.

Rochester, Minn.—The Queen City Greenhouse Co. has opened a handsome store in an admirable location, on the lower floor of the Masonic Temple. G. D. Bates, who is manager of the store, says that for the present the stock will be shipped in, but that it is the intention of the corporation to build greenhouses and later branch out into the nursery business.

OTTAWA, ONT.

The trio of stores conducted by Charles Scrim, R. H. Wright and W. S. Kehoe are a credit to and in keeping with the capital city. Paul Berkowitz, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, was a recent visitor and a guest of Charles Scrim, although it was at a time when funeral work had all hands busy.

All the retailers express themselves as being well pleased with the season's business. Our old friend E. J. Mepsted is busy planting flower boxes. He has pleasant memories of the Scott place at Cold Spring, N. Y.

The building of the Grand Trunk railway here was being adorned with some thirty or more window boxes, which were elaborately filled with first-class stock. It must present a beautiful picture through the summer season, as the building itself is a magnificent piece of architecture. W. M.

COLUMBUS, O.

The rose show held under the auspices of the Columbus Horticultural Society last week was a marked success, the many classes bringing out a large number of amateurs. Several of the florists sent flowers in baskets to help to decorate the exhibition rooms, which were in the Cadillac building.

The Columbus Florists' Association held a banquet at the Neil House June 14. There was much to eat, much fun and much speech-making.

Robert Buchler, for eight years florist of the Imbecile Institution, died June 18 from cancer of the stomach, following an illness of nine months. The deceased, who was 38 years of age, was well liked by his fellow workers. He is survived by his wife and two children. J. M.

Lorain, O.—A suit for heavy damages has been started against Fred Stehle by Claude Tyler, of North Olmsted, according to an Elyria paper. Mr. Tyler states that the defendant has greenhouses at North Olmsted and Lorain which he leased. THE COST OF PAPER.

That the increased cost of materials has hit the publishers of trade papers, newspapers and other publications, as well as florists and men in almost all lines of business, is shown by the statement of Secretary of Agriculture D. F. Houston, regarding the print paper situation, which follows:

"Conditions in the paper industry have constituted one of the most serious of our domestic problems during the last year. Due to the exorbitant prices charged for news print, the profits of the great dailies were either wiped out entirely or else reduced to a minimum, while the small publishers were brought face to face with suspension and even absolute ruin. Periodical publishers have fared no less badly, the profits of book publishers have changed to losses in many cases, and the price of paper of every kind has risen by leaps and bounds."

Resists Rot

California Redwood is noted for its resistance to rot when in contact with the soil and moisture. That's why it was selected for the boxes that made up the world-famous Mesembryanthemum hedge fence around the grounds of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, San Francisco, 1915.

Boxes of Mesembryanthemum were stacked up on their sides to the desired height and shape, forming a beautiful living wall, more pleasing than any ordinary hedge and of far greater height.

This use of Redwood contains a valuable suggestion to florists and landscape gardeners—both as to the novel construction of the hedge, and the permanence of Redwood.

Protecting Those Who Trust Us

A little "inside story" (clipped from a leading lumber trade journal) about the reasons for — and some deductions as to the results of—

Trade-marked Cypress

"THE WOOD ETERNAL"

The following editorial item is from the May 10th, 1917, issue of the LUMBER WORLD REVIEW. (It is worth reading because it is true—and worth reproducing here because you probably don't read lumber trade papers.) We submit it without further comment.

Note the Emphasis it puts on the Relative Value of Genuine

"Tide-water" Cypress

Please do not be diverted by the small type—it's A STORY WORTH READING.

(From the "Lumber World Review," May 10th, 1917.)

"CYPRESS TRADE-MARK WINNING BIG.—THEIR SLOGAN, 'SAFE BUYING MEANS EASY SELLING,' PROVES GREAT MARKET AID TO RETAILERS.

"Cypress, 'The Wood Eternal,' was the first lumber to be exploited through a really large general advertising campaign, and now cypress has 'gone and done it again'—and is winning big by helping its retailers to an 'automatic' market by sponsoring to the ultimate user every piece of cypress made by an Association mill.

"When the Southern Cypress Manufacturers' Association began a campaign of advertising a few years ago, which was to exploit the virtues of cypress, little was known of this venerable wood by present day lumber users.

"But as the stories of its remarkable rot-resisting properties were told time after time, the interest of the lumber buying public in this new-old lumber was aroused.

"It was not long thereafter until the mills of the Southern Cypress Manufacturers' Association were working to capacity to fill the orders for cypress which after more or less neglect had again come into its own.

"And then followed what usually follows any marked success in merchandising in these days of intensive buying and selling. Inferior, or upland, cypress (and some carelessly manufactured cypress) began to share unduly in the results of public faith, and it became necessary to protect the lay consumer and at the same time protect the conscientious manufacturer and the honorable and up-to-date preponderance of retailers.

"The general public was not aware that there was a considerable difference between 'tide-water' cypress and the cypress that grew too far inland—but experience began to teach them that while one was 'eternal' the other was more or less temporal and 'fleeting.' One was truly rot-resisting while the other failed to justify the confidence of the user in its rot-defying character.

"So the already famous cypress arrow trade-mark was devised as an insurance policy for both seller and user. The value of a trade-mark need not be dwelt upon. The manufacturer who won't sign his product will never get very far with it, in these days. The quality must be maintained if the product is to survive the fierce battle of business.

"And so now genuine 'tide-water' cypress (the most eternal of the Wood Eternal) is no longer bought by name alone or on faith—but by a brand back of which is a group of manufacturers including most of the larger and more responsible producers of cypress. As a further testimony of 'pride in their product,' the output of each mill is being identified by the serial number of that mill incorporated in the trade-mark as applied to each mill. The move is one in the right direction, the most important one ever taken by any lumber manufacturers, and is more than justifying, even this early, the well-known cypress slogan which recites that 'the only permanent safety for the seller is perpetual safety for the buyer.' This is the keynote.

"RETAILERS ARE ALREADY EXTENSIVELY REFUSING TO BUY 'ANONYMOUS CYPRESS,' AND ARE SHOWING THEIR UP-TO-THE-MINUTE ACUMEN BY SPECIFYING THE TRADE-MARK ON ALL THEIR CYPRESS ORDERS. THIS IS THE MARK WHICH IS NOW STAMPED ON THE TIDE-WATER CYPRESS—(THE 'WOOD ETERNAL')—MANUFACTURED BY THE ASSOCIATION MILLS.

"IT MARKS A NEW EPOCH IN LUMBER MERCHANDISING."

Within the past few weeks silk has shown a considerable advance, and indications point to much higher prices for all silk goods during the fall.

We cannot urge our customers too strongly to purchase their ribbons and chiffons now.

July, which is normally a dull month for florists, can very profitably be employed in making your fall purchase of ribbons and chiffons, which owing to higher prices of imported materials and scarcity of domestic labor will undoubtedly be enhanced in value when the fall season opens.

CAN AMERICA GROW ITS OWN AZALEAS?

The foregoing question appeared in the same conspicuous position in The Review some months ago. But the query surely will bear one repetition in these columns, for it doubtless has been reiterated hundreds of times by members of the trade. Chas. W. Ward believes the answer should be, "Yes."

NOT ONLY does Chas. W. Ward insist that the question, "Can America grow its own azaleas?" should be answered in the affirmative, but he is manifesting the sincerity of his statements by investing large sums of money in preparations for supplying the American demand for the plants. He has already covered a good many acres of ground at the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, Eureka, Cal., with slat houses, glass houses, frames and other structures, expensively equipped for the propagation and growing of azaleas, and the work of building is still proceeding merrily. As fast as new space is enclosed, it is filled with stock. The best test of the genuineness of a man's faith in a business idea is the amount of capital he is willing to use in backing the idea.

Prospects at Eureka.

Mr. Ward's success in former undertakings would probably insure respectful attention to his opinion of the prospects at Eureka. But he intimates that the developments at Eureka have reached such a stage that they are now among the self-evident facts and are no longer a mere matter of opinion. He is confident that the results already attained are a conclusive demonstration of the feasibility of his plan. He avers that he is proving the thing can be done by just doing it. He even declares that "California is destined to produce better azaleas than Belgium and to improve the cultural methods as well." He "does not believe that Belgian growers have learned everything about azalea culture."

Moreover, the situation with reference to Belgian azaleas is so precarious, is it not, that florists in the next season or two may be forced to decide either to use American-grown azaleas or get along without any? That observation, let the reader note, is put have been discouraging, to say the least.

Even if ocean transportation should be greatly improved in the near future, what is the outlook in Belgium itself? The tide of war, as it ebbs and flows, may eventually surge over the Belgian frontier. Then the azalea district, though it escaped harm in the early stages of the war, may be devastated. That is merely another of the gloomy possibilities. And, though it is not safe to prophesy, it is safe and sane to imagine the worst—as well as the best.

Chas. W. Ward gives an interesting account of some of the events that led him to engage in the enterprise of growing azaleas at Eureka. He says, beginning his narrative with a quotation from a great scientist:

A New Departure.

"Do what the other fellows say you can't do. I have made some of my most important discoveries while working over ground that had, supposedly, been combed bare by others, who declared there was nothing there," said the sage of Menlo Park.

"This was thirty years ago. The scene was laid on the borders of Lake Flirt, Fla., in a region then a pristine wilderness. The sage, of course, was Edison; the listener was your humble scribe, who has remembered Edison's words and profited by them ever since.

won't bud.' That's what the other fellows said and are still saying. We are growing them here in quantity at Eureka; in other words, following Edison's advice and doing what the other fellows say cannot be done.

"How did we find it out? Just by accident. A Christmas azalea was bought from Frank Pelicano, of San Francisco. Another was purchased from the Art Floral Co., of the same city. Both were taken to Eureka. They kept on blooming till March and were then planted out in a bed of pansies and forgotten. The next January many fat buds were noted on these plants. They were dug, potted up and taken inside. In a short time they were a mass of blooms, even larger blooms than they carried when we bought them in San Francisco.

"Our curiosity aroused, we ordered 100 azaleas from the east, potted them and kept them under a slat house, where they were sprayed and watered. In the fall they were a mass of big, fat buds. They were forced alongside imported stock, were in bloom much sooner than the imported ones and were sold out before one of the others found a purchaser.

Masses of Native Azaleas.

"This seems to dispose of the question of budding; but, if it does not, we have other proofs galore.

"From Eureka northward all the hills facing the sea are a mass of native azaleas. These are annually covered with sheets of immense blooms; sometimes a seedling plant a foot high bears a fine head of bloom. The hills in the next range behind are covered with native rhododendrons. They never fail to bloom profusely. Every female holly plant is fully berried every year. The toyon is a mass of scarlet. Cotoneasters bear crops of berries that are the envy of nonresidents. Strawberries, currants, raspberries and other small fruits bear two and three-fold the average eastern crops. The fact is, this climate affords ideal conditions for seed production, and budding is the first step toward seed production."

Vigorous Growth of Plants.

G. G. Vanden Abeele, superintendent of the azalea department of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, says azaleas grow much faster there than in Belgium, and he thinks he can produce as good plants in three years at Eureka as the Belgians can turn out in four years. In fact, he says that any sort of plant which is suited to a comparatively cool climate grows with remarkable freedom at Eureka. "The rapidity of plant growth in this locality," he states, "cannot be appreciated till one starts work here." He adds that, as a consequence of this vigor of growth, the Eureka azaleas bear plumper buds and larger flowers than are usually seen on the imported stock.

The Stock for Grafting.

One of Mr. Ward's first endeavors at Eureka was to improve the azalea

stock for grafting by selecting the strongest, most vigorous seedlings for stocks. He now has a seedling which, he believes, has exceptional merit for this purpose. As indicated by the two left-hand plants in the upper picture on the preceding page, this seedling seems to retain the lower leaves much longer after grafting than does the ordinary stock used for grafting in Belgium. Mr. Vanden Abeele finds that grafting the azalea in the Eureka climate is not at all difficult. He remarks that at the end of the first year the grafted plants at the Cottage Gardens Nurseries have 6-inch to 8-inch heads and some varieties even measure nine to ten inches in diameter.

One of the most noticeable characteristics of Mr. Ward's method of azalea culture is the comprehensive and discriminative use that he makes of the different forms of structure—frame, slat house and greenhouse—according to the season or the plants' stage of development.

Ward's Azalea Range.

More than 400,000 of the plants can be wintered in his present group of slat houses, which occupy three acres. The slat houses are heated, when necessary, by a large oil-burning boiler, connected with steam pipes under the gutters, but the artificial heat is needed only when dangerous frosts occur, say ten or a dozen times during the winter. In addition to these slat houses, the azalea range comprises a steel-frame house which covers one-fourth of an acre and holds 35,000 plants. There are also two acres of special frames, fitted with slatted covers for use in sunny summer days; these frames will shelter 250,000 plants. Two acres more of greenhouses, especially designed for azalea culture, are now under construction and will provide room for nearly 300,000 plants.

"All this," says Mr. Ward, "means about a million azaleas under culture and an annual output of a quarter of a million salable plants."

GORLY'S GLORIOUS GLADIATORS?

Several weeks ago it was reported that Frank Gorly, of Grimm & Gorly, St. Louis, was trapesing around among the florists of his home and nearby states organizing a squad, or company, or regiment, or whatever military division he could get enough members to fill. Mr. Gorly's activity was the incentive for the following, which was suggested as the first verse of a battle hymn for fighting florists:

Florist-warriors hold are we,
And our trade is Grimm & Gorly,
Peace and quiet suit us not;
We want war, and we want it hot!

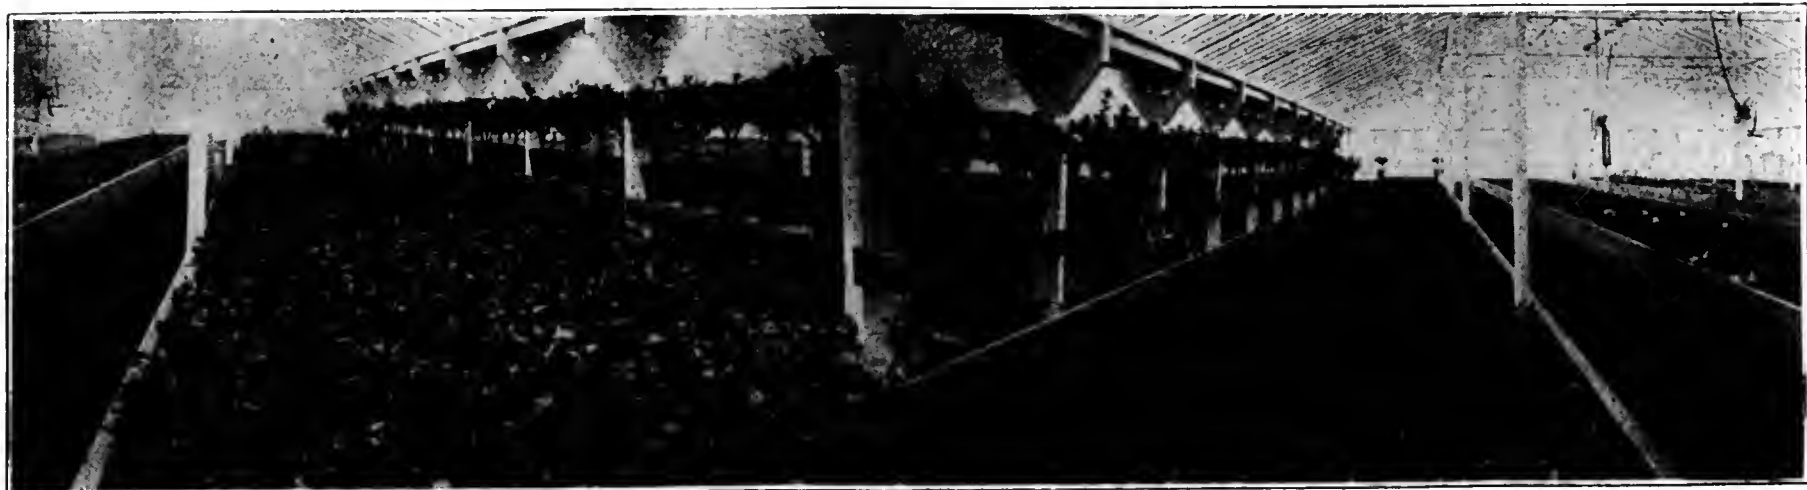

Having this much as a starter, perhaps the poets in the trade will supply other verses. You try and let's have the result.

gated aspidistras, this variety being simply a variation from the original green type. A strong soil sometimes will encourage the habit of reverting to the green form, and it is quite possible that this may have had something to do with the change in your stock. There is little that can be done toward altering this condition, except to give the plants a fair amount of light and not to overfeed them. W. H. T.

CHLORINE IN THE WATER.

The water on this island all contains more or less chlorine. What is the maximum percentage of this gas that water can contain and still be fit for watering a general run of plants in the open? I am using rain water for the potted stock. The city water shows over 3,000 parts of chlorine in 1,000,000 and I have found it harmful to many plants. A test well I dug recently contains 1,660 parts in 1,000,000. Will this water be safe to use? Besides a great variety of tropical and subtropical plants, I grow about two acres of vegetables during the winter and I am especially anxious to get water for these. Any information you can give me will be much appreciated. G. D.—Fla.

Just how much chlorine may safely be contained in water will depend largely upon the salts with which it is combined. Most commonly it is united with sodium, forming common salt. When that is the case even one-fourth as much as is contained in the water from the test well would be injurious, and since this salt would accumulate in the soil, the cumulative effect would make it unsafe to use anything like even the above comparatively small amount. Another factor that should be considered is the amount of rainfall, or rather the amount of irrigating or sprinkling that the crops will require. The use of a comparatively small amount of water at long intervals would permit the use of water that would be unsafe to use if large amounts were applied at frequent intervals.

We would certainly advise great care about relying on the water from the test well, whatever the base with which the chlorine is combined, for anything more than an occasional light sprinkling. T.

CAPRICIOUS WEATHER IN SOUTH.

The gulf coast section has been up against it nearly a year. Since the tropical hurricane of July 5, 1916, the weather has been so unseasonable that we do not know what to expect next. After the hurricane there were floods for a month. Nearly four months of drought followed. Then in November came a freeze, which was followed by abnormally warm weather. February 1 there was another freeze, which practically cleaned up cabbage and other truck-garden crops. Summer weather followed until March 1, when again there was a freeze. The weather during March and April was colder than it had been in December and January. There had been but little rain since April 1 and that in scattered showers. January 1 to June 23 there had been a shortage of rainfall in Mobile of more than twelve inches in the face of the fact that there had been several rains there, but these had not reached our section, forty-four miles away.

The drought, which had lasted nearly three months prior to June 23, did great damage to crops, especially seed and bulb crops. It was interesting to note June 23 how such a drought affects different plants and how much of it some can stand.

Cardinal climbers did not seem to suffer at all and some ripe seeds were gathered June 19. They were making a vigorous growth.

Morning-glories were doing almost nothing and moonflowers had not come up.

Rainbow hibiscus was making a good growth, although this type of hibiscus is a native of damp locations. It made a medium growth during the drought and was a mass of bloom in white and all tints of rose and pink.

The dasheen, another wet-ground plant, had kept up a fair growth and was standing the drought much better than we expected.

Canna had stood still and had made practically no growth. Undoubtedly it had made some root growth and when rain came, it was expected that it would improve rapidly.

It was a question June 23 how much longer any plants could survive without rain and a great deal of rain would won't bud.' That's what the other fellows said and are still saying. We are growing them here in quantity at Eureka; in other words, following Edison's advice and doing what the other fellows say cannot be done.

"How did we find it out? Just by accident. A Christmas azalea was bought from Frank Pelicano, of San Francisco. Another was purchased from the Art Floral Co., of the same city. Both were taken to Eureka. They kept on blooming till March and were then planted out in a bed of pansies and forgotten. The next January many fat buds were noted on these plants. They were dug, potted up and taken inside. In a short time they were a mass of blooms, even larger blooms than they carried when we bought them in San Francisco.

"Our curiosity aroused, we ordered 100 azaleas from the east, potted them and kept them under a slat house, where they were sprayed and watered. In the fall they were a mass of big, fat buds. They were forced alongside imported stock, were in bloom much sooner than the imported ones and were sold out before one of the others found a purchaser.

Masses of Native Azaleas.

"This seems to dispose of the question of budding; but, if it does not, we have other proofs galore.

"From Eureka northward all the hills facing the sea are a mass of native azaleas. These are annually covered with sheets of immense blooms; sometimes a seedling plant a foot high bears a fine head of bloom. The hills in the next range behind are covered with native rhododendrons. They never fail to bloom profusely. Every female holly plant is fully berried every year. The toyon is a mass of scarlet. Cotoneasters bear crops of berries that are the envy of nonresidents. Strawberries, currants, raspberries and other small fruits bear two and three-fold the average eastern crops. The fact is, this climate affords ideal conditions for seed production, and budding is the first step toward seed production."

Vigorous Growth of Plants.

G. G. Vanden Abeele, superintendent of the azalea department of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, says azaleas grow much faster there than in Belgium, and he thinks he can produce as good plants in three years at Eureka as the Belgians can turn out in four years. In fact, he says that any sort of plant which is suited to a comparatively cool climate grows with remarkable freedom at Eureka. "The rapidity of plant growth in this locality," he states, "cannot be appreciated till one starts work here." He adds that, as a consequence of this vigor of growth, the Eureka azaleas bear plumper buds and larger flowers than are usually seen on the imported stock.

The Stock for Grafting.

stock for grafting by selecting the strongest, most vigorous seedlings for stocks. He now has a seedling which, he believes, has exceptional merit for this purpose. As indicated by the two left-hand plants in the upper picture on the preceding page, this seedling seems to retain the lower leaves much longer after grafting than does the ordinary stock used for grafting in Belgium. Mr. Vanden Abeele finds that grafting the azalea in the Eureka climate is not at all difficult. He remarks that at the end of the first year the grafted plants at the Cottage Gardens Nurseries have 6-inch to 8-inch heads and some varieties even measure nine to ten inches in diameter.

One of the most noticeable characteristics of Mr. Ward's method of azalea culture is the comprehensive and discriminative use that he makes of the different forms of structure—frame, slat house and greenhouse—according to the season or the plants' stage of development.

Ward's Azalea Range.

More than 400,000 of the plants can be wintered in his present group of slat houses, which occupy three acres. The slat houses are heated, when necessary, by a large oil-burning boiler, connected with steam pipes under the gutters, but the artificial heat is needed only when dangerous frosts occur, say ten or a dozen times during the winter. In addition to these slat houses, the azalea range comprises a steel-frame house which covers one-fourth of an acre and holds 35,000 plants. There are also two acres of special frames, fitted with slatted covers for use in sunny summer days; these frames will shelter 250,000 plants. Two acres more of greenhouses, especially designed for azalea culture, are now under construction and will provide room for nearly 300,000 plants.

"All this," says Mr. Ward, "means about a million azaleas under culture and an annual output of a quarter of a million salable plants."

Several weeks ago it was reported that Frank Gorly, of Grimm & Gorly, St. Louis, was trapesing around among the florists of his home and nearby states organizing a squad, or company, or regiment, or whatever military division he could get enough members to fill. ## HOW'S BUSINESS?

THE OUTLOOK.

How a Chicago Bank Sees It.

Reports to banks by their out-of-town correspondents indicate there is considerable practice of economy in the larger cities, while the smaller towns find retail trade unusually good. In a review of business by the National Bank of the Republic this matter of economy is dealt with as seen from a business viewpoint. The bank says in part:

"There has been undue agitation on the subject of economy. The hysteria which prevailed immediately after our entrance into the war led to the dissemination of an excessive amount of gratuitous advice regarding the curtailment of personal expenditures. Sensational reports of a food shortage were followed by similar inferences regarding practically all the necessities of life.

Affects Retail Trade.

"The curtailment of purchases following brought about a condition in general retail trade which amounted almost to stagnation. Were half the suggested economies to be carried into effect the result would be an immediate and real depression, made more severe by the drastic readjustment in commodity prices which would necessarily follow. The merchants of this country have large stocks of high-priced merchandise for which many of them are indebted to the banks. Any prolonged let-up in buying on the part of the public at this time would cause a forced liquidation which would seriously undermine the entire price structure.

"There is ample opportunity for effecting economies. Elimination of waste by individuals and corporations, larger production through the avoidance of absenteeism on the part of labor, and methods of distribution that will curtail duplicated effort are some of the suggested means for accomplishing the desired result.

"The Department of Agriculture recently issued a statement estimating that the saving of one ounce of edible meat per day by every American family would amount to nearly one-half billion pounds per annum, or the equivalent of 875,000 head of beef cattle."

Good Times Predicted.

As to the business outlook, rather boom times are predicted. The bank says:

"If the experience of the Allies is worth anything, little apprehension need be felt as to the ability of our industries to thrive under a war régime. We are dependent upon Germany for none of our raw material. In fact, with the exception of a few commodities, and those originating principally in allied countries, we are practically self-sustained as regards the elements which enter into the material side of warfare.

"Our factories, mills and shipyards are already booked up months ahead with civilian business, in the case of the United States Steel Corporation alone the tonnage on order representing more than eighty per cent of a full year's capacity.

Industries to Boom.

"The $8,800,000,000 provided for in the revenue budget of the government is equivalent to the total value of our enormous export trade in all of the last year and a half. The expenditure of this huge amount on behalf of the Allies as well as ourselves cannot but result in stimulating every department of industry, trade and transportation."

There are various ideas as to the prolongation of the war. Eventually it is expected that increases in wages will lead to increased purchases of moderate priced luxuries. The well-to-do will be hit by the heavy income tax, and since they now have presumably all they need this class of buyers may economize in the matter of high priced luxuries, but flowers are not high priced luxuries, and the rich may be expected to buy about as many as ever, while the wage-earners will buy more than before.

SEASONABLE NOTES.

Cattleyas.

The bulk of the early summer-flowering cattleyas have now finished blooming, but we shall have late plants of Mossiae and Mendelii for a week or two longer and gigas will hold over a little while. Gaskelliana will help in some measure to fill up the gap until the fall-blooming labiata comes in season, toward the end of August. After the end of June cattleya flowers are not particularly abundant, and it usually happens that in late July and August the prices run up to midwinter heights. Those possessing some of the late sum-

CAN CEMETERY BAR PLANTING?

Florists of Anderson, Ind., are considerably incensed over the following notice posted at the Maplewood cemetery in that city:

Flower beds, flower baskets, urns and other planting by lot owners prohibited.

Cut flowers, loose or in disappearing vases, permitted.

This is in accordance with the rules and regulations of Maplewood cemetery, a copy of which can be seen at the company's office, 201 Union building, Anderson, Ind.

This action of the Anderson cemetery brings up again the question of the right of cemetery associations to regulate the ornamentation of lots by the owners or whoever the owners may employ to do the work, the latter in a majority of cases being florists.

In the July 6, 1916, issue of The Review this subject was exhaustively discussed by an attorney, who made an investigation of court decisions affecting it. Summarized, the findings of the attorney are as follows:

RIGHTS OF CEMETERY.

In order to maintain a uniform scheme of decoration, a cemetery association has a right to control the planting on its grounds, and hence may sometimes be legally sustained in excluding the work of outside florists.

WHEN A CEMETERY EXCEEDS RIGHTS.

If a cemetery permits lot owners to do their own planting, but at the same time prohibits them from engaging outside florists to do the work, such procedure is inconsistent and probably would not be upheld by the courts.

A cemetery usually is not entitled to engage in outside trade in competition with florists, except, possibly, to dispose of surplus stock.

If a cemetery is allowed, by its charter and the local laws, to sell stock in the public markets, it should not escape payment of taxes on such parts of its property as are used in such competitive trade.

THE LEGAL REMEDY.

When a cemetery exceeds its legal rights, to the detriment of the florists in the vicinity, they may protect themselves, individually or collectively, by an appeal to the courts, bringing suit as a taxpayer or in the name of a lot owner.

Apparently, unless exceptional circumstances can be shown, the Anderson cemetery is within its rights.

ORCHIDS

mer-flowering hybrids will find them specially valuable at that time.

We have had a peculiar season, somewhat akin to that of a year ago. Clear, warm days have been few; dark, wet and sunless ones have been abundant. The advantages of movable shading in such a season are manifold and far more than repay for any labor entailed in placing them in position or removing them. As a rule, growers have now dropped the use of fire heat unless it may be a little for such subjects as calanthes, phalenopsis or East Indian dendrobies, and the atmosphere of the orchid houses will on dark days get decidedly damp and clammy. Watering under such conditions must be carefully done. Better let the plants run on the dry side rather than the reverse.

Fall and winter-blooming cattleyas, like labiata, Trianae and Percivaliana, Cyclone at Freeport, Ill., Drops Boiler House Roof in an Adjacent Greenhouse.

are now making active growth of both bulbs and roots and will need an increased water supply. Cattleyas do not need watering daily, even in hot weather; twice or thrice a week suffices. Spraying overhead each afternoon, however, will prove beneficial.

Cypripediums.

Cypripediums succeed best when given a heavier shade than the cattleyas and it need not be of a removable nature. They also enjoy a closer and more humid atmosphere. However, a few varieties, like the old insigne, succeed well in coldframes through the summer, or even directly in the open below the shade of trees. The stronger rooted and well established cypripediums are all much benefited by applications of weak manure water once in ten days. I have found that cow manure and soot, placed in a bag and immersed in a barrel, provide a good food for a number of orchids, as well as many other pot plants.

Calanthes.

The calanthes are now in active growth. They enjoy heat and I find that a little fire heat on wet days and cool nights is much to their liking. A fire made of a few logs of wood, which will give just sufficient heat to warm the pipes for an hour or two and dry up the condensation, is what is needed. If there is any one orchid more than another which revels in a brisk heat and moisture, it is the calanthe. It is just a little early yet to start feeding the plants, but as soon as the roots have become active and are seen running over the surface soil and even clinging to the pot sides, some cow manure water every second or third watering should be given. Let it be weak at first, but fairly strong as growth advances. Where a small batch is grown it is a good plan to dip the pots once a week in a tub of liquid manure. This applies more especially to C. vestita and C. Veitchii, but all the calanthes are improved by similar treatment.

Dendrobiums.

Such varieties as Dendrobium nobile and its hybrids, also D. Wardianum, D. formosum giganteum and D. Phalaenop-

sis, are now making their new growths. Like the calanthes, they revel in a warm, stuffy and humid atmosphere. A house which can be closed up about 3 or 3:30 o'clock each afternoon, after syringing the plants and wetting down the floors and roofs so that the atmosphere reeks with moisture, is just what these East Indian dendrobies like, and, given such conditions, their rate of growth becomes much accelerated.

Odontoglossums and Odontiodas.

Similar methods of culture should be used for odontoglossums of the crispum and Pescatorei type and for odontiodas, side. An abundance of night air should be given. Spraying overhead each afternoon, when the foliage can dry before nightfall, is beneficial. A few odontoglossums, such as grande and pulchellum majus, succeed well under warmer conditions than the crispum section. I have found these do well on a bench at the cool end of the cattleya house.

FREAK OF FREEPORT STORM.

A freak of the cyclone which did considerable damage at Freeport, Ill., June 12, is shown in the accompanying illustrations. The wind lifted the roof, 30x52 feet, off the boiler house of the Freeport Floral Co. range, carried it over two greenhouses and dropped it into a third. Aside from the loss of the roof there was practically no damage to the boiler house.

The house struck was 27x169 feet, of Garland construction, with truss roofs, iron gutters and angle iron purlins. A large portion of the house and the stock it contained were destroyed and some damage was done to the other houses by timbers dropping from the flying boiler-house roof. The loss was estimated at between $4,000 and $5,000 by Louis Bauscher, secretary of the company, with no cyclone insurance.

CANTERBURY BELLS.

Please tell me how to treat Canterbury bells to have them in bloom during the winter months, December, if possible. I planted seeds of the blue, pink and white singles three weeks ago, but so far they have not germinated. If these seedlings turn out well, will they be of any value for blooming next winter?

E. C. M.—Pa.

Seeds of Canterbury bells should germinate within two weeks if fresh seeds were used and if they were watered when necessary. These plants cannot be flowered in midwinter. I have seen them in fair condition early in April, but it is not until May and June that they are at their best. They cannot be forced and need a cool greenhouse all the time for best results. Any attempt you make to bloom them in winter is bound to fail.

We have had a peculiar season, somewhat akin to that of a year ago. Clear, warm days have been few; dark, wet and sunless ones have been abundant. The advantages of movable shading in such a season are manifold and far more than repay for any labor entailed in placing them in position or removing them. As a rule, growers have now dropped the use of fire heat unless it may be a little for such subjects as calanthes, phalenopsis or East Indian dendrobies, and the atmosphere of the orchid houses will on dark days get decidedly damp and clammy. Watering under such conditions must be carefully done. Better let the plants run on the dry side rather than the reverse.

Fall and winter blooming cattleyas, like labiata, Trianae and Percivaliana, are now making active growth of both bulbs and roots and will need an increased water supply. Cattleyas do not need watering daily, even in hot weather; twice or thrice a week suffices. Spraying overhead each afternoon, however, will prove beneficial.

Cypripediums.

Cypripediums succeed best when given a heavier shade than the cattleyas and it need not be of a removable nature. They also enjoy a closer and more humid atmosphere. However, a few varieties, like the old insigne, succeed well in coldframes through the summer, or even directly in the open below the shade of trees. The stronger rooted and well established cypripediums are all much benefited by applications of weak manure water once in ten days. I have found that cow manure and soot, placed in a bag and immersed in a barrel, provide a good food for a number of orchids, as well as many other pot plants.

Calanthes.

The calanthes are now in active growth. They enjoy heat and I find that a little fire heat on wet days and cool nights is much to their liking. A fire made of a few logs of wood, which will give just sufficient heat to warm the pipes for an hour or two and dry up the condensation, is what is needed. If there is any one orchid more than another which revels in a brisk heat and moisture, it is the calanthe. It is just a little early yet to start feeding the plants, but as soon as the roots have become active and are seen running over the surface soil and even clinging to the pot sides, some cow manure water every second or third watering should be given. Let it be weak at first, but fairly strong as growth advances. Where a small batch is grown it is a good plan to dip the pots once a week in a tub of liquid manure. This applies more especially to C. vestita and C. Veitchii, but all the calanthes are improved by similar treatment.

Dendrobium.

Such varieties as Dendrobium nobile and its hybrids, also D. Wardianum, D. formosum giganteum and D. Phalaenop-

sis, are now making their new growths. Like the calanthes, they revel in a warm, stuffy and humid atmosphere. A house which can be closed up about 3 or 3:30 o'clock each afternoon, after syringing the plants and wetting down the floors and roofs so that the atmosphere reeks with moisture, is just what these East Indian dendrobies like, and, given such conditions, their rate of growth becomes much accelerated.

Odontoglossums and Odontiodas.

Similar methods of culture should be used for odontoglossums of the crispum and Pescatorei type and for odontiodas.

Special Notice

Because the Fourth of July falls on Wednesday this year, it becomes necessary to go to press with that week's issue of which latter are hybrids between odontoglossums and odontiodas, and are handsome and striking. Both enjoy a sunny house from November until the end of March, but in the summer, which is their most trying period, a lean to house with a northern exposure suits them best. The roof should be shaded with blinds, which should roll a foot above the glass and should be used only while the sun shines directly on the plants. In extremely hot weather it is better not to keep the atmosphere too moist and the plants themselves summer better if run a little on the dry side. An abundance of night air should be given. Sprayings overhead each afternoon, when the foliage can dry before nightfall, is beneficial. A few odontoglossums, such as grande and pulehellum majus, succeed well under warmer conditions than the crispum section. I have found these do well on a bench at the cool end of the cattleya house.

FREAK OF FREEPORT STORM.

A freak of the cyclone which did considerable damage at Freeport, Ill., June 12, is shown in the accompanying illustrations. The wind lifted the roof, 30x52 feet, off the boiler house of the Freeport Floral Co. range, carried it over two greenhouses and dropped it into a third. Aside from the loss of the roof there was practically no damage to the boiler house.

The house struck was 27x160 feet, of Garland construction, with truss roofs, iron gutters and angle iron purlins. A large portion of the house and the stock it contained were destroyed and some damage was done to the other houses by timbers dropping from the dying boiler house roof. The loss was estimated at between $1,000 and $5,000 by Louis Bauscher, secretary of the company, with no cyclone insurance.

CANTERBURY BELLS

Please tell me how to treat Canterbury bells to have them in bloom during the winter months, December, if possible. I planted seeds of the blue, pink and white singles three weeks ago, but so far they have not germinated. If these seedlings turn out well, will they be of any value for blooming next winter? L. C. M., Pa.

Seeds of Canterbury bells should germinate within two weeks if fresh seeds were used and if they were watered when necessary. These plants cannot be flowered in midwinter. I have seen them in fair condition only in April, but it is not until May and June that they are at their best. They cannot be forced and need a cool greenhouse all the time for best results. Any attempt you make to bloom them in winter is bound to fail. C. W.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Primula Malacoides.

The first week in July is sufficiently early to make a sowing of Primula malacoides, that easily grown and decorative primrose. Many growers make a mistake in sowing seeds in winter or early spring, at the same time as P. obconica and P. sinensis; such plants become far too large and cumbersome. P. malacoides has grown in favor rapidly during the last two or three years and now stands at the head of the greenhouse primroses in popularity. From seeds sown in early July plants may be had in 5-inch to 7-inch pots or pans for winter flowering. There are bright pink forms of P. malacoides now offered which will be found to sell particularly well. Grow this primula in a coldframe until the end of October, then give it a cool greenhouse. It is comparatively hardy and has withstood zero temperatures in pockets in a well drained rock garden with a light mulch of leaves.

Show Pelargoniums.

As the flowering season for pelargoniums passes the plants should be placed outdoors and laid on their sides in a sunny location. They will need no further attention for some weeks, until the wood has turned a nutty brown color and much of the foliage has fallen, when they can be pruned back quite hard and placed in a coldframe where protection from torrential rains can be given. Water the plants sparingly, but spray them freely and they will soon break away, when they can be shaken out and repotted in smaller-sized pots.

Primula Obconica.

While Primula obconica can be grown in a greenhouse through the hot months, it will thrive much better in a coldframe where the sashes are well elevated over the plants and shade is afforded by lath screens. The plants will be benefited by having the sashes removed in the evening, unless thunder storms seem imminent. P. sinensis and P. kewensis succeed well under the same treatment as P. obconica. Another method of culture which will give large, handsome plants is to plant out the primulas in a compost of loam, well decayed manure, leaf-mold and sand, and lift the plants carefully with good balls, in early October. If kept well shaded and sprayed for a few days, after careful lifting and potting the plants will lose few leaves and soon become established in pots.

Marguerites for Christmas.

Only the small-flowered white marguerites are valuable for midwinter blooming. The yellow varieties do not make shapely pot plants and neither these nor Mrs. Sander and Queen Alexandra are satisfactory bloomers in early winter. If you have plants of the small-flowered and bushy-habited marguerites, the plants should be kept potted and pinched from time to time. They will be better if plunged in a bed of coal ashes. They will persist in throwing shoots carrying flower buds, but keep them pinched back, and if the pinching is stopped about September 20 the plants can be had in full flower for Christmas.

Tuberous-Rooted Plants.

Such plants as begonias, gloxinias, gesneras and achimenes are useful during the hot summer months. Each requires shade from direct sunshine, or the foliage will soon become disfigured. As the plants become established in their pots, give them occasional applications of liquid manure and soot water. This will keep the foliage a rich, dark green color and intensify the colors of the blooms. All these tuberous-rooted plants are of comparatively easy culture, but they are liable to be attacked by thrips in warm, dry weather. If they are fumigated once a week, however, they can be kept clean. The achimenes will be found especially well adapted for basket culture, as are some of the drooping forms of begonias.

Adiantums.

All the maidenhair ferns are now making strong growth and will need an abundant water supply. In addition, do not be afraid to give them liquid cow manure water. It is not generally known how much these ferns relish cow manure, both in the soil and in liquid form. I looked over a bed of adiantums the other day which had made an astonishing growth, and I noticed that a mulch of cow manure was mainly responsible for their luxuriant appearance. I can remember that when an apprentice I was cautioned never to apply manure water to maidenhair ferns, or they would be ruined, but time has proved some old teachings to be wrong.

WINTER-FLOWERING PLANTS.

Can you suggest some good stock to take the place of primulas and cinerarias for winter-flowering plants? The obconica primulas proved quite poisonous last winter and cinerarias seem to have lost favor with the public, so I do not care to try them again this season. I would like to grow something that requires about the same temperature as these plants.

F. G.—Ill.

Try Primula malacoides in place of P. obconica, but do not sow until early in July. This is a better primula than obconica and is not poisonous. It needs cool culture. Try Schizanthus wisetonensis in place of cinerarias, sowing seed about September 1. Cyclamens do well under cool culture and sell well. Primula sinensis could be grown, but this variety has little foliage and shakes badly, being decidedly inferior to P. malacoides.

London, England.—One of the compensations of the times is the discovery that flowers are more appreciated than ever, that the retailer can sell more and at better prices than ever before. "I know at least one wholesale grower of roses for cut flowers," says a writer in a trade paper, "who had a record year last season. When one can get the stock, it sells, from bedding plants to fruit trees."

Paris, France.—The journal of the Federation of French Horticultural Associations, formerly a monthly, now quarterly, has made its appearance nearly three months overdue, but the editor explains he has lacked labor for typesetting, coal, gas and electricity for the works, experienced a shortage of paper and been ill himself. The entrance of America into the world struggle is hailed by an eloquent address of welcome from the federation to all the professional horticulturists of the United States.

Rotterdam, Holland.—The winter now ended has been the coldest in Holland since 1901. The bulb acreage put out last autumn was not so large as usual and there were some losses, due to insufficient covering. Stock in warehouses also suffered, because fuel sometimes was unobtainable even at prices double those known before the war.

Paris, France.—French bulb growers are uneasy lest the prohibition on the import of bulbs from foreign countries into England be extended, during the current year, to apply to France, which has hitherto been excepted from the general prohibition. The growers have prepared their crop for 1917, and feel that it would be a hardship, involving huge loss, if the harvest were excluded from these islands. Several of the larger organizations representing the interests of the bulb growers approached the French government on the subject. Monsieur Clementel replied that he had placed the matter before the English government, representing to them the advantages of permitting the entry into Britain of the products of the French bulb growers. It has since been stated, however, that the French office of the British Board of Trade has said that no bulbs of whatever origin will be admitted into England this year.

METHODS OF PROPAGATION.

[Extracts from a paper read by T. D. Hatfield, of Wellesley, Mass., at a meeting of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society.]

The propagation of plants may be divided into the following classes: By cuttings; by layers; by grafts; by division, and by seeds and spores.

In the use of cuttings, the first thing necessary is a propagating bed and the means to care for freshly rooted plants. If you have no house for the purpose, close in a part of a bench with glazed sash or with cotton cloth. Bottom heat will be needed and can be obtained by closing in the hot water pipes under the bench. About five inches of good, clean, gray sand, as a propagating medium, is necessary. There should be a few degrees more heat in the bed than in the air; a bottom heat of 75 to 78 degrees is about right. If there is too much bottom heat, vents must be provided to allow the surplus heat to escape.

The idea of closing in the bed overhead is to control the air and sunlight, as fresh cuttings and grafts lose much by respiration in the daytime. The bed may be aired at night, when there is less respiration. This airing will help to harden the cuttings as they become rooted.

Rooting Softwood Cuttings.

If the cutting has opposite leaves, cut it off at a joint and it will root there or thereabouts. If the cutting has alternate leaves, like the heliotrope, cut it anywhere, and it will root anywhere along the stem. Some leaves should be taken off, to reduce respiration. The proper condition of the wood and the conditions under which cuttings will root can be learned only by experience.

It will be safe to make the sand quite firm and the cuttings quite firm in the bed; also to give them plenty of water and protection from sunlight for the first few days. As they root, less water and less shade will be required. The best time to root softwood cuttings is in the spring, as the conditions can be more easily controlled.

In this way can be rooted all greenhouse stock, such as heliotropes, carnations, stevias, salvias, softwood cuttings of roses, lantanas, fuchsias, abutilons, geraniums, leaf cuttings of begonias, growing cuttings of azaleas, heaths, acacias, cytisus, and some varieties of antirrhinums and ageratums.

When lilacs, deutzias, spiræas, philadelphus and other spring-flowering shrubs are forced under glass, this affords means of propagating these plants from soft cuttings. This fact is often taken advantage of by nurserymen with rare shrubs, such as Daphne Eneorum, to force the plants under glass for cuttings, and root them in the spring. It is often the best way.

Half-ripe and Hardwood Cuttings.

In general practice, however, many tree and shrub cuttings are rooted from half-ripened wood taken from outdoors during the summer. For these the propagating bed may be used without bottom heat, though it is sometimes done in a cool greenhouse in flats, and may be done in a coldframe.

This is a good way to root, in addition to those previously mentioned, evergreen azaleas, viburnums, cotoneasters, forsythias, ligustrums, catalpas, loniceras, symphoricarpos, and some roses taken with a heel. All spring-rooted cuttings should be potted at once. Shrub and tree cuttings, rooted after

WILLIAM C. GLOECKNER.

WILLIAM C. GLOECKNER, of Albany, is the New York state capital's capital florist. Everyone in Albany who can read knows that Mr. Gloeckner sells flowers, because he is one of those persistent advertisers who advertise persistently. Ever and anon The Review reprints one of Mr. Gloeckner's advertisements for the reason they all are original. Mr. Gloeckner lived thirty years before he entered the trade ten years ago. His father and grandfather before him had been florists and it was only natural that he should follow suit when he reached the age of discretion. He is a life member of the S. A. F., chairman of the florists' section of the International Association of Rotary Clubs and a strong booster for the F. T. D. Which leaves nothing to be said except that he is married and has one son, who, it is expected, will represent the fourth generation of the family in the trade.

midsummer, are often left where rooted until spring.

With many of the trees and shrubs there is another chance, and that is by hardwood cuttings taken after the leaves fall. The nursery practice is, for such as lilacs, deutzias, spiræas and many others given in the previous lists, to make cuttings in the autumn, tie them in bundles, and store them in moist soil or sand until spring. During the winter they will form a callus or root-bearing surface. They should be planted out in spring and a fair percentage of them will root during the summer.

Root Cuttings.

Many trees and shrubs may be propagated from root cuttings, more than is generally supposed. The practice is to cut up roots and store them in flats of sandy soil over winter. This may be done with the quince, ailanthus, clad-rastis, elæagnus, fothergilla, elm, prunus, wistaria, and some roses, such as R. lucida, R. rugosa, R. cinnamomea and R. alpina. Some of these root cuttings, especially from trees, will take two years to make plants. This is a common practice with the Japanese anemone and some greenhouse plants, such as dieffenbachias, dracænas and bonvardias.

THE RETAIL FLORIST.....

AN UNUSUAL FUNERAL PIECE.

When Admiral George Dewey died, Z. D. Blackistone, Washington, was called upon to make an unusual funeral piece. It was an admiral's flag. Admiral Dewey was the first and only admiral since the days of Farragut and Porter of Civil war fame. When the latter died in 1891, the office was abolished, but was revived as a special honor to the hero of Manila bay. Consequently, when Mr. Blackistone was asked to produce an admiral's flag, it is unlikely that such another design ever had been made. The flag was of violets and embellished with lilies, with Mexican ivy for background. The stars will be of particular interest to florists. They were made of lilies by breaking off the sixth petal and filling the center with a large fat carnation, which produced the desired effect. The flag is shown in the accompanying illustration.

WAR-TIME FUNERAL DESIGNS.

Since the beginning of the war funeral work and the number of flowers sent to hospitals have increased greatly in Canada. It is probable that the entry of the United States into the conflict will have a similar effect here. When that time comes florists will undoubtedly be called upon to make appropriate designs to honor the soldier or sailor who has died in the service.

The rank of officers in the army and navy is shown by the insignia on their uniforms. Higher officers in both branches of the service have flags of different designs which denote their rank. While the trade does not favor that class of design, many customers are sure to ask florists to reproduce the flag or insignia in flowers as a funeral piece.

Here is a tip. Among the first pages in Webster's dictionary there are reproduced in colors the flags of the commanding officers in the army and navy. In the back of the same book are pictures of the insignia of the military and naval officers. With these pictures before him, the work will be easy for the expert florist.

WAR'S DEMANDS.

For the duration of the war, according to public forums, the keynote of American life will be economy. Thrift, saving and the elimination of waste are to be drilled into Mr. and Mrs. Citizen by every means the authorities know how to use. It is to be shouted from every housetop that victories are won as much by abolishing waste at home as by abolishing enemy trenches at the front. The most striking phase of the economy movement is the governmental campaign on behalf of conservation of all kinds and 100 per cent utilization.

Obviously, these conditions create opportunities for advertisers of products that have an economy appeal. The significance of the economy crusade is not being overlooked either by manufacturers or by producers of foodstuffs. Clever advertisers are already featuring economy in their ads. We see the statement that "fewer eggs are required with ——— baking powder." The 10-cent loaf of bread is advertised with the argument that a 10-cent loaf has only two "heels," while two 5-cent loaves have four.

It is not the economy drive, however, but the parallel propaganda on behalf of home gardens that has benefited seedsmen. This speeding up of agricultural production, which is closely identified with the economy plan, has been turned to good account by dealers in seeds, fertilizers and garden tools. The demand for seeds has in many cases been so great that it has been difficult to handle. Mail orders, according to reports, have been unprecedented as to volume. Local retail business has been correspondingly heavy, and a burden to those with small salesrooms, the greater activities being crowded into a few weeks, as usual.

It is interesting to note that one seed concern is striving to cash in on a demand which is a by-product of the gardening fad. Insects and diseases have always been a part of gardens, and now that vegetable patches are more numerous than ever before, more insecticides will be needed. To translate these conditions into dollars and cents one seed concern encloses a circular with each parcel, bill or letter. Here is a portion of the message:

Every true American having any available ground is having a vegetable garden this year. Many have never had one before and their knowledge is therefore limited. We wish to assist you as much as possible and willingly place our knowledge at your disposal.

One of the main causes for the many discouragements and failures is due to the numberless pests that infest the gardens, and in this case we can say positively an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

To assist you in combating these various pests and diseases, destroyers of gardens, we have carefully compiled the following chart for the use of the various insecticides.

Any information we can offer further on the care and culture of your garden will be freely given, as we wish to assist as much as possible in waging this great world war.

Then follows a list of insecticides, with prices and information as to quantities to use of each, and when.

Florists who sell to the public might profit by the hint.

FORMULA FOR SOIL PESTS.

What should be done to kill pests that destroy the roots of asters and other outdoor plants?

W. H. D.—Wis.

To kill grubs or larvæ that eat roots, you should bore holes in the soil twelve to fifteen inches apart each way and four to five inches deep. Pour a scant teaspoonful of carbon bisulphide in each hole and immediately cover it. The resultant gas will suffocate the soil pests. For root aphids on asters and other plants a coal oil emulsion, one part of coal oil to thirty parts of water, can be used, pouring a pint of the mixture about the stem of each plant. This method will not kill the aphides, but will drive them away. Neither the carbon bisulphide nor coal oil emulsion will harm the plants. Some growers have found tobacco water useful in fighting the root aphids.

FLORICULTURAL EDUCATION

What the Agricultural Colleges are Doing and Hope to do in the Interests of Commercial Floriculture in Education and Research.

It is my firm belief that floriculture in all its phases is becoming more and more scientific; that is to say, more and more dependent on the result of scientific research and discovery. Surely it must give a man greater confidence and power if he has had a term or two at a school or college where the subjects in which he will be engaged in the earning of his livelihood are highly specialized. Above all, of course, he must have practical experience; that is taken for granted; but if he understands plant life, chemistry, the habit and structure of insect pests, the life history of fungi, and other such things, he is surely a better man at his business. Practice with science, in other words, is the ideal for which we should strive, and we are following this plan as far as existing circumstances will permit.

Work at Amherst.

For the benefit of those who are not thoroughly familiar with our system and methods, I will analyze briefly the work of the Massachusetts Agricultural College along floricultural lines. The college offers an education without tuition fee to any student who is a resident of Massachusetts and who meets the requirements for admission. Women are admitted on the same basis as are men. Students who are not residents of Massachusetts are required to pay a nominal tuition fee. The 4-year course leads to the degree of bachelor of science. Twenty-seven teaching departments offer instruction in agriculture, horticulture, sciences, languages and mathematics. A system of major courses permits a student in his third year to elect major work in one of fifteen departments, specializing in that and allied subjects for a period of two years. A student specializing in floriculture is always required to take entomology, chemistry, a certain number of courses in botany, and other closely allied subjects, such as landscape gardening.

In nearly all our courses the students are required to arrange their hours according to the needs of the work, which means that we can call on them when the more important work is going on in the greenhouses and gardens, and every effort is made to give these men a working knowledge of the best methods now in use.

The object of the work is not to turn out specialists or men who have mastered all the details of practical work. If a man wishes to specialize along any particular line, he must first obtain this practice in some up-to-date establishment. In this connection I wish to say that we always urge our men to go into practical work during the summer months and vacation periods. I think the time is near at hand when every student taking a course of this nature will be required to have at least one year's experience before he receives his diploma. The Rhode Island Agricultural College has just recently passed a ruling to this effect. This would not be essential for the son of a florist or a gardener, but for those who have never worked under glass.

Short Courses.

As not everyone has the preparation necessary for admission to the regular 4-year course, and as not everyone can afford to spend four years in the study of fundamentals, men may come to our college for one or two years and take special work in those subjects in which they are particularly interested. They must, of course, be willing to conform to the rules and regulations of the college, and men of any age may enter these courses. In addition to this, the college offers a ten weeks' course, to meet the needs of those, both old and young, who desire to study principles and modern methods and who for various reasons are unable to attend the 4-year course. The work is planned to bring before the student the results of the latest investigations in agricultural science, and to point out their practical application. In floriculture the course covers, as thoroughly as time will permit, those aspects of the work of special interest to the grower. Some of the subjects considered are greenhouse construction, greenhouse management and methods used by the progressive florist. Special trips to some of the up-to-date floricultural establishments in the state form a valuable part of the course. In addition to the regular lecture work, lectures are usually given by experts in the growing and marketing of special crops.

To kill grubs or larvae that eat roots, you should bore holes in the soil twelve to fifteen inches apart each way and four to five inches deep. Pour a scant teaspoonful of carbon bisulphide in each hole and immediately cover it. The resultant gas will suffocate the soil pests. For root aphids on asters and other plants a coal oil emulsion, one part of coal oil to thirty parts of water, can be used, pouring a pint of the mixture about the stem of each plant. This method will not kill the aphides, but will drive them away. Neither the carbon bisulphide nor coal oil emulsion will harm the plants. Some growers have found tobacco water useful in fighting the root aphids. C. W.

FLORICULTURAL EDUCATION

What the Agricultural Colleges are Doing and Hope to do in the Interests of Commercial Floriculture in Education and Research.

It is my firm belief that floriculture in all its phases is becoming more and more scientific; that is to say, more and more dependent on the result of scientific research and discovery. Surely it must give a man greater confidence and power if he has had a term or two at a school or college where the subjects in which he will be engaged in the earning of his livelihood are highly specialized. Above all, of course, he must have practical experience; that is taken for granted; but if he understands plant life, chemistry, the habit and structure of insect pests, the life history of fungi, and other such things, he is surely a better man at his business. Practice with science, in other words, is the ideal for which we should strive, and we are following this plan as far as existing circumstances will permit.

Work at Amherst.

For the benefit of those who are not thoroughly familiar with our system and methods, I will analyze briefly the work of the Massachusetts Agricultural College along floricultural lines. The college offers an education with out tuition fee to any student who is a resident of Massachusetts and who meets the requirements for admission. Women are admitted on the same basis as are men. Students who are not residents of Massachusetts are required to pay a nominal tuition fee. The 4 year course leads to the degree of bachelor of science. Twenty-seven teaching departments offer instruction in agriculture, horticulture, sciences, languages and mathematics. A system of major courses permits a student in his third year to elect major work in one of fifteen departments, specializing in that and allied subjects for a period of two years. A student specializing in floriculture is always required to take entomology, chemistry, a certain number of courses in botany, and other closely allied subjects, such as landscape gardening.

In nearly all our courses the students are required to arrange their hours according to the needs of the work, which means that we can call on them when the more important work is going on in the greenhouses and gardens, and every effort is made to give these men a working knowledge of the best methods now in use.

The object of the work is not to turn out specialists or men who have mastered all the details of practical work. If a man wishes to specialize along any particular line, he must first obtain this practice in some up-to-date establishment. In this connection I wish to say that we always urge our men to go into practical work during the summer months and vacation periods. I think the time is near at hand when every student taking a course of this nature will be required to have at least one year's experience before he receives his diploma. The Rhode Island Agricultural College has just recently passed a ruling to this effect. This would not be essential for the son of a florist or a gardener, but for those who have never worked under glass.

Short Courses.

As not everyone has the preparation necessary for admission to the regular 4 year course, and as not everyone can afford to spend four years in the study of fundamentals, men may come to our college for one or two years and take special work in those subjects in which they are particularly interested. They must, of course, be willing to conform to the rules and regulations of the college, and men of any age may enter these courses. In addition to this, the college offers a ten weeks' course, to meet the needs of those, both old and young, who desire to study principles and modern methods and who for various reasons are unable to attend the 4 year course. The work is planned to bring before the student the results of the latest investigations in agricultural science, and to point out their practical application. In floriculture the course covers, as thoroughly as time will permit, those aspects of the work of special interest to the grower. Some of the subjects considered are greenhouse construction, greenhouse management and methods used by the progressive florist. Special trips to some of the up-to-date floricultural establishments of the state form a valuable part of the course. In addition to the regular lecture work, lectures are usually given by experts in the growing and marketing of special crops.

Arno H. Nehrling.

Work along experimental lines is carried on by an organization closely allied to the college, still a separate organization, known as the experiment station, and there are special federal appropriations for this work. It is the object and duty of these experiment stations to carry on original researches or verify experiments on the physiology of plants and animals, the diseases to which they are subject, with the remedies; the chemical composition of useful plants at their different stages of growth; the testing of new varieties; the capacity of new plants or trees for acclimation; the chemical composition of manures, natural or artificial, with experiments designed to test their comparative effects on crops of different kinds; the analysis of soil and water, etc. Owing to the fact that other lines of work are considered more important and because we lack men, money and facilities, work along floricultural lines had not been carried on by our station. In fact, it was not until recently that the florists' business in this country was thought to be of sufficient importance to receive the special attention of investigators in these public institutions. There are hundreds and thousands of bulletins and circulars on other subjects, but not over fifty especially designed to be of assistance to the florist or gardener. This is largely due to the fact that the florists themselves have not until recently made any demands upon the experiment station. Cornell, Illinois, New Jersey and Delaware are at the present time carrying on research work on an extensive scale. Our correspondence shows that there are many problems confronting us here in Massachusetts which could be solved by our experiment station. Some of the more important problems offering a field for experimentation are varietal studies, the use of chemical fertilizers in the culture of greenhouse plants, a study of the relation of plant food and temperature to the keeping qualities of cut flowers, handling of cut flowers for market, etc.

THE COURSE AT AMES.

Scope of the Studies.

The work in the department of horticulture of the Iowa State College at Ames has been materially strengthened by the development of a major course of study in floriculture. Since Prof. A. S. Thurston has taken charge of the work a number of new courses have been added, and the students now have an opportunity to acquire a good knowledge of professional floriculture, both in theory and in practice. During the first two years of their college work the floricultural students are required to take work in the fundamental sciences, among which might be mentioned chemistry, botany, physics, entomology, soils and fertilizers. Students then devote the remaining two years to specialized work in floriculture and to such other work as will supplement the floricultural courses.

The following courses in floriculture are offered:

1. Greenhouse management—The management of greenhouses and the cultural requirements of crops under glass, including propagation, potting, watering, ventilation, insect and disease control and heating.
2. Greenhouse management—A combination of the preceding course, designed to give the student practical knowledge of the organization of greenhouse work and the various cultural operations and methods employed throughout the entire year.

3. Greenhouse construction—The various types of houses, their construction. Principles and methods of heating. Preparation of plans and specifications for commercial and private ranges. Estimating of costs.

4. Commercial floriculture—Special consideration of the cultural requirements and methods of growing florists' bench crops and potted plants. Specific problems in the establishment of detailed plans for the year in a florist's business, with estimates of the initial cost and running expenses, as well as an approximation of returns.

5. Commercial floriculture—A continuation of the preceding course. Special attention will be given to the marketing of cut flowers, also to the organization and management of the retail store.

6. Floral arrangement and judging—Principles and methods of cut flower arrangement. Interior decoration. The exhibiting and judging of cut flowers and plants.

7. Garden flowers—The selection, care and uses of garden flowers, including annuals, herbaceous perennials, bulbs, bedding plants and roses. The nursery as an adjunct for the florist.

8. Special problems—Special investigation of cultural methods.

9. Thesis—A special subject requiring independent investigation and study; the results to be presented in the form of a written report.

10. Floriculture practice—Garden and greenhouse work.

11. Floriculture practice—Practical work in the college greenhouses in the management of houses and the growing of florists' crops.

12. Floriculture practice—A continuation of the preceding course, so that the student may have a complete knowledge through practical experience of the work throughout the year.

The students are required to take, in addition to the courses outlined, considerable work in landscape gardening, including three courses in landscape design, two courses in plant materials, one course in landscape architecture and one course in construction and maintenance.

Other Requirements.

Plant breeding, horticultural machinery, diseases of horticultural plants, horticultural entomology, greenhouse pests, market gardening and vegetable forcing are other supplementary courses required during the last two years.

In addition to the laboratory work, three courses in floriculture practice, which are of an apprentice nature, give the student an opportunity to get good working knowledge. In addition to these practical courses the students are required to have six months' practical experience with some commercial florist before being allowed to graduate. Course 7 in floriculture practice is given in the sophomore year. It prevents misfits, as it offers an opportunity for students to find out by practical experience what floriculture is and whether or not they are adapted for this kind of work.

PEONIES AT ITHACA.

The season is unprecedentedly late at Ithaca, N. Y., and the plants in the trial grounds maintained jointly by the New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell University and the American Peony Society, will not be in bloom this year until the first week in July. It is the first time since the trials were started that the peonies have failed to be in bloom by the middle of June.

STEMS OF PEONIES ROT.

What causes peonies to rot off at the surface of the ground and how should one prevent it? When a few inches in height the branches fall over and rot just at the surface of the ground. I have dug around the plants, but this condition seems to be spreading to other clumps.

A. E. W.—Minn.

Too deep planting, excessively sour soil and the use of manure which is too fresh may, in part, be responsible for the rotting of your peony stems. This trouble is believed to be due to a fungus which can be blown about and propagated, and for that reason it is necessary to cut off and burn all affected stems. Liming of the soil to sweeten it will help; so will transplanting once in three or four years and the use of commercial fertilizer or well decayed barnyard manure. I would suggest that you lift and replant your stock in new soil in late August or early September. C. W.

A PRETTY PEONY STORY.

Not all peony growers will agree as to the quality and value of the peony named Jubilee, but everyone will concede that its story, as printed in a Philadelphia paper during the recent peony convention, is nicely told:

"The story of this new peony is told by Lee R. Bonnewitz, its exhibitor, of Van Wert, O. Mr. Bonnewitz is a dry-goods merchant, who grows peonies for the love of it.

"About fifty years ago, Mrs. Sarah A. Pleas, then living in Spiceland, Ind., had a back yard garden where she cultivated, among other flowers, some peonies. One spring she noticed some strange plants pushing their way above the soil. A woman's curiosity, possibly, caused her to put these plants in another part of the garden and nurse them to maturity.

"The strange plants were peonies, which had sprung from seed dropped by the peonies of the season before. They were unusual peonies, however. Mrs. Pleas had never seen anything like them. After they flowered, she chose several of the better varieties and destroyed the others.

"This accidental discovery was the Indiana woman's introduction to the fact that peonies grow from seeds. She kept on experimenting in her back yard garden.

"One day a visitor from a neighboring town noticed in Mrs. Pleas' garden a peony of unusual size and whiteness. He bought one of the plants from her for $2. The peony was the Jubilee.

"This same man, by the way, is now selling plants of this variety at $25 each. His orders for next fall total 500 and the variety is virtually new on the market.

"Mrs. Pleas, now more than 80 years old, is living in California. She has stopped raising peonies. But horticulturists of the world are praising her and paying tribute to the prize flower of her Indiana garden, the Jubilee."

EVERYBODY BUSY AND HAPPY.

"Everybody busy every day in the year" is the way Max Sehling replies to an inquiry as to the state of the florists' business in the neighborhood of Central park, New York city. To prove that he is not exaggerating in the least he submits the photograph from which the accompanying illustration was made, which should satisfy doubters. It shows the interior of the workroom at the Sehling store at 22 West Fifty-ninth street, which adjoins the Plaza hotel. Father Knickerbocker has been keeping open house recently and has welcomed the stranger within his gates by providing many kinds of amusement for his guests, providing they had the price. Visitors to the Plaza undoubtedly created several kinds of sensations when they appeared wearing the unique creations for which Mr. Sehling is famous, and which are the reasons for the activity at the Sehling store.

ROT OF IRIS ROOTS.

We are sending with this mail an iris clump which is diseased and seems to be dying. You will note that some of the roots are dead and that the center of the stalk is woody and dead. Only a few clumps are affected; the rest seem to be all right. Can you tell us the trouble and name a remedy for it?

D. & K.—Mich.

This condition undoubtedly is due to too deep planting. In the case of Iris germanica, if roots are not covered lightly this rot is sure to affect them sooner or later. It generally makes its appearance about flowering time and is especially bad later in the season, when we have hot, muggy and showery weather with little sunshine. The remedy is to avoid too deep planting.

PROPAGATION OF SWAINSONA.

When should swainsona seeds be sown in order to have an indoor crop in the fall? Is it ever grown as an outdoor crop? Any information as to germination and care will be appreciated.

E. H. A.—Mich.

Swainsona galegifolia alba is a useful fall and winter-flowering plant. It is also good for summer bedding. For fall and winter flowering cuttings, not seeds, should be used. These would have been better if put in a few weeks ago, but can still be rooted. As the plant is of easy propagation, plants may be plunged outdoors through the summer and housed about the end of September. A few degrees of frost will not harm them. The plant is almost a continuous bloomer and is hardy in the latitude of San Francisco. Cut back any old overgrown plants and they will give you a fine crop of new shoots for propagation.

CARNATIONS

FOR OUTDOOR SUMMER BLOOMS.

We have a customer who wants some large beds planted to light pink carnations for summer blooming. What variety would you suggest and what kind of plants would give the best satisfaction—coldframe plants, early cuttings or what? L. J. B.—N. Y.

In order to get satisfactory results from carnations as summer-flowering subjects, preparations should have been made much earlier than this. Practically all the young carnation plants raised by the carnation specialists are intended for winter flowering and could hardly be expected to begin blooming profusely four months earlier than their proper time. There is no good reason, however, why carnations should not prove quite satisfactory to the amateur gardener during the summer, if the proper varieties are selected and the plants grown to proper size before planting time.

Two methods could be followed with good success. Take cuttings quite early in the season, say about October 15. As soon as they are rooted, pot them into 2-inch pots. Shift into 3-inch and finally into 4-inch, keeping them topped closely right along, to get as bushy plants as possible. By May 1 you should have plants with enough shoots to need no more topping, and if planted out early in May they should be in bloom early in July and continue in bloom until frost cuts them down. The other method is to lift the smaller plants that were not benched in the fall, pot them into 4-inch pots and carry them over in coldframes. The plants should be kept topped closely, right up to the time when they are potted, which would in our latitude be about the last part of September.

Select varieties which naturally make bushy plants; for instance, the Enchantress family, Beacon, Matchless, Mrs. Ward, Miss Theo, etc. These plants could be produced at practically the same cost as good 4-inch geraniums and would probably bring a better price. A. F. J. B.

HOPE FOR LOWER COAL PRICES.

Government Takes a Hand.

As a result of federal forces set in motion June 26, 400 coal operators, representing the great fields of both bituminous and anthracite, pledged themselves to sell their product at a fair and reasonable price to be fixed with the approval of the coal committee of the Council of National Defense.

The action of the coal barons followed an all-day conference with the defense council's coal committee. They were warned by Secretary of the Interior Lane, Secretary of the Navy Daniels and J. Franklin Fort, of the Federal Trade Commission, that unless they established a fair selling price their output would be taken over by the government.

The first step taken by the coal men to cooperate with the government was the appointment of special committees of seven producers from each coal mining district, whose duty it shall be to discuss increased production and reduction of prices with the defense council's coal committee.

Coal Men "Only Human."

While the conference with the defense council's committee was in progress, the Senate interstate commerce committee was holding a hearing with coal operators and miners as witnesses.

Charles M. Moderwell, of Chicago, the first witness, told the committee when his attention was called to the fact that the prices of coal ranged up to 400 per cent in excess of prices for the same coal last year, that coal operators, "being only human," had taken advantage of war demands to raise prices.

The hope for government action which would result in lower coal prices would be stronger if the defense council's committee had members representing consumers instead of being made up wholly of men financially interested in or formerly connected with the coal trade.

"Too Late to Classify."

In the reorganization of the Pennock-Meehan Co., brought about by the approaching retirement of Charles E. Meehan, the name of the corporation is changed to S. S. Pennock Co., with the following officers: President, Samuel S. Pennock; first vice-president, Percy B. Rigby; second vice-president, Edwin J. Fancourt; treasurer, Clarence U. Liggit; secretary, R. E. Faust; Philadelphia manager, Alvah R. Jones; Baltimore manager, J. J. Perry; Washington manager, Otto Bauer. Vice-president Rigby is in charge of the New York store.

Commodore John Westcott entertained fourteen members of the Waretown Rod and Gun Club on Barnegat bay June 24. Wm. F. Gude and his son, of Washington, were among those present.

A fire in the paint shop in the annex of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., June 24, did slight damage, covered by insurance.

Burlington, Wis.—The Burlington Floral Co. has filed articles of incorporation. The capital stock is placed at $25,000 and the incorporators are Frank A. Mueller, Henry J. Heidermann and Mrs. Dora Plate.

YORK STATE NEWS NOTES

Herkimer, N. Y.—W. D. Snell escaped the recent flood through the Mohawk valley and is helping some of his less fortunate confreres.

Richfield Springs, N. Y.—Mrs. L. P. Seaton predicts a banner season at this attractive summer resort. She has many orders from the big hotels here.

Fishkill, N. Y.—Lon Wood, of Wood Bros., observed that with few exceptions the demand for bedding stock was fully up to that of former seasons. The call for young roses for planting was heavy.

Oswego, N. Y.—Walter Workman says it was no trouble to dispose of good stock this season. He had his usual large supply and kept up prices. Geraniums, splendidly grown, were his long suit.

Herkimer, N. Y.—Good luck comes in bunches, according to Neal A. Gleason, who is pleased to report that his prosperous start in the florists' business here has been followed by a healthy growth of patronage.

Oneonta, N. Y.—B. Ackley saw visions of stem-rot and rust in a field of carnations that was under water several days during a recent flood, but trusted that the exceptional vigor of the plants would enable them to resist the attack. Spring planting is fully equal to that of other seasons.

Oneonta, N. Y.—John Strong says that while some lines might be more vigorous, the average shows up well and the outlook is promising.

Watertown, N. Y.—Fred A. Bennett & Son devote a large house to storing hydrangeas and figure to grow an early crop of chrysanthemums in between. It works well. Begonia Chatelaine is considered one of the best for general purposes. About 1,500 were sold at retail this season.

Syracuse, N. Y.—W. J. Palmer and family, of Buffalo, motored through Syracuse on their way to visit the army training camp at Sacket Harbor. "Just ran away for a breathing spell," he observed, "for there is always something doing at home, with no let-up. Yes, the new store is a big drawing card and will continue to be, for we shall always maintain it along the well known 'Palmer' lines."

Cooperstown, N. Y.—C. S. Derrick is erecting a new Lord & Burnham house as the nucleus of a considerable range upon three acres of land he recently purchased. Business has been so good that the original establishment is far too small to accommodate it. Roses will be grown on the new place, which will be in charge of the junior Derrick, who has given up an excellent position in a local bank to combine his energies with those of his father.

OBITUARY

Ernest Matraia.

Ernest Matraia, for many years identified with the florists' and nursery business of the Pacific coast and well known in trade circles at San Francisco, Seattle and Portland, died June 15 at San Antonio, Tex., where he had resided since March of this year.

Charles F. Hanna.

Charles F. Hanna, of Cleveland, O., committed suicide June 15 by shooting himself at his home, 9421 Union avenue. He died immediately. The deceased, who was 51 years of age, had been in poor health and it is believed that despondency prompted him to end his life. His wife survives.

James Fortunes.

James Fortunes, of the firm of James Fortunes & Bro., 70 Liberty street, Brooklyn, N. Y., died June 10, following an operation for cancer. He is survived by his widow and five children. Mr. Fortunes was associated with his brother in the green goods business for thirty years and was well known and highly respected in the trade.

J. A. S.

Miss Catherine A. O'Connor.

Miss Catherine A. O'Connor, sister of Miss Ellen T. O'Connor, with whom she was associated in the retail flower business, 289 Thayer street, Providence, R. I., died June 19. She was the daughter of the late Daniel and Ann O'Connor, and was well known among the florists in Providence and vicinity, having been associated with the trade there for several years.

LANCASTER, PA.

A Day Off at Hershey Park.

The Lancaster county florists held their annual picnic at Hershey park June 21. More than 125 florists and their families and friends participated in the frolic. A special car left Lancaster at 7:15 a. m., but some of the picnickers went by automobile. Among the visitors were Mr. and Mrs. John F. Rupp, of Shiremanstown; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Marshall, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Percy Bernard and son and daughter, Mr. Bailey and party, all from Chester county; D. T. Connor, T. J. Nolan and F. Cowperthwaite, of Philadelphia.

In the morning H. G. Haverstick, superintendent of the Hershey estate, showed the party over the grounds, and the tour of inspection proved to be most enjoyable. Dinner was then served. In the afternoon a band concert was given, the music giving way to an hour of sports, in which the children competed for prizes before the baseball grand stand.

The picnickers arrived at Lancaster at 9:15 p. m., and each declared the outing one of the most delightful ever held by the florists. The committee in charge consisted of L. S. Landis, Harry K. Rohrer and J. De Barry Heinitsh.

Ritchy, aged 82 years, father of Fred Ritchy, the well known geranium specialist of this city. H. K. R.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

The Market.

Although the weather has been intermittently cold and wet, business has been brisk, thanks to numerous weddings, not a few prominent funerals and a batch of graduations. Stock is plentiful. The carnations are of uncommonly good quality for this time of the year. Killarney roses show the effects of the cool, wet weather; there is considerable mildew. Sweet peas are fine and may be had in quantities.

Easter lilies are good, but with peonies in the market the demand for them is small. Snapdragon is about over with; outdoor-grown calendula and pyrethrum are taking its place, especially for table decorations.

Florists interested in bedding work had a late start, but they have been working hard when it has not rained and now are well caught up.

Various Notes.

Henry Smith last week made a large but simple blanket composed of ivy leaves, with a spray of sweet peas in one corner.

Arthur Crabb has been extremely busy with graduation and wedding work.

Alfred Hannah reports business good all around.

VEGETABLES AND FRUITS DEPARTMENT

WHEN CELERY RUNS TO SEED.

Please tell me what makes celery run to seed the first season. We have had a great deal of trouble of this kind. Is it because the celery is too early, or is it the fault of the seed?

A. E. W.—Minn.

This is liable to happen with such early celery as Paris Golden and White Plume. A too early sowing is usually responsible. A spell of cool, damp weather followed by extreme heat will cause many plants to bolt to seed. When plants are dry at the root and somewhat starved, a spell of hot, moist weather will cause the plants to run to seed, and vice versa. If the plants receive a normal supply of water at the roots right along there will be a minimum of bolted specimens. There is usually little trouble with main crop and late celery running to seed. C. W.

Williamsport, Pa.—The peony show of the local garden club recently was held in the store of the Williamsport Floral Co. Some of the blooms did not make the day, but those exhibited were in splendid form. The attendance pleased the management of the store; it pays to have the people cross the threshold in large numbers.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

"The law of compensation never fails," observed Robert Bard, of Syracuse, N. Y. "I have just rounded out half a century on this busy sphere, beginning at the bottom, so to speak, for my first job was to prepare fertilizer at the well known house of Carter's Tested Seeds, London. That experience stood me in good stead in later years, and was the secret of my success as a grower. Now I am at the last part of the business, as I term it; namely, the flower store, and looking back at the route taken I am convinced that it is the most successful one. We have had a store a little more than one year, but we have made a better showing than during any corresponding time in a greenhouse, minus the care and worry which none but a grower knows. The experience gained is put to a practical use for the benefit of our patrons, who, now especially, are oftentimes as well posted on ordinary floral matters as ourselves. The secret of success is in gaining their confidence. I can name many of my confreres who have had a similar career, and in every case reached the pinnacle of affluence. Not all, though some, of our joys are perfect," concluded Mr. Bard, imparting the secret that a charming and wealthy widow has fallen to his winning ways, and that an early union is the result. It reminded me of the well known saying, "Unto everyone that hath shall be given," etc.

W. E. Day, of Syracuse, was putting the finishing touches to a superb wreath of Ward roses and valley, and remarked: "It has been a continuous performance, day and night, for some time. We can stand it, with the big expense we are under, but we are looking forward to the time when our reputation will have been made and we can do the same volume or more at a less overhead expense." The establishing of a big army camp at the state fair grounds will bring much business into town, of which the trade will get a full share, is the opinion of Mr. Day.

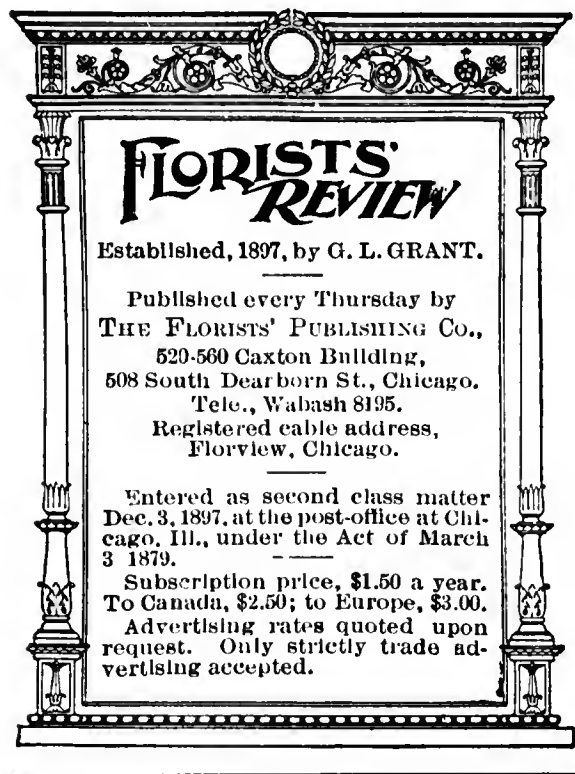

Gustav Bartholme, of Syracuse, is experiencing one of the best seasons in his long experience. Bedding plants sold well, especially geraniums, which by careful manipulation were mostly in bloom around Memorial day. It is the method here to keep the fires going during such a season as this has been, as geraniums, especially, benefit by a circulation of warm air at night. The greater sales more than offset the cost of firing; plants not in bloom are hard to sell. Next season's supply of coal has been secured and stored.

John A. Murnane, of Troy, reports an almost total clean-up in blooming plants for Memorial day. He is one of the first established in the business.

The rose garden of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., at Riverton, N. J., is well worth a visit. The planting arrangements are perfect and a big treat to the lover of the queen of flowers, among which Los Angeles reigns supreme.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.
Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.
Officers for 1917: President, Robert O. Kerr, Houston, Tex.; vice-president, A. L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y.; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb.

Thirty-third annual convention, New York,
N. Y., August 21 to 24, 1917.

THE man who offers his stock—good stock—at old-time prices, sells out in a jiffy, but he barely breaks even and is out of business until he can grow another crop.

FLORISTS who have trouble with insects in their soil will be interested in a bulletin, No. 799, just issued by the U. S.
Department of Agriculture. It is entitled "Carbon Disulphid as an Insecticide."

PLANS are going forward for the International Flower Show to be held at the Grand Central Palace, New York, March 14 to 21, 1918. A preliminary schedule has just been issued, copies of which can be obtained by addressing John Young, secretary, 53 West Twenty-eighth street.

HENRY A. BESTER & SONS, Hagerstown, Md., have sent The Review photographs of their range made after the hail storm of June 6. Reproduction of the pictures would fail to show the extent of the damage, for the hail knocked out literally every pane of glass in 75,000 square feet of houses; cleaned it out so thoroughly that the photographs look almost as though nothing had happened.
Nothing like it ever has been heard of.

THOSE enterprising Japanese are taking advantage of the opportunity to acquire Germany's export trade, a large number of articles handled by florists' supply houses now coming from Japan. Included in the list are greens prepared and dyed as formerly done in Germany.
The work could as well be done in America, except that wages are higher here, and the ability to put painstaking attention on small things is not so highly developed.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

THE use of sphagnum moss as an aseptic dressing for wounds is said to be an ancient practice, and not, as is sometimes claimed, a modern discovery. Linnaeus, in Flora Lapponica, records that in Lapland it was used for treatment of ulcers. Tradition tells that at the battle of Flodden the Highland soldiers stanchd their wounds by means of bog moss and soft grass.

PLEASE NOTE.

Each week a number of letters containing advertising instructions reach The Review while the paper is on the press—just a few hours earlier and they would have had attention a week sooner than is possible.

It is the aim to give prompt service, but to secure it advertisers should note:
"It is impossible to guarantee the insertion, discontinuance or alteration of any advertisement unless instructions are received by 4 p. m. Tuesday."

LET'S STOP TALKING ABOUT IT.

A man brought up among florists and who meets many of the trade now, although not actively engaged in the business, says we all are like the boy passing through the cemetery at night—his hair stood up, not at what he saw, but because of what he had heard he might see. Says our friend:

I find as I go among florists that most of this luxury and economy talk is originating with themselves; for instance, if they have a dull day, which is only natural at this season, they are ready to blame it on the war. My observation among both growers and store people is that it is not so much a question of high prices;
the great fear seems to be that if times get bad the public will stop using flowers. They are talking about it so much they are frightening themselves.

Let us take the hint, stop talking and go to work—there is much can be done that will increase the sale of flowers.

CONFIDENCE IN THE FUTURE.

Last week The Review printed letters from Canadian florists in which the writers presented interesting data concerning the war's effect on the business interests of Dominion florists.

The correspondents pointed out that the extreme uneasiness which accompanied the declaration of war in 1914 had been succeeded by good business, but that the uses to which flowers are put have undergone some change. Furthermore, in 1916 the value of Canada's manufactured products advanced forty-three per cent, despite the absence of several hundred thousand workers from a country of which the population is no larger than that of New York state. In view of these facts, and that the United States is better prepared for war than was Canada, thanks to several years of big business and a large trade balance in its favor, it is reasonable to assume that florists in the United States need have little fear of the war's effect on their business.

The business conditions in England, close as it is to the theater of war, also bear out the fact that the present war has its benefits, that it does not necessarily annihilate business as it does men.
As in Canada, at first English business men were nervous and apprehensive, but soon the happy slogan of "Business as Usual" set the merchants at ease. Today that "Business as Usual" is being superseded by "Business Unusual." Following is a portion of an address by an English business agent before a Philadelphia business organization:

"In weeks rather than months Americans will get a great reaction such as Englishmen had, and business will enjoy greater prosperity than has ever been known in history. With us the businesses that were most apprehensive have, singularly enough, been the first to profit the most from war-time conditions, particularly jewelers, dealers in musical instruments and gramophones, and luxury trades generally.

"After all, this great reaction is only the natural course of events, and it must be patent to the perceptive American mind that since war brings billions of extra money into circulation, and it is human nature to spend, business must be in for a record time. I cannot imagine any farseeing American house being apprehensive of conditions, restricting their buying, stopping advertising, cutting down staff and adopting other such panic-stricken measures after what has happened in England. Here, as there, it is the firm that looks ahead which will reap the big reward."

LABOR TROUBLES.

Labor that can be used in greenhouse and gardening work never has been plentiful and this spring it is more difficult to procure than ever before. Florists, however, are not the only ones who have troubles of this kind, the largest employers of labor finding the problem one of the greatest of a perplexing moment. Labor is unstable and great loss of efficiency results from the never ending series of changes in a force of workers. Recently a Chicago newspaper stated that to maintain an average force of 9,000 workers Armour & Co.
find it necessary to hire 25,000 persons per year, the average term of employment being less than six months. Also a vice-president of the Pennsylvania railroad told the Interstate Commerce Commission the other day that "his company felt it was not getting fifty per cent efficiency out of its men because they were constantly changing.
Out of 150,000 men employed by the Pennsylvania railroad on its lines east of Pittsburgh 121,000 changed positions in the last year. Although his company had imported Mexicans and negroes, he said these men left as soon as they were offered better paying jobs."

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Cool weather last week stimulated business considerably and generally speaking the week was a satisfactory one for the wholesale cut flower market.
This week opened with much higher temperature, increased supply and decreased demand. The schools have closed, the weddings are over and the market has settled down to the regular run of summer business.

American Beauties are in fair demand, with the supply more than equal to the call. Although some of the stock is fine, the quality for a good part is only fair, much faded stock arriving. Russell, the acknowledged best hot weather rose, remains the leader of the other varieties. Milady is probably in second best demand, with Killarney Brilliant also proving a good

A Splendid Crop of Long Beauties

WE have a big crop of Beauties in all lengths—plenty of long stems. You will agree that these Beauties are good; indeed, we believe you will concede that they are the best the Chicago market ever has afforded at this time of year. NOTE THE LOW PRICE.

seller. Ophelia is in heaviest supply of the roses and moves fairly well, though not so easily as the darker colored varieties.

The carnation season is rapidly approaching its end. Stock is still in over-supply, however, and the quality has retrograded because of the heat. They sell slowly. A retrospect of the season on this item proves quite satisfactory. Although the season was late in starting, it was also late in ending, and returns for the season are not so bad as they might have been.

Peonies are in heavy supply this week, because it is the height of the local season. Larger quantities than were expected are going into cold storage, because at present the demand is lethargic and low prices prevail. It is expected July will afford a better market for them. Easter lilies are in good supply, but sell poorly. Valley remains the same; enough, but none too much. Orchids are still a scarce item. Some good quality sweet peas are arriving and are meeting with an active demand. Poor quality stock, on the other hand, of which there is considerable, is proving difficult to dispose of. Gladioli are in fair demand. Daisies are selling fairly well, although affected by the great quantity of field daisies which may be seen everywhere. The few forget-me-nots which arrive are finding a welcome reception. Pansies are about over with, the quality now being poor. Candytuft arrives in good supply and generally speaking sells well. Snapdragons sell slowly.

Considerable quantities of new southern ferns are arriving on the market, but eastern stock is still scarce and in active demand.

All the wholesale houses in this market are preparing to close at 5 p. m. beginning July 2. Buyers out of town should take note and get their orders in early.

F. J. Munzing and wife, 6101 Broadway, leave June 30 for a two weeks' trip through Dakota, Minnesota and Iowa.

Baseball enthusiasm runs high at the establishment of the A. L. Randall Co. The supply shipping department, having defeated the cut flower department June 24, is scheduled to meet the office force at Grant park, July 1, and keen competition is expected.

Eric Johnson, Charles Handel, J. Douly, Helge Holm and John Bentley, all of the A. L. Randall Co., spent June 24 at Fox Lake, Ill., fishing.

There was a celebration at the E. F. Winterson home June 21, the day being his forty-eighth birthday anniversary.

J. Walsh, of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, leaves for Minonk, Ill., June 30, where he will spend his two weeks' vacation.

The Market.

The commencement exercises at Brown University last week practically concluded the social program for the season, although a number of weddings are still on the schedule. Decorations, cut flowers, baskets and bouquets for weddings have kept the retailers busy, the business being well distributed. The warmer days have developed flowers of all kinds with great rapidity, and, with the masses of outdoor blooms coming in, the demand for greenhouse stock has shown a material decrease, the supply being considerably in excess of requirements. Prices show a shading off.

DETROIT, MICH.*The Market.

With the advancing season, carnations and sweet peas are becoming small and poor in quality. Peonies are arriving in quantities and are inclined to drag in the market. Bachelor's buttons, swainsona and other outdoor stock are in abundance. Roses of all kinds are in demand and sell readily. During several weeks the market was without indoor valley, but it is now arriving and finds a ready sale.

Various Notes.

A number of Detroit florists under the leadership of William Dilger went on a fishing trip to Algonac, Mich., June 22. The day's catch was good. Some of the fishermen were out of luck, however, and it is said they bought some fish to prove that they really had been fishing. The outing was made more pleasant by an exceptionally good dinner.

NEW YORK.*The Market.

The dullness of midsummer prevailed in the market last week and, with the temperature at 90 degrees, even the street peddlers were inactive. Quantities of stock remained unsold.

Carnations were in large supply and good stock did not sell above 50 cents per hundred. The bottom price was 25 cents per hundred. The supply seems unlimited and $1 per hundred was the top price for excellent stock. Peonies are now coming out of cold storage and shipments from local growers are heavy. For choice, large flowers prices satisfactory to the growers are realized. Another week is expected to see the end of the peony season.

Shipments of roses were heavy. One wholesale house received sixty-four boxes June 22. In large lots short-stemmed roses sold as low as 50 cents per hundred. American Beauties are improving in quality and bring good prices. Hadley and Brunner still are held at good prices, but others left over go into a general assortment which sell at from $1 to $2 per hundred.

Orchids remain at from $2 to $5 per dozen, gigas selects bringing the latter figure. The supply is large and the demand small. Valley sells at $4 per hundred for the best and the June weddings have held it there throughout the month. There is not an oversupply. Longiflorum lilies were selling as low as $2 per hundred June 23 and $3 per hundred was the top price. Callas are cheap, as there is no call for them. The usual shipments of sweet peas, daisies, irises, gladioli and stocks continue. Bunches and branches of outdoor roses, ramblers especially, are arriving.

The demand from Newport, R. I., has not come up to expectations, although

July 1 sees the beginning of Sunday closing of the wholesale houses and it is expected that there will be a rush in the market the Saturday night before.

Various Notes.

The S. A. F. convention now is about the principal topic of discussion among the wholesalers and retailers in the trade.

Secretary John Young is sending out the preliminary schedule for the International Flower Show to be held at the Grand Central Palace, March 14 to 21, 1918.

Now that the wholesale cut flower houses will remain closed on Sundays, the retailers, President M. A. Bowe of their society says, contemplate taking similar action.

PHILADELPHIA.*The Market.

There is a marked change in the market over that of a week ago, a change that had been coming gradually, yet is now most decided. It may best be described by saying that peonies and carnations have ceased to be the important flowers they were. The tremendous crops of both flowers have passed, leaving only a few good peonies from cold storage and a moderate supply of really salable carnations. Most of the carnations that remain are so poor that they are not fit for shipping out of town or for use in first-class local orders. The heat that came with the longest days of the year knocked them out. Some Mrs. C. W. Ward and Matchless survive under skillful culture and shaded glass. These bring fair prices, but the bulk of the carnations do not.

Most of the business done today is with roses and gladioli, in greater and less proportion, while outdoor sweet peas, larkspurs, candytuft and feverfew lead in their section. Easter lilies are returning to favor as a summer mainstay where white flowers of a decorative nature are required. Valley is on the back track, as the racing men say. It is difficult to obtain and not too satisfactory when obtained. Orchids are rather dull. Eastern Beauties head the rose list. The fact that they are eastern Beauties somewhat mars their usefulness, as the express connection will not work well for Monday delivery and in warm weather the wise wholesaler will not risk anything but fresh stock. sell, Hadley, Prima Donna, September Morn, Double White Killarney, Kaiserin, Maryland and Ophelia lead in the local stock. They are really good for the end of June and help wonderfully in filling orders. The gladioli are fair. America, Mrs. Francis King and Augusta are the principal varieties. Early asters are promised in a week or ten days.

Business is good for the season, but the volume is decreasing.

Early Closing.

The general feeling among the wholesale cut flower commission houses favors shorter hours during July and August. The wholesalers wish it distinctly understood that they will do and are doing everything in their power to please their customers. They believe that this end is best served by giving their employees more freedom during the dull months of midsummer. They find that almost all of the late orders can be sent and filled earlier in the day, without loss to anyone. They believe the effect of early closing will simply be to keep everyone a little busier during rather dull days and let everyone get through a little earlier. One of the most conscientious and hardest working employees in the

A Plant Clearing House.

Now that the present season is closing, will have actually closed as these lines are read, there has been one more than usually important change in the business life of the city, a change that has come during the last year. Perhaps it would be more correct to state that it has come during the last three years, but it is during the year just closing that this change has made itself felt most strongly. I refer to the plant department of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., as it is run by Charles U. Liggit.

I do not know how many sellers or how many buyers have profited by this plant clearing house under Mr. Liggit's management, but I do know that the number must be extra large. Every day for months plants have been arriving at and leaving the Pennock-Meehan Co. store in small and in large quantities, so quietly that they are hardly noticed. Visitors sometimes ask Mr. Liggit whether this or that block of plants is the same one that was seen there the week before, and whether the plants are for sale. Mr. Liggit always replies that they are a fresh lot of plants that have just come in and that they are going out immediately to fill an order.

The success of this plant clearing house is due to two things. It meets a real need in the flower community and it is well run. Often a buyer would buy, a seller would sell, were the opportunity offered. The Pennock-Meehan Co. supplies this opportunity.

The Market.

There was little change in the market or business last week, although the latter was livened-somewhat by a heavy call for funeral work. Prices on stock remain about the same.

Carnations were selling for $1.50 and $2 per hundred. The quality of the stock offered was inferior. The blooms are smaller and the stems are brittle and often crooked. The supply of roses meets all demands. Shawyer and Ophelia sell best. Killarney and White Killarney are coming in inferior quality. The demand for American Beauty is not large. Valley is good, but does not sell readily.

Easter lilies are in large supply and sell well at low prices. Sweet peas are of poor quality. A quantity of outdoor flowers continues to arrive. They include lemon lilies, gaillardias, larkspurs, sweet williams and peonies. The latter are becoming plentiful and move easily.

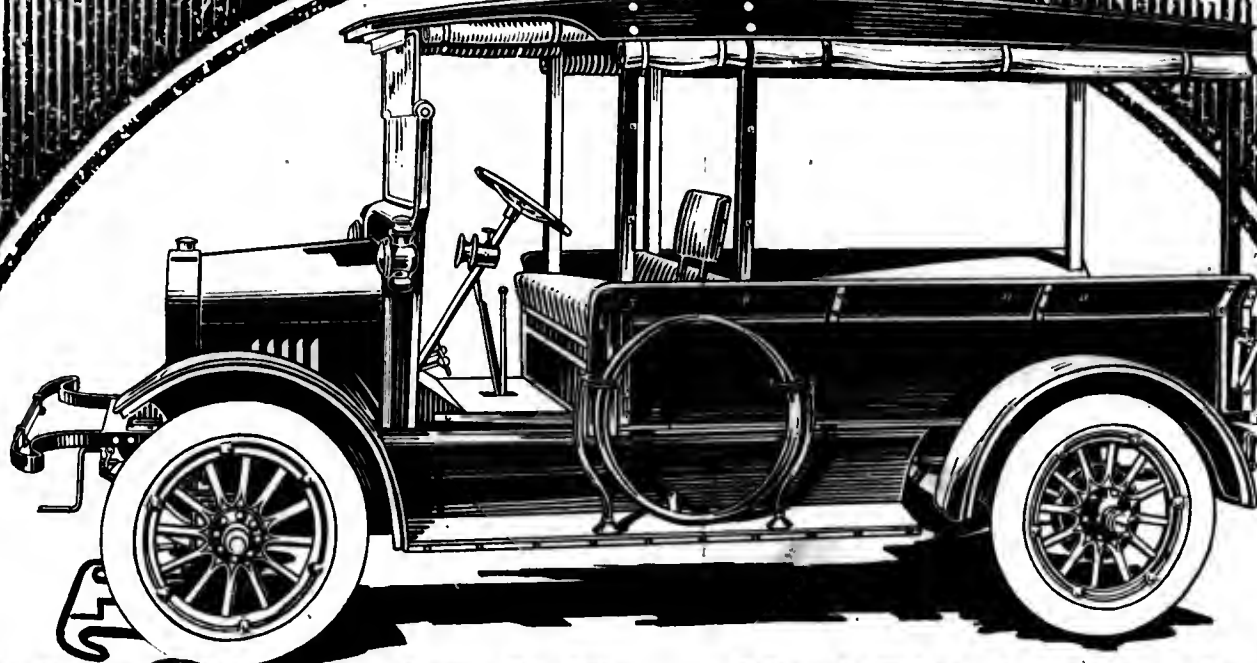

Indoor gladioli sell well, as do daisies in pink, white and yellow. There is a constant demand for bachelor's buttons for patriotic baskets and bouquets. Iris still is plentiful, but is beginning to drag.

New dagger and fancy ferns have arrived and were welcomed by the trade. A quantity of asparagus is in the market and smilax is more plentiful. Palms and ferns sell well. There is a good call for gloxinias and Canterbury bells in pots.

to be held June 29 and 30 at Convention hall, the proceeds of which will be given to the Red Cross.

Several florists had effective windows during the Red Cross campaign last week. J. B. Keller Sons displayed a cross in red carnations, blocked out with white, and George T. Boucher had a figure representing a Red Cross nurse in his window. Other stores displayed flags and posters, all of which helped in the campaign for contributions.

Chester Ament still is shipping good carnations to this market.

Local growers are reported to have a surplus stock of bedding plants, the rainy weather having been against their sale.

The committee in charge of the peony show held a meeting at Convention hall June 22 and made final arrangements for the display June 29 and 30. A number of New York state growers have promised to furnish exhibits and it is expected that the show will be elaborate. The net proceeds go to the Red Cross.

George T. Boucher had an elaborate decoration last week at the Red Cross headquarters in Convention hall. Palms, ferns and flowers were used.

J. B. Keller Sons have had extensive alterations made to their downstairs refrigerators. A thick layer of cork and an added layer of cement have made them airtight.

The Nassau County Horticultural Society held its annual rose show at the Nassau Country Club June 21. The exhibits were of the highest quality and the show was one of the most successful ever held by the society.

There were thirty-one classes, divided among five sections, roses, other outdoor flowers, vegetables, fruits and decorative work. Competition was keen in all classes. The prize-winners were Thomas Flynn, F. O. Johnson, Valentine Cleres, Frank Watson, James McCarthy, William Noonan, J. Mastriama, Robert Jones and Thomas Henderson. The show was under the management of Mrs. George Ford.

At the regular monthly meeting of the society, held June 15 at Pembroke hall, it was decided to give the entire receipts

The Market.

The supply of cut flowers is large; in fact, there is almost a glut in the market. Carnations never before have been so abundant at this time of the year and roses are exceptionally numerous. While peonies are crowding the market, they as yet have not reached the height of their season. Easter lilies are in tremendous supply and there is a flood of outdoor stock. Indoor gladioli, however, are not plentiful and orchids are off crop at present.

The demand has centered on wedding decorations. The first part of last week was quiet, but there was more life during the last days. A commencement dance last week occasioned a demand for a large number of corsages, but funeral work is slack. Counter trade is about normal for this time of the year.

Various Notes.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey are devoting two houses to tomato plants—1,600 of them, the fruit of which is wholesaling at 15 cents per pound. The men are cutting heavily of carnations and replanting the rose houses. The gloxinias seen at this establishment are of mammoth size.

The Flick Floral Co. reports a good demand last week for wedding work. It furnished nearly fifty corsages for a school dance.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Blossom, and their son, Flick, have returned from a week's visit to Rockford and St. Marys, O.

Mrs. Mary Patten has gone to Toledo for a several weeks' visit with her daughter, Miss Helen F. Patten, of the Patten Flower Shop.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

Pittsburgh has been enjoying its first real summer weather of the year and the call for flowers has been brisk. Wholesalers have been cleaning up their daily supplies in better shape than is usual at this season of the year.

Peonies and Spanish irises are about finished and few sweet peas were in the market. There are still some fine carnations and roses, which with Beauties and lilies supply the demand.

The retailers have been busy with a good call for funeral work, and school commencements and social work have helped. The plant business still is holding up, owing to the late season and lack of help.

Various Notes.

The wholesale houses have gone on summer schedule and now close daily at 5 p. m.

There has not been so much planting in the parks this year as usual because of scarcity of help.

Randolph & McClements had a large wedding at Franklin, Pa., last week and another at Oil City June 26. They report an excellent spring business in plants, porch boxes and in social work, the latter including the wedding last week of Samuel McClements, Jr.

Mrs. E. A. Williams had an attractive window display of tuberous-rooted begonias combined with ferns and flags.

G. P. Weaklen & Co. say that the last was the best season in their history. Business has been so strenuous that the employees are looking forward to vacations, which begin in July.

The Blind Floral Co. is making some fine displays in its French windows, which lend themselves nicely to the outdoor flowers that have been used. The company's plant business was up to previous years, notwithstanding the bad weather.

Miss Emma B. Maxwell reports a splendid season and says her force has been worked so hard a couple of quiet months will be welcome.

William Turner's cut flower business continues to increase and, besides, he has had a good season with plants.

Miss Nellie G. King has been having a large quantity of funeral work. She says her business has shown a steady growth during the last year.

Harry J. Hamm is settled in his new location.

Mrs. B. L. Elliott and daughter left last week to visit Mrs. Elliott's father, John Bader, whose home is in Cottage Grove, Ore. Mr. Elliott will join his family in about ten days and they will make a trip to Alaska. Clarke.

The Market.

Business is more quiet this week and nearly all kinds of flowers are overstocked. Last week trade was fairly good, thanks to school graduations and weddings, the call for bright flowers being good. A great decline in the call for graduation bouquets was noted; many schools forbade the presentation of these in the interest of "economy."

The peonies began to arrive in large numbers from local growers June 23 and are at their flood tide this week. Those fortunate enough to get their blooms in early made good prices, but at present there is a decided glut and low prices.

Roses sold tolerably well last week, but they are dragging now; so are carnations. Sweet peas of a good, clear color are selling well, but the flowers in many cases have a faded look and have to be cleared at low prices. Valley sold well last week, but there is now less demand for it. Lilies still sell at low prices; also snapdragons, irises, calendulas and bachelor's buttons. For good yellow marguerites there still is a fair call. Cattleyas are less abundant, but a few more gardenias are seen. Smilax has been selling well and there has been a good call for Asparagus plumosus. Large gladioli have become plentiful and now are harder to dispose of.

Various Notes.

At Penn's wedding orders have been plentiful during the last few days and have kept the staff busy. Large vases of peonies and other outdoor flowers are featured in the windows at present.

The last half of June has given us some real summer weather. From June 18 to 23 we had continuously clear skies and comparatively high temperatures, quite a contrast from what we had experienced for several months.

Pierce Bros., of Waltham, have finished planting two houses to Ward roses and one to Hoosier Beauty. They find that these two varieties pay well. Double White Killarney and Ophelia are of good quality at present.

The annual rose and strawberry show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society will be held June 30 and July 1. The date would have been better a few days later, especially for strawberries, but it will suit peonies well.

The Welch Bros. Co. had a good call for flowers throughout last week, but business now is falling off and settling down to a midsummer basis.

The Budlong Rose Co. is noted for the high quality of its summer roses. This concern is receiving splendid cuts of Mrs. W. R. Hearst, Montrose, Francis Scott Key, Ophelia and Double White Killarney; also small shipments of gardenias.

The annual spraying campaign is now in full progress here and some hundreds of tons of arsenate of lead will be used, principally in the fight against the gypsy moth caterpillar. Forest tent caterpillars are numerous and destructive this summer on oaks and nuts. Their work of destruction precedes that of the voracious gypsy moth.

E. P. Matson, of Reading, is sending in extra fine Illuminator sweet peas and America and Panama gladioli.

Local specialists in bedding plants report that the business is not up to the usual mark, but the calls for such vegetable plants as tomatoes, peppers, egg plants, celery and cabbages are far in excess of the supply.

At Carbone's some large wedding orders have been filled during the last few days, and general business is good.
Sales of garden accessories are large at present. Mr. Carbone still is abroad.

Boston's great open-air flower show closed June 21, after a run of three weeks. The rhododendrons of John Waterer & Sons, Walter Hunnewell and Mrs. S. C. Lawrence were in fine condition as the show closed. Had they been in as good shape at the opening, the show would have proved a greater financial success.

Patriek Welch is receiving shipments of fine local peonies, in addition to his regular lines, and reports good sales of late. He is preparing to handle large quantities of the new Lilium regale from Farquhar's Roslindale nurseries.
The lilies will start to bloom early in July.

E. J. Shaylor, of Auburndale, has a fine lot of new seedling peonies which he will have on exhibition at Horticultural hall June 30.

At the W. W. Edgar establishment at Waverley the demand for bedding plants, hydrangeas and vegetable plants has been excellent of late. Work has been commenced on a new house for Mrs. W. W. Edgar, to be followed by other improvements.

Wax Bros. have averaged more than one wedding order a day for the last half of June and are well satisfied with the way business has held up.

Quite a number of private greenhouse ranges in this section will close wholly or in part during the coming winter. The new state tax, which preceded the federal war tax, was of a semi-socialistic nature and had fully as much to do with this curtailment as the war tax and coal shortage. With neither of New England's leading railroads paying any dividends and other local investments at a low ebb, money-eyed people who have invested heavily in these concerns are naturally alarmed and feel the necessity of retrenchment.

not large enough to take care of the supply. There was an oversupply of sweet peas, which are coming in quantities, and they were offered as low as $1 per thousand. Many were sold at this price and many went to the dump pile.

Roses are plentiful, too, but are of poor quality as a result of the hot weather. Carnations of good quality are becoming scarce, but there is plenty of the poor-grade stock. There is an abundance of extra quality gladioli, with the price down to $4 per hundred. Some excellent valley and a large supply of lilies are in the market.

Outdoor stock is coming in abundance. Smilax is scarce, but fancy flat ferns are coming in quantities, much to the relief of the retailers. Asparagus is plentiful, with a good demand.

Last week brought the St. Louis social season to a close and there were many affairs that called for flowers. These together with school commencements and an unusual amount of funeral work made it a good week for the trade.

Various Notes.

The Retail Florists' Association met at the Mission Inn Garden June 18. There was a large attendance. Several subjects of interest to the retailers were discussed.

As the regular date for the July meeting of the St. Louis County Growers' Association is July 4, it has been postponed to another day, to be announced later. At this meeting arrangements will be made for the annual picnic.

Charles Ostertag, son of Henry Ostertag, of Ostertag Bros., is at St. Luke's hospital recovering from an operation for appendicitis. He is the assistant manager of the Ostertag store.

Walter Young, secretary and treasurer of C. Young & Sons Co., left June 22 for Chicago, where he will join the aviation corps of the United States army. A large number of his friends and members of his family were at the station to bid him good-bye.

Mr. and Mrs. Millis, of the Alpha Floral Co., Kansas City, Mo., spent a few days of their honeymoon in St. Louis last week and visited the whole-

Are Flowers a Luxury?

Since Good Friday, the day that war against Germany was declared, there has been a question as to whether or not flowers are a luxury; that is, one of the things that could be done without if money gets tight.

I have told in this column the opinions of such authorities on the subject as Mrs. Fannie D. Hill, of Samuel Feast & Sons, Miss Cook and Mary Johnston, and I do not know of three women better qualified to express an opinion on this most important question. Now, each one of the above has declared, in language that could not be misinterpreted, that flowers are not a luxury, but an absolute necessity in the lives of the American people.

Since the war was declared, the writer, realizing that actual hostilities have not yet started and, if we are to judge by the preparations our government is making, that every indication points to a long-drawn-out war, has never missed an opportunity to feel the pulse of the people, both in and out of the trade, and I must say that in most cases the florists themselves are the ones who are guilty of pessimism.

Unbiased Opinion Sought.

I have been gathering material for this article ever since war was declared, and while from time to time I have given the opinion of florists, I realized that these people all had an ax to grind, that "the wish was father to the thought." So for a long time I have been looking for someone who I thought could express what we might term an average opinion.

I did not want the opinion of one of the rich, nor the poor, for I think the opinion of the one would be as valuable as that of the other. The one I sought was some conservative person, who had seen the ups and downs of building a real home for his or her family; one who was neither directly nor indirectly connected with the florists' business. And I may say that I have been really particular in my selection.

Now, I might tell here how I came to select Mrs. James S. Watts to give to the florists of Baltimore, and the country as well, the opinion of a person not in the trade on whether or not flowers are a luxury.

Yard Filled with Roses.

On several occasions this spring I saw great bunches of all the best varieties of roses that came from her yard. When I met her I let her know that I was interested in flowers, especially roses, and she gave me an invitation to come out and see the yard she was so proud of. When I got out on Maryland avenue I found her house about midway in the block. It has a nicely furnished front porch and the thing that attracted my attention was a large vase filled with roses and attached to one of the columns.

As we went through to the yard, in every room except the kitchen was a vase of roses; and the yard contains nothing but roses, about seventy-five or 100 of them. She went from plant to plant and told me its name, as if it were a member of her family she was talking about. It was not hard to see why her rose garden was such a success, for with her it was a labor of love.

In this block there are twelve or thirteen houses with no fences between and each yard but one a duplicate of the other. The one exception is owned by a man who believes in economy. This summer he has removed every flower from his yard and planted it in potatoes.

This yard adjoins that of Mrs. Watts and a better object lesson would be hard to find. The thought struck me that I could find no one better able to give an opinion on the subject of this article, and so I put the question to her direct:

"Mrs. Watts," I asked, "do you think flowers are a luxury; that during the war, if times get hard and money scarce, people will do without them?"

She thought for a moment and then said:

"I have been about thirty years building this home; flowers have always played an important part in it, and if, as you say, times get hard, we may have to give them up, but when we do there is a long list of things that will have to go with them. For instance, the automobile, my husband's cigars, the piano and books and magazines and lots of other little things that go to make a home."

I asked her if she thought there were many who shared her opinion.

She smiled and replied: "Look over these back yards and you will see that the ratio is twelve to one."

some of which there was an oversupply.
But before the week ended, the supply diminished and June 23 there was a shortage in some items, especially carnations.

In roses, American Beauty was steady in supply and demand, while other varieties were more abundant, but cleared daily. Russell still holds a place in the front rank of popularity. "Local peonies are coming in freely. Good peas find a ready sale, but a majority of them are getting short-stemmed and short-lived.
Gladioli are more plentiful, with America leading. The warm weather is affecting most of the stock.

Various Notes.

Frank Schnell, of Lockport, N. Y., has been cutting from 3,000 to 6,000 peonies per week and found no difficulty in securing a market for them.

Charles Felton is so proud of his new automobile that he usually parked it on Main street. But not any more, as he recently paid a $3 fine for the privilege.

W. J. Palmer had two pretty young women dressed as Red Cross nurses selling flowers in the street before his store June 23. The proceeds were donated to the Red Cross Society.

Robert J. Dobbie, who has been with W. J. Palmer & Son during the last six years, has resigned. He recently received a license to practice medicine and will become connected with the Buffalo General hospital. Dr. Dobbie began at the bottom in the florists' business and worked his way into a good position, but at the same time found an opportunity to study medicine. Needless to say that he has the best wishes of the trade for success in his new profession.

The Buffalo Florists' Club will hold its next meeting Tuesday evening, July 3. There will be a discussion of plans for the annual outing and all members are urged to attend. It will be the last meeting until September. A. E.

NEWS OF THE SEED TRADE

PURPLE TOP STRAP LEAF turnip seed is selling at 60 cents per pound and is in large demand at that price.

A FEDERAL inquiry is being conducted in regard to the advances in the price on canned goods. All canners and brokers in Chicago have been subpoenaed.

ORDERS for turnip seed are beginning to come in and the demand undoubtedly will be good. Prices are ruling much higher than in former years. New crop seed of high germination is selling at from 75 cents to $1 per pound.

CHARLES D. BOYLES, while retaining his membership in the American Seed Trade Association, no longer is actively connected with the seed business. Formerly secretary of the Albert Dickinson Co., he now is with the Hoboken Manufacturers' Railroad Co., making his headquarters at present in Washington.

THE seed laboratory of the United States Department of Agriculture reports that during the month of May 429,277 pounds of crimson clover seed were permitted entry into the United States under the seed-importation act, making a total of 5,434,204 pounds for eleven months ending May 31, as compared with 4,503,983 pounds for the fiscal year 1916.

THE Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station at College Park recently published a bulletin, No. 203, giving the results of analyses of about 1,600 samples of agricultural seed made in 1915. Appearing two years after the seed was planted, the value of the pamphlet may be somewhat impaired, but wholesale seedsmen will get some good names out of it. It is interesting to note that most of the samples were up to the description on the tag and many were somewhat better than claimed for them.

IN March the British Board of Trade prohibited anyone in England mailing a catalogue except in reply to a direct request. The seed trade protested vehemently. Notice now is given: "The Royal Commission on Paper will permit the distribution of seedsmen's catalogues during the present year, on condition that not more than fifty per cent, whether in number or in weight, of the catalogues distributed in the year 1914 shall be sent out, and that the catalogues shall refer to food products only."

ACCORDING to A. H. Smith, of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, the onion set crop is about three weeks late in growth because of the backward season. Sets are only standing three to four inches high at the present time, whereas they should be about eight to ten inches. Yet the cool, moist weather has caused them to make good roots and the stands are good and even, although there are a few sections which show some indications of maggots. Most fields are, however, looking satisfactory, and with favorable weather from now on should make good crops. It is entirely a weather proposition now.

Frank W. Bolgiano.
(President of the American Seed Trade Association.)

A MARKED scarcity is developing in cabbage seed. Some of the larger seed houses are reporting heavy sales for summer and fall planting and prospects are for higher prices.

HEAVY storms through central and northern Michigan are reported to have done considerable damage to the radish fields in some sections. The crop is backward at the best.

THERE is every indication that American growers of pansy seeds will have a fine season. There is said to be a good crop, but no last year's stock and no prospect of imports of consequence.

JOHN C. LEONARD, of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, has returned from a trip to Columbus, Wis., where he was looking over some of the company's crops. He reports good stands, but too much rain.

WISCONSIN pea fields are in good condition at the present time, due to the cool, moist weather and rain. Vines are just beginning to bloom and look strong and healthy, but there is so much moisture in the plants that it is thought by some that if it should turn hot suddenly the plants might scald and a great deal of damage be done. With reasonably cool weather, however, for the next ten days or two weeks, there should be a good crop in Wisconsin for canning. Seed peas will have to mature and dry down and so run greater chances of damage than the same varieties which are pulled for canning purposes.

We Pledge Our Resources.

By unanimous vote the resolution recommended by President White, with a slight change, was adopted as follows:

At the thirty-fifth annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association it was unanimously

RESOLVED: That the President of the United States and the Secretary of Agriculture be tendered the support of this association in all reasonable measures designed to prosecute the war with the utmost vigor. And be it

RESOLVED: That we count ourselves fortunate to be able to do our full share in supplying men and money, but our greatest service may well be in maintaining under extraordinary strain the machinery of producing and the distributing of seeds without which agriculture must fail. And be it further

RESOLVED: That because we realize in some measure the magnitude of the task to which our country is committed, we are the more earnest in pledging to it our entire resources.

In order to do the trade justice and to forestall ill-advised action in local seed campaigns, the following recommendations were presented by L. L. Olds and adopted:

RESOLVED: That a special committee be appointed with the following duties: First, to keep in touch so far as possible with the activities of any special war councils and to promote by necessary publicity the use of the established channels of seed distribution; second, to do everything possible to encourage seedsmen to perfect and improve their business to more fully meet the present emergency.

The Seed Marketing Bureau.

W. A. Wheeler, former seedsman, now specialist in charge of seed marketing investigations, Office of Markets, U. S. Department of Agriculture, explained the purpose and scope of the Bureau of Markets, which is a comparatively new departure in government activities. Mr. Wheeler stated that it is not the purpose of the department to do anything to upset the present channels of legitimate seed dealing insofar as such are economical and efficient. Field studies have been begun in the marketing of grass and clover seeds at country points and it is hoped that these may be continued this summer, so that the results may become available for publication in the near future.

"It is planned to inaugurate within the bureau," said Mr. Wheeler, "a grain, seed and hay marketing reporting service for reporting to those interested the commercial movement of the various kinds of grains, seeds and hay. The information which would be covered under the seeds section in this service includes seed grains, grass and clover seeds, beans, peas and seeds of

Miscellaneous Business.

The by-laws were amended so that the executive committee may legally set the place of annual meeting for any day in June, instead of the fixed date.

A resolution of thanks was addressed to William G. Scarlett, chairman of the legislative committee, for his tactful, diplomatic and efficient services; also to the members of the legislative committee, because they have well discharged arduous duties.

Messages of sympathy were ordered sent to Osear Will and L. L. May, who are ill.

H. W. Wood, chairman, reported resolutions of condolence with the families of members deceased during the year: Walter P. Stokes, Herbert W. Johnson, Henry A. Salzer, W. C. Langbridge and Henry Kirke White.

Resolutions of thanks and appreciation were addressed to the Detroit seedsmen and especially D. M. Ferry & Co. and Theodore Cobb, who arranged the exceedingly pleasant affair at Oakview Farm, for their hospitalities.

A handsome watch and chain were presented to President White as the closing act of the convention.

The association of seed analysts was in session at Detroit at the same time and the occasion afforded opportunity for conference and discussion, privately and in both meetings, which it is thought made a material advance toward agreement on a uniform, workable seed bill both organizations and individual members can seek to have adopted by the states.

THE NEW PRESIDENT.

F. W. Bolgiano started in business at the age of 17 years as a florist at Waverly, Baltimore county, Md. After two years he entered the establishment of J. Bolgiano & Son, Baltimore, Md., where he remained five years. He then opened a store in Washington, D. C., where he conducted a retail seed and flower business. In 1899 his business in the seed line became so large that Mr. Bolgiano gave up flower selling and devoted his

Pansies for Profit

There is an enormous demand for pansy plants, as you know. Good pansies bring a profitable price and it is profit you are in business for.

To grow good pansies you must first have good seed; seed from a carefully selected Strain such as you can buy of Toole & Son. Then of course you must grow them carefully.

Our part is to furnish a carefully selected strain of pansy seed, strong in germination, which we do.

Your part is to grow them carefully, and fully as important, ask a price for them that will leave you a profit.

William Toole & Son are pioneers in the raising of pansy seed in America.

Thirty-five years' experience in selecting, breeding, studying, and growing pansy seed and plants especially to suit the wants of American people, have resulted in our superior strain of pansy seed.

Our aim is to grow the kind of seeds we would like to buy ourselves.

Our endeavor is to combine a wide range of bright and pleasing colors with large size flowers, heavy substance of petals, together with an attractive round flower, many of which are ruffled and lightly fringed.

TOOLE'S GIANT PRIZE STRAIN

This strain contains the best pansies we know how to produce. Besides colors and shades of our own selection it contains such novelties and varieties from other growers as we have found worth while after careful trials.

It will produce flowers of large size, splendid form and substance and in the widest range of shades and colors. Packet, 20c.; trade packet of 1,000 seeds, 40c.; 1/8-oz., 90c.; 1/4-oz., $1.25; 1 oz., $5.

COLOR MIXTURES

10. Blue Shades—This is a mixture of all blue and purple varieties of pansies.

20. Black Pansies.

30. Brown Shades—This is a mixture of all the beautiful brown varieties of pansies.

50. Red Shades—All of the showy red and purple kinds are combined in this mixture.

60. White Mixture—All of the different varieties of white flowered pansies are to be found in this mixture.

70. Yellow Shades—Into this mixture we put equal parts of the various shades of yellow pansies.

80. Fancy Varieties—All the fancy edged varieties, such as Freya, Silver Edge, Fire King, etc., are included in this very popular mixture.

100. Masterpiece—Large curled and ruffled flowers in wide range of colors, mostly with large dark center markings.

Leaflet on pansy culture sent free on request.

Any of the above mixtures or varieties, packet, 20c.; trade packet of 1,000 seeds, 40c.; 1/8-oz., 90c.; 1/4-oz., $1.25; 1 oz., $5.00.

entire time to the seed business, which has steadily grown until it is large and prosperous. He is best known to the trade for the part he took in the fight on the first Mann pure seed bill. But for his prompt action it is likely that the bill would have been reported for the third reading in the House.

Mr. Bolgiano has been a member of the American Seed Trade Association since 1894 and has been a hard worker, always putting the interests of the association above all others. His local interests are large and varied, he being a director in three banks. Numbered among other concerns in which he holds an active directorship are an ice cream manufactory, a cold storage and produce business, an insurance agency Commercial Club, the Board of Trade and the Washington Chamber of Commerce. Next to the American Seed Trade Association he values his membership in the Rotary Club, in which he has been an officer.

In 1910 Mr. Bolgiano built a 5-story office and sales building. He has just broken ground for a warehouse 50x150 feet.

Mr. Bolgiano is married and has a son, Charles W. Bolgiano, whom he is educating at Cornell University with a view to his entering the seed business. The boy makes annual trips to the growing points of the west to become familiar with the various kinds of vegetables, the seeds of which he expects to handle when he enters the business.

In 1914 Mr. Bolgiano organized his business into a corporation under the name of F. W. Bolgiano & Co., Inc.

MOTT-LY GLEANINGS.

"Remember that the eyes of the potato are upon you," quotes one. "Yes, and remember also that the eyes of the bug are upon the potato," adds another. "Further, the eyes of the gardener will be upon the seedsman more closely than ever, henceforth," observed David Eddy, of Eddy & Sons, Saratoga Springs, N. Y. "Those who retail seeds must be veritable encyclopedias of agricultural information," he continued. "We compiled a descriptive and attractive booklet entitled 'Do Your Part.' Our leading bank handed out more than 5,000 and, needless to say, it was mutually beneficial."

Baker Bros., of Rutland, Vt., report a good, but backward, seed season.

The seed store of Graham Bros., on Sparks street, Ottawa, Ont., has burst into flame, so to speak, for it was but a few years back that the business was conducted in a comparatively insignificant way, though it filled all requirements at that time. The present building is in keeping with the rapid march of healthy progress noted on all sides. Excellent demand is reported, with the season fully four weeks late. W. M.

Logansport, Ind.—The Pleasant Hill Greenhouse is conducted by Mrs. Lilian B. McDonald and her daughter. They have made a success of the business for twelve years and Mrs. McDonald has educated and graduated two sons for the trade, both of whom now are located at Milwaukee. A. H. McDonald is manager of the flower department of Gimbel Bros., while Frederick McDonald is with Holton & Hunkel Co.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Eureka, Cal.—G. Vanden Abeele has been appointed superintendent of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, succeeding K. Nyeland, who resigned recently.

Santa Cruz, Cal.—R. A. Lounsbury, whose place is on rural route No. 2, states that ill health is causing him to discontinue business as a freesia bulb grower.

Pomona, Cal.—A. W. Pooley reports considerable damage to stock from the heat, even gladioli suffering severely. He says that business is keeping up well. At the Pomona Floral & Nursery Co. store Mr. Zimmer says that the seed business is especially good.

Riverside, Cal.—The Orange Blossom Shop is prettily arranged, and its location just opposite the famous Mission Inn is good. Mr. St. John reports a good business for this time of year, though, of course, not what it is during the tourist season. Miss Hosp's large store was delightfully cool after the heat of the streets. She is well satisfied with business. Oscar Paiseman, formerly with Wolfskills' & Morris Goldenson, of Los Angeles, is now with Miss Hosp.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

During the last week market conditions have been peculiar. Certain flowers, such as gladioli, which did not suffer much from the heat wave, have been extremely plentiful, while sweet peas, carnations and practically everything else from outdoors have been scarce. There also has been a scarcity of good indoor-grown carnations, and the local roses have dropped off badly, both as to quality and quantity. The roses are poorer now than for a long time. Stock shipped in from the north is better than that locally grown, but even this is not up to the usual standard. Good asters now are arriving, the Daybreak shade of pink being especially attractive. This color serves splendidly in funeral work in conjunction with Gladiolus America.

Business has been brisk, considering the heat and other disadvantages. Many weddings and considerable funeral work have helped out. Transient trade is poor, as it usually is at this time of year, when everyone with a small garden provides his or her friends with bouquets free. Greens and plants are not too plentiful, but the demand is not great, except for special occasions. On account of the high price of lumber, all the wholesalers have decided to charge for their shipping boxes. This condition may be changed later, but at present the added charge seems inevitable. For a long time wholesalers have tried to avoid this, but something had to be done to prevent losses on small shipments.

Various Notes.

At a sale under a trust deed, J. Dieterich has taken over the business, land and greenhouses at Montebello, until recently held by H. W. Turner and formerly operated by Dieterich & Turner.

For the present Mr. Dieterich will conduct the plant himself, presumably along the same lines as did Mr. Turner. Mr. Turner as yet has not given out any information as to his future activities. Those who have followed the history of this establishment will remember that formerly Mr. Dieterich and Mr. Turner were in partnership and built a fine range of houses for growing roses and other cut flowers. Later the entire range was given over to roses and operated in connection with a nursery. When the two dissolved partnership Mr. Turner took over the greenhouse end and Mr. Dieterich the nursery.

J. Roller, of the California Cut Flower Co., says that business is steadily improving in the store on West Seventh street. The store is in line for all the business that will naturally follow the removal of so many big department stores to Seventh street.

K. and T. Domoto, of San Francisco, have been in town for a few days on a visit.

The L. A. Floral Co. reports shipping business as good for the season, though the scarcity of field stock makes it difficult to fill some orders.

R. Armstrong, late of Sacramento and long known in horticultural circles in this city, was a visitor last week. Mr. Armstrong is now located in Santa Barbara.

S. Murata & Co. report business better since the hot spell, the heat having the effect of shortening some of the cheaper stocks and leaving the way clear for the better grades.

The postponed hearing of the case between Alois P. Frey, of Crown Point, Ind., and Gebhart Prechtel, of Montebello, came up before Judge Fleming June 19. After hearing the evidence on both sides, the court instructed counsel to prepare briefs and submit them for judgment, the decision to be given after fifteen days. This, it will be remembered, is the case in which an injunction was secured by Mr. Frey to prevent Mr. Prechtel from selling, or otherwise disposing of, freesia bulbs growing on the grounds of the latter. A great deal of interest is taken in the case locally.

The Santa Cruz Evergreen Co. reports a large demand for greens, especially huckleberry.

Among our lady visitors this week are Mrs. A. Weedall, of Bakersfield, and

The Market.

Business holds up remarkably well and to date has shown few signs of the usual slump that accompanies the summer months. There have been many weddings and other society functions calling for more or less elaborate decorations, all of which are especially welcome at this season. Funeral work has been a telling factor.

Stock is plentiful and good. Outdoor sweet peas have made their appearance, but it will be another two weeks before the good Spencers arrive. Until then florists will rely on the greenhouse-grown stock, which Spokane growers seem to grow to perfection.

An unusual condition prevails in that, as late as June 21, peonies have only been in the market a few days and there still are available such flowers as snowballs, lilacs and spiræas.

Various Notes.

At the Hoyt Bros. Co. greenhouses Killarney is being replaced by Ophelia. Killarney will no longer be grown at this range, as Ophelia is setting a pace too fast for the older variety. A large planting of Baby Doll and Bon Silene is being made.

The Spokane Greenhouse Co. reports the season's business to have been a record-breaker, the late planting enabling the company to clean up on nearly all short lines.

Bernson & Halle and H. L. Olsson are running a friendly race as to who can produce the better sweet peas. To date honors are about even, with the retailers completely satisfied.

Claude Matson, formerly decorator for the Davenport hotel and later with the Hollywood Gardens, at Seattle, has accepted a position with Adolph Donart, succeeding E. Stapleton, who resigned some weeks ago.

June 13 Mrs. Mary Burt, wife of the pioneer florist, A. J. Burt, passed away. Her death brought to an end many years of suffering.

Mrs. Johanna Lozier, aged 36 years,

The Market.

The condition of the market last week was practically the same as the week previous. Indoor sweet peas were at their best and had a good call. Carnations, also, were in demand and were plentiful. All kinds of seasonable stock sell well and are in good supply, with the possible exception of delphiniums, which are extremely popular. Peonies are coming in large quantities. A week of sunshine has brought roses along and it is certain they will be in big supply for the rose festival. Outdoor Brunner roses are of splendid quality and meet a lively demand.

Nurserymen's Association.

The executive committee of the Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen has announced the program for the convention, which will be held at Tacoma, Wash., the second week in July. Some of the subjects to be discussed are: "A Landscape Department in the Nurseries," "Laws Governing Street and Wayside Plantings," "Grades, Terms and Prices," and "Packing Standards." The educational subjects include "Rose Propagation," "Coast-grown Seedlings," "Selling Methods," "Pear Blight" and "Inspection Problems."

At the close of the convention it is proposed to make an excursion to Paradise valley in Mount Rainier National park. The executive committee urges that every active nurseryman on the Pacific coast attend the convention. Arrangements have been made with Tacoma hotels to accommodate the visitors and reasonable rates have been promised. C. A. Tonneson, Burton, Wash., is the secretary of the association.

Various Notes.

The retail branch of the trade was busy last week with social work. The Fransioli coming-out party at the Country Club was followed by a similar affair for another debutante. Hundreds of baskets, bouquets and boxes were ordered for these two affairs. The business was divided among all the stores. There also was an unusual demand for wedding bouquets, while funeral work, although not the feature of the week, was heavy.

The Tacoma Rose Society announced June 29 and 30 as the dates for its show, and the gardens were being kept in good condition for the event. The Tacoma show has earned a reputation throughout the northwest and many visitors were expected. Many patriotic displays were planned and the proceeds will be given to the Red Cross. B. G.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The parade of the rose festival was a success, but it fell short of the standard of last year, for the reason that many of the roses failed to bloom. Delphiniums, foxgloves, poppies, carnations and irises saw service in lieu of the roses. Max Smith captured the grand prize with his decorated car. Mr. Smith had the American eagle done in red and white carnations and mounted on the hood of the car. The windshield was backed with delphiniums and the remainder of the car was a mass of lilies and snowballs. Clarke Bros. decorated the school float that won the prize in that section. Many of the other florists competed in the parade, but the number of floats decorated by tradesmen were few compared with those of last year.

At the close of the festival the florists had one day, June 16, on which to dispose of the plants used in the festival center. The public failed to turn out as in other years and only one-third of the stock was sold, with the returns meager.

At the monthly meeting of the Portland Floral Society June 18 the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, E. J. Steele; vice-president, Guy Pilkington; secretary, H. Niklas; treasurer, R. E. Gehr; trustees, L. W. Scott, Julius Dossehe, A. J. Clarke. It was reported that the beds at the Gresham fair grounds were ready to be apportioned to florists who desired them. They are to be planted by July 15 and will be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per square foot. J. Walents was elected a member. L. I. Milot, of Wenatchee, Wash., and Professor Peek, of Corvallis, Ore., were welcome visitors at the meeting. E. T. Mische gave an interesting talk on the wholesale produc-

FISCHER'S SPLENDENS

A Magnificent Lavender Freesia

The only commercial colored Freesia in the world, not to be compared or judged in the same class with any other colored Freesia. It stands alone for size, strength, beauty and fragrance. The flowers are very large, with long, heavy stems with foliage reaching well up the stems, and are highly fragrant.

It is a Freesia that will stand the test of time and will be grown by all florists when stock can be offered at commercial prices. Was awarded a Certificate of Merit at the Pasadena Flower Show.

Stock is limited; send in your orders as soon as possible. Is offered in two shades of color, a bluish lavender and a reddish lavender. Only good sized, flowering bulbs are offered.

Price...per dozen, $3.50; per 100, $20.00

The annual exhibit of the Portland Rose Society was held in the Multnomah hotel last week. Melanie Soupert took the premier prize and was the leading variety of the entire show. W. E. Sherbrooke had a creditable exhibit of roses.

There are too many flowers in the market at present. During the rose festival the heavy receipts were easily taken up, but now we have surpluses. Last week the numerous school graduations had everybody occupied, but it seems that the prices of the bouquets in many cases did not leave much for the till.

W. G. W.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Although business seems to be well up to normal for this time of the year, the market is not in a healthful condition. More flowers are being brought in daily than can be absorbed without sacrificing a large percentage of them. As is bound to be the case under the circumstances, the street venders are reaping their harvest, if they ever have such. The warm weather of the last week has not been an aid; in fact, the sudden rise in temperature is held largely responsible for the excessive supply of flowers and the inevitable low prices. The quality of the offerings has suffered considerably. However, if other conditions were favorable, there would be little complaint on this score. When all angles are considered, the market is no worse than could be expected under the pressure of such heavy receipts.

While the supply is more than ample, taken as a whole, there are a few items for which exceptions must be made, principally orchids, valley and good American Beauty roses. The glut applies particularly to carnations, sweet peas and the numerous kinds of outdoor summer flowers, such as stocks, gypsophylas, marguerites, cornflowers, scabiosas, coreopsis, etc. All roses have suffered from the heat, opening small and off color. Russell is probably holding its own as well as any other variety. Hadley also is comparatively good and is selling well, despite the large supply of Brunners. Beauties are about gone for the summer. Gardenias are in good supply and receive more attention than usual in wedding bouquets on account of the scarcity of orchids and valley. Baby gladioli will not last much longer and peonies are about gone. The cut of the large-flowering gladioli is increasing from day to day; the top price at wholesale is 50 cents. Good snapdragons may be had at $1 for six dozen.

Contrary to behavior of other flowers this year, dahlias are making their appearance early. Fine blooms of Delice have been seen; also good flowers of Minnie Burtle. A few greenhouse chrysanthemums, of the Early Frost variety, are offered, but they fail to move with any degree of alacrity on account of the great discrepancy between their price and that of the many

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

LIGE RAYL, for many years a prominent nurseryman of Hutchinson, Kan., and a leader in state politics, died recently following an operation for appendicitis.

HARLAN P. KELSEY has been absent from his office at Salem, Mass., since early in June, having been called by the government in connection with the military cantonments being erected in various parts of the country. When last heard from he was at Louisville, Ky., and did not expect to be able to reach Philadelphia for the A. A. N. convention.

A. A. N. IN ANNUAL SESSION.

Meeting This Week at Philadelphia.

The American Association of Nurserymen was organized in 1876. It has met at Boston, Mass., at Dallas, Tex., at Portland, Ore., and at many points between, but this week it is paying its first visit to Philadelphia. It has taken a long time to get around, and it does not appear to have helped the attendance, as the opening day found only about 200 persons on hand, which is considerably less than had been expected.

Spring business has not been up to the mark and practically every member is trying to get a line on the future, on the probabilities in the matter of demand and the course the trade at large will take to meet the situation. Although the framers of the program ignored the fact that the United States has gone to war, the war and its bearing on the nursery trade constitutes the principal subject for conversation outside the meeting room. The report is general that the war caused the postponement of many large landscaping undertakings and that the hurrah for quick increase in food production caused neglect of fruit tree planting.

Two Years of High Dues.

This meeting came at the end of the second year's trial of the new plan of organization under which dues are assessed according to the size of the members' business and the talk about the hotel indicates a disposition to consider the results of the change. It appears that the length of the membership roll has not been appreciably affected by the increased cost of membership and the necessity for making a statement of the approximate size of one's turnover. The receipts from dues have increased to a less extent than many expected, in view of the fact that all members doing above $100,000 per year contribute $50 a year additional to the fund and all doing over $50,000 pay $25 additional. Of course the failure to realize the full expectation of revenue has retarded the development of the new activities. The association has ambitious plans, and on certain ones not requiring much money excellent progress has been made, but where considerable funds are required not much more than progress could be reported. The committees, as heretofore, have done much public-spirited work without compensation.

An Early Start.

Although the opening of the convention was not programmed before June 27, the work actually began bright and early in the morning of June 25, for which hour a special meeting of the executive committee had been called with the request that members of the advisory board and chairmen of all standing committees be present. During that day and the next several of the committees held the only meeting it has been possible for them to have during the year, for the discussion and approval of reports prepared by the chairmen.

As usual, the first business session of the convention, called to order about 10 a. m. June 27, was devoted wholly to routine matters, beginning with short welcome by James E. Cattell, representing the city government. After reports by the secretary and treasurer a number of committees reported, the following being called:

Hail Insurance, Frank A. Weber, chairman, Nursery, Mo.
Nomenclature, J. Horace McFarland, chairman, Harrisburg, Pa.
Standardization, Harlan P. Kelsey, chairman, Salem, Mass.
Landscape, W. H. Wyman, chairman, North Abington, Mass.
Publicity, F. L. Atkins, chairman, Rutherford, N. J.
Telegraphic Code, R. C. Chase, chairman, Chase, Ala.
Transportation, Charles M. Sizemore, chairman, Waxahachie, Tex.

The hail insurance committee is negotiating with a mutual cyclone and hail insurance association to take care of the trade.

Reports of other committees, with the report of the counsel, were reserved for the executive session in the afternoon, when the following were called:

Legislation, William Pitkin, chairman, Rochester, N. Y.
Arbitration, W. C. Reed, chairman, Vincennes, Ind.
Distribution, M. R. Cashman, chairman, Owatonna, Minn.
Tariff, Irving Rouse, chairman, Rochester, N. Y.

The arbitration committee had two cases under adjustment when it met in Philadelphia June 25.

The tariff committee reported special interest in maintaining the present specific duties, ad valorem causing much trouble and annoyance.

There was discussion of "Two Years Under the New Constitution," led by Henry B. Chase.

The Business Year.

The report of Treasurer Youngers showed the business year, as follows:

The receipts for the first year under the new plan of organization, during which John Hall was secretary, were $5,829.85. In the last year under the old plan, with dues at $5 per year regardless of the size of the members' business, the receipts were $3,151.90.

How to Make It Pay.

At the executive meeting June 27 J. H. Dayton, of Painesville, O., discussed the all-important topic, "How to Make the Nursery Business Feed and Clothe Us and Pay Our Debts." He showed up the trade's weak points and concluded with the following advice:

First. Cut all unnecessary expense, but do not figure so close on help that stock will suffer or your blocks produce second or third grades which should be first.

Second. Fix a fair price, so that if the stock sells it will give a profit, allowing for increased cost of both growing and selling.

Third. Stick to your prices.

Fourth. Do not figure that because everybody else is hard up and will decrease their plantings, you will keep yours up or increase. Make your planting list correspond with the demand for your products.

Fifth. If the first war year proves to be a blighter on our business, borrow a little more and pull through; better years are bound to come.

Sixth. Keep your chin up, your feet on the ground, your faith in God and the United States at white heat, your faith in the nursery outcome still hotter, and know that the Lord helps those who help themselves, that 500 nurserymen working together, each willing to give the other 499 members and everyone of their customers an absolutely square deal, and we will be as near sure to succeed as anything subject to human control can be in this world.

The Dinner.

The association has tried two or three new things this year. In the first place, the selection of Philadelphia for the meeting was uninvited and the usual local hospitalities were ordered omitted. It was planned as a strictly business convention, but in response to many requests a dinner was arranged for Wednesday evening, each member paying for his own ticket. Robert Pyle, of Conard & Jones Co., was placed in charge of the arrangements, with W. F. Therkindson, of Burpee & Co., handling the entertainment stunts that proceeded coincidentally with the repast. It seems certain the dinner will become an annual feature of the convention.

The ladies were entertained by an automobile trip while the executive session was held June 27.

Papers and Addresses.

That a departure from custom in the preparation of the program is desirable was apparent from the remarks of those on the program for "addresses." With few exceptions they had not prepared themselves; some had been "too busy," while such a reliable inscriber as J. Horace McFarland said: "I am not going to present any paper if I can get out of it. If I can start some kind of a discussion which will make the nurserymen sit up and take notice of their needs, that will be the right thing."

The announced program for the closing days is as follows:

THURSDAY, JUNE 28, 9:30 A. M.

9:30 to 11 a. m., discussion, "Nurserymen's Publicity," led by J. Horace McFarland, Harrisburg, Pa.

11 a. m. to 12:30 p. m., discussion, "Sales Promotion, Advertising," led by Irvine Paschall, convention.

An excursion to Paradise valley in the Mount Rainier National park is proposed at the conclusion of the convention. Secretary Tonneson asks that inquiries regarding the convention be addressed to him at Burton, Wash.

CONTROL OF GRAPE PEST.

The grape leaf-folder, a small "worm" which folds portions of grapevines over itself, feeding within this shelter, can be controlled satisfactorily, say entomologists of the Department of Agriculture. The pest is the larva of a brown moth. Spraying regularly with arsenical solutions, crushing the larvæ by hand in the folded leaves during the growing season, and burning all dead leaves and trash under the vines in the fall are the control measures recommended in a recent publication, Department Bulletin No. 419.

A satisfactory arsenical for use in combating the leaf-folder is arsenate of lead. This may well be applied in a fungicide, such as Bordeaux mixture, a single application thus serving as a treatment for disease and other insect pests. The first application should be made shortly after the blossoms fall in the spring. This should dispose of the first brood of grape leaf-folders effectually, but, if the pest appears later, the application should be repeated. It is advisable to burn the dead leaves in autumn, because the insect winters over in its pupal stage in the ground litter. Several parasitic enemies of the insect have been discovered. They are particularly valuable in destroying the pupæ.

The grape leaf-folder is distributed throughout the United States, but is most troublesome in the central and middle Atlantic states. It attacks both wild and cultivated grapes and a few other plants, including the Virginia creeper. It is injurious to the fruit of the grapevines attacked, since it destroys the foliage at a time when this is most needed to ripen the fruit properly.
Often as much as four-fifths of the foliage is destroyed.

The moth, of which the grape leaf-folder is the larva, has dark brown, opalescent wings, bordered with white.
The body is black, crossed by two white bands in the female and one in the male. The egg is extremely minute.
The fully grown larva is about an inch in length, yellow-green on the sides and somewhat darker above, with scattered, fine, yellow hairs on each segment.

The larva begins folding the leaf when about 2 weeks old. This is done by spinning fine silken threads across a portion of the leaf near the edge, each strand being shorter than that preceding. This procedure gradually draws the leaf over. The folded portion of the leaf is then made fast to the leaf proper by shorter strands of silk. Within this shelter the larva feeds, skeletonizing the portions of the leaf within reach.

The Market.

The market last week was flooded with all kinds of seasonable stock, especially carnations and roses, and some of it went to the dump. As a consequence prices were low.

The retailers, however, benefited by the condition, as there was an unusually good call for funeral and social work and cut flowers. The bedding plant season is about closed, but there still is considerable business in stock for porch boxes.

Various Notes.

A. F. Barbe reports that business has been good, especially in bedding plants. His stock is about sold out. Mr. Barbe has all his chrysanthemums benched. W. J. Barnes also has his fall stock in good shape.

William Biedermann had two large decorations last week. He is sold out in bedding plants, having only enough left to plant out for his own stock.

J. H. Boyd has completely sold out his stock. The old house at Independence has been torn down and replaced with

SIM'S HYBRID YELLOW POLYANTHUS

This is one of my houses. 20x300 feet. of National Flower Show Gold Medal Polyanthus. These have been in bloom constantly since November.

I had two houses of Giant Yellow Polyanthus in full crop at Easter. A Review correspondent saw them March 31st and wrote:

"They include some beautiful varieties, which are being carefully marked and saved for propagation. One bed 300 feet long, of a pale yellow polyanthus, true to type in every plant, was particularly fine. I measured individual flowers two inches in diameter and many of the stalks stood eighteen inches high. Two houses, each 300 feet long, are devoted to this crop, and a glorious sight they are."

But the best of it is they had a glorious sale. You can do as well next season if you order your stock now.

The Market.

The supply of stock, though large and sufficient for all present needs, is not so burdensome as it was at the last writing. The demand is steady, the shipping business, particularly in ferns and bronze galax, being heavy. Roses are in good supply, the receipts including excellent blooms of Ophelia, Ward and American Beauty. Carnations are in liberal supply, but only a limited number of good blooms may be had. Easter lilies are plentiful, gladioli are in fair supply and peonies are available. Valley, snapdragons and coreopsis come in handy now and then. Greens are plentiful.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Ohmer and son, James, of West Palm Beach, Fla., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Gillett, at Price Hill. Next week the visitors leave for Conway, Mich., for a six weeks' stay.

C. E. Critchell has received another car of sphagnum moss. Mr. Critchell reports that he still is having a good call for wire hanging baskets.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

Another week of cool, cloudy weather helped to keep stock in good condition. June 23 brought one of the worst rain storms of years. Basements were flooded and the railroad service was tied up long enough to cause some of the express companies to put a temporary embargo on perishable stock. This, of course, delayed some shipments and caused inconvenience. Peonies suffered somewhat and the wet ground retarded the cutting to a great degree.

Roses are in good supply and their quality is fine. There is no surplus, as the demand takes up the entire cut, and in red roses some shortage is felt. Whites seem to be most plentiful, but even these are moving nicely. Prices are not high, but there are no bargain sales.

Carnations remain plentiful and in good condition. The prices are down, but the demand keeps the large cut from accumulating. Sweet peas are still with us, and while the last of the crop will materialize with the first warm, bright days, the cut keeps this stock in the foreground. Quantities of peas are being disposed of daily.

There are more than enough Easter lilies in the market to meet the demand, which is light at this time. The supply of valley shows some increase, but the demand maintains a continued shortage, and prices remain good. There is practically no outdoor valley in this vicinity. The supply of cattleyas is about equal to the demand and the quality is exceptionally fine.

Commencements during the last week kept the general business up to standard, but school graduations now are practically over, and perhaps the trade may expect a quiet spell.

Various Notes.

J. E. Matthewson, of Sheboygan, Wis., June 21 paid a flying visit to his friends in the city. Dennis Meidam, of Appleton, Wis., was a visitor June 18.

F. MacDonald, with the Holton & Hunkel Co., left June 23 for his vacation. H. J. S.

GERANIUMS

Geraniums are more the people's flower today than ever, and next season will be in greater demand than ever.

Geraniums are the Christmas, New Year, Easter, Birthday, and every other day flower. Now is the time to secure stock for Winter and Christmas flowering, or to grow on for stock.

We have a fine lot in 2 and 3-inch pots, large assortment of varieties in single, double, scented, and ivy-leaved sorts.

2 inch, $2.00 per 100, $18.50 per 1000; 3-inch, $3.00 per 100, $25.00 per 1000, until October 1st, when from every indication we will have to advance prices to meet present industrial conditions.

CANNAS

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

WILL INSTALL A NEW SYSTEM.

As I am about to install a new boiler for my greenhouses, I should like to have your advice on the matter. My two greenhouses run north and south. They are connected and each measures 12x30. They are about six feet high to the eaves and nine feet to the ridge, with two feet of glass in the east side. The north end and east side of the houses are exposed. The west side is protected by a potting shed, which is connected to the greenhouses.

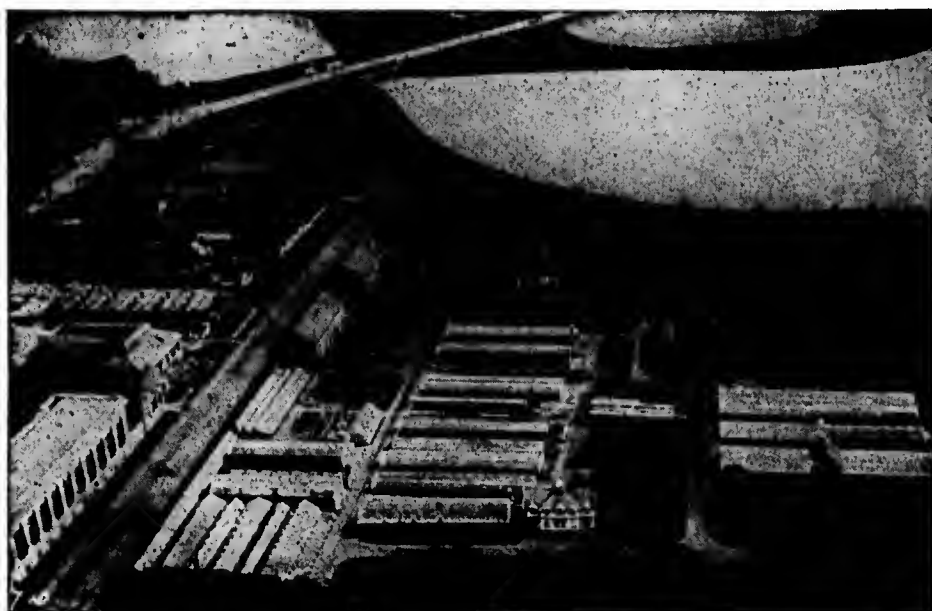

At present I have a small boiler, located at the south end of the greenhouses. Though I put in the piping according to an expert's directions, it does not work well. My intention is that the new boiler shall be large enough to take care of the present houses and four or five others which I may add soon. I have made a concrete pit at the north end of the potting room and intend to place the new boiler there. I have a lot of 1-inch pipe which I should like to use if possible, and I also have some 1½-inch pipe. Please tell me just how to pipe my houses and what size of boiler to buy. The temperature in the houses is to be 60 degrees when the outside temperature is 15 degrees above zero. That is about as cold as the winters generally get here.

Had the letter described the present method of piping and stated the number of feet of each size of pipe available for use, we should have been able to offer more definite suggestions and to plan for the use of the pipe on hand to better advantage.

While we would prefer to use in each house one 2½-inch overhead main, carrying it about eighteen inches below the ridge, it will answer, if two 2-inch flow pipes are substituted. These should be on the wall plates. For the coils we suggest the putting in of seven 1½-inch returns, placing four on the east wall or under the side bench, and three on the other side of the house.

In case the coils are well above the top of the boiler, it will be possible to substitute 1-inch pipes in the coils, using three 1-inch in place of two 1½-inch pipes. Give the flow, as well as the return pipes, a slight fall, and connect the highest point in the flow with the expansion tank. In locating the coils, especially if the top of the boiler is not below the level of the floor,

HEATED BY KROESCHELL BOILERS

The Conservatories of the President of the United States and the U. S. Propagating Gardens are located opposite the Washington monument at Washington, D. C. Over forty greenhouses are devoted to the growing of cut flowers, orchids, stove plants, tropical and decorative stock, and all bedding and ornamental plants for the U. S. Government buildings and grounds at Washington.

A No. 11 KROESCHELL BOILER was installed in 1906 for the high temperature houses. This boiler replaced a number of other makes and made a remarkable record for fuel economy.

UNCLE SAM'S IRON FRAME RANGE ERECTED IN 1910 IS HEATED BY KROESCHELL BOILERS.

The Plant Introduction Garden of the United States Department of Agriculture at Chico, Cal., is heated by No. 2 Kroeschell Boiler and Generator System.

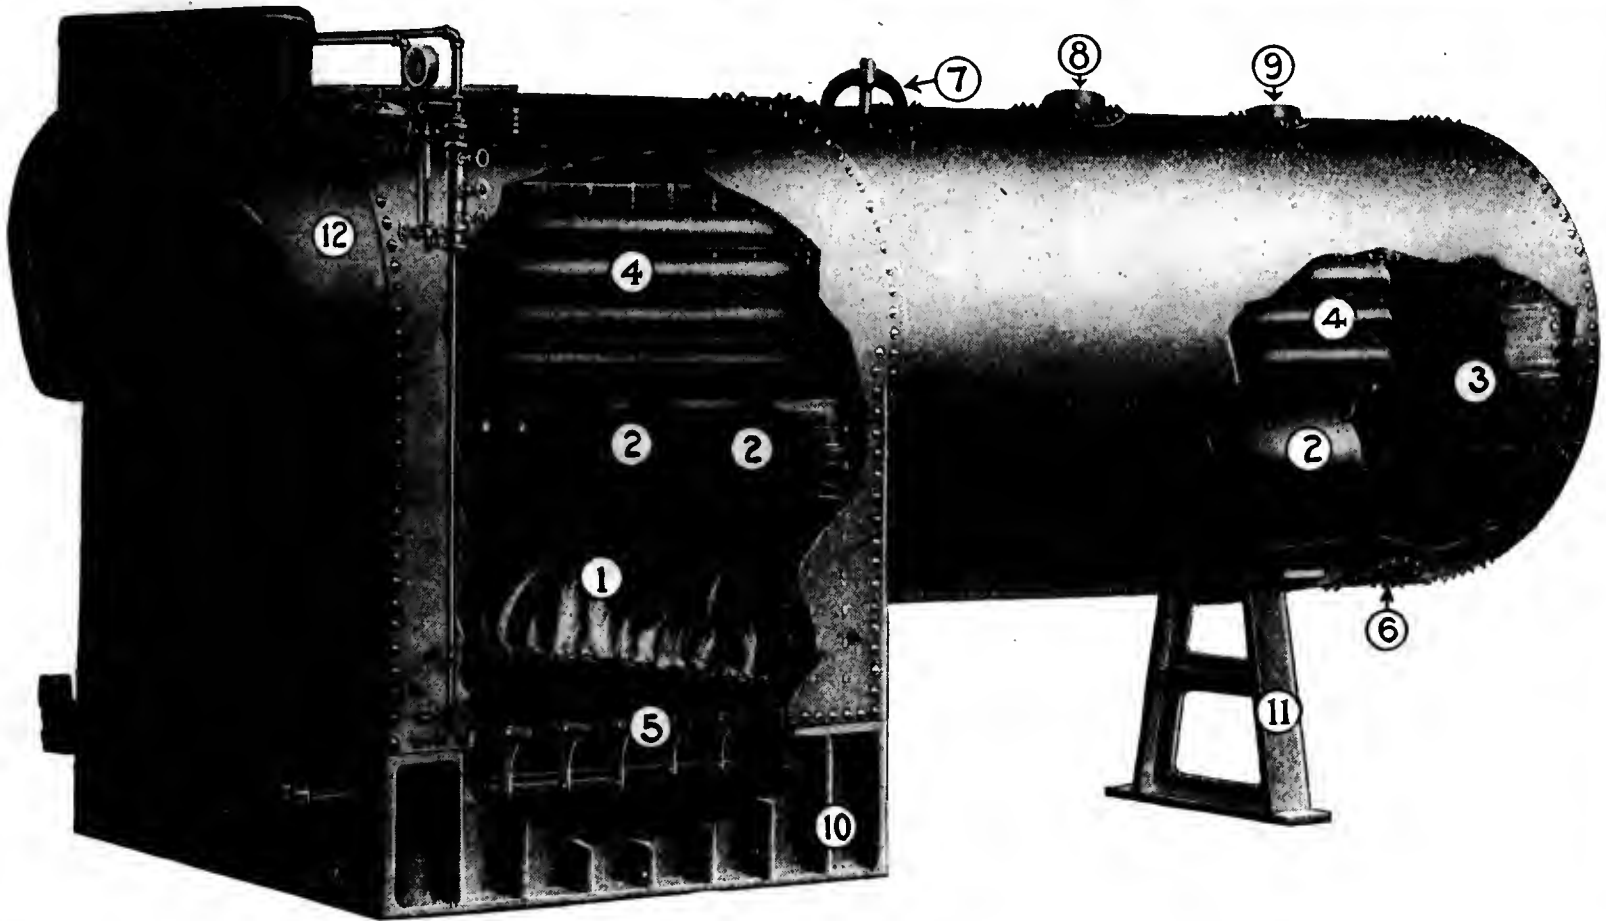

In 1912 two No. 5 KROESCHELL BOILERS were installed for the new range of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, at Garret Park, Md.

The U. S. Government's new establishment, the Northern Great Plains Field Station, at Mandan, N. D., ordered a No. 7 KROESCHELL BOILER for the new greenhouse range erected in 1913.

August, 1914, two more No. 11 KROESCHELL BOILERS were ordered for White House Conservatories and U. S. Propagating Gardens, Washington, D. C.

THE NEW BURNHAM

A Tubular Boiler

Made in Our Factory at Geneva, N. Y.

For Steam or Hot Water

Either High or Low Pressure.

WE say it is new, but it's really in many particulars close to twelve years old.

Over twelve years ago, Mr. Burnham started working out his first tubular boiler, designed especially for greenhouse heating.

Over and over again since then, just as it seemed to the rest of us that at last we had a satisfactory boiler, Mr. Burnham would decide it was not yet worthy of Lord & Burnham's high standard.

Finally, however, one was perfected that not only passed the critical criticisms of all our boiler making experts; but also fully met the exacting requirements of Mr. Burnham.

So here it is.

It's made for either steam or hot water. Either low or high pressure.

The tubes are guaranteed to be real old-fashioned charcoal iron, which is the same iron from which the railway engine boiler tubes are made.

No bricking in. Not even for the base.

It has many points entirely different from any other tubular boiler. Points that mean much to you in saving money in setting-up expense.

Saving money in fuel needed.

Saving money in operation.

Saving money in repairs.

Whatever boiler you may be thinking of buying, hold up a bit, until you have looked well into this one.

Send for circular fully describing and illustrating it.

the pipes should be placed as high as possible.

For five houses having the same dimensions as those described, a boiler rated for about 800 square feet of radiation should be used. This will mean one with about four square feet of grate.

NEWARK, N. J.

Business was quiet last week, although there were a good many belated bedding plant sales. Prices of cut flowers, especially carnations, have dropped to low levels.

F. A. Kuehn reports that he still has considerable cemetery work, but is handicapped by lack of help.

Henry Hornecker, of East Orange, also says it is next to impossible to get help for his greenhouses.

Howard Davis, of East Orange, says calls for bedding stock have been below normal this season.

Ernest Radany reports that business is quiet after a good season.

R. B. M.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

A retrospect of the month's activities shows that June business has been most satisfactory. Bedding stock perhaps has been the most important item; on account of the late season sales of bedding stock have been exceptionally heavy for June, and according to reports the growers are well cleaned up in this line. June, the month of weddings, brought a wealth of decorative work. In connection with the weddings were numerous prenuptial affairs, which accelerated the sale of corsage bouquets. Graduations also have helped to swell the total for the month. The telegraph business has improved, a condition brought about by the soldiers at Fort Benjamin Harrison, who do not forget the girls they left behind them. Counter trade has been about normal and the usual quantity of funeral work has prevailed. Yes, June has been a profitable month for the florists.

The market continues short on roses and Easter lilies, but the demand nevertheless has been well taken care of. Roses bring from $3 to $10 per hundred and lilies from $1 to $1.50 per dozen.

Warmer weather has caused the carnations to deteriorate in quality. They are plentiful, but in little demand because of their inferior grade. Gladioli have weakened and may be purchased at $5 and $6 per hundred, with the fancies making $8. Shasta daisies are in popular favor at $1.50 and $2 per hundred. Delphiniums are the most popular of the seasonable stock, making $4 to $6 per hundred, although other outdoor stock, including coreopsis, Canterbury bells, gaillardias, snapdragons and gypsophilas, meets with a good sale. The green goods market is about normal, with a little improvement noticeable in fern leaves.

Various Notes.

The State Florists' Association of Indiana held a meeting Friday, June 22, to hear the report of the committee on cyclone insurance. The organization is rapidly taking form and in a short time the plans and by-laws will be mailed to the trade. Final action on all steps taken will be brought up at the next meeting of the association,

The bowling club recently organized by members of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society met for practice June 19. Victor Podesta is captain, and he is said to be "some" bowler. Robert Newcomb, of the American Bulb Co., Chicago, was present as a guest. He also made a splendid showing.

Luke Uziek has been engaged by the Art Floral Co. to manage its store on Powell street. He is well fitted to take up his new duties, as he was connected with this concern at one time and more recently has been with Joseph's, on Grant avenue.

F. C. Jaeger & Son expected to open for business June 20, but the store at 152 Powell street was hardly ready for occupancy, so the opening had to be postponed until the end of the week.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. report more funeral work for June than ever before, this class of business, contrary to the order of things, having exceeded wedding work in volume.

Friends of A. J. Rossi are glad to hear that he is getting along as well as could be expected after a serious illness. Frank Pelicano was on the sick list at the same time. Frank Thatcher, well known to the patrons of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., is enjoying a vacation at Lake Tahoe.

says that they have already received twenty cases of orchid plants from Central America this year and that they expect many more. He reports a steadily increasing demand for phalaenopsis and predicts that this species will gain in popularity for use in wedding bouquets. The firm's heavy planting of Russell roses means that many American Beauties are being discarded.

A. B. Brownell, manager of the Portland Wholesale Nursery Co., of Portland, Ore., was a recent visitor.

The Bellevue Florists, or Miss Rothschild and Miss Bertha Cohn, are closing at 1 o'clock Sundays during the summer months. Miss Rothschild is planning a vacation in the Santa Cruz mountains. She is of the opinion that the large number of army people stationed here is having its effect upon the florists' business, judging by the number of uniformed men entering the store. She admits that many of them may have been customers before they enlisted, but says the majority of them seem to come from other sections of the country. At this establishment red, white and blue bouquets and novelties continue to sell well.

Besides looking after his business in the St. Francis hotel, Julius Eppstein is devoting considerable time to landscape work. Last week he spent two days down the peninsula, where he is laying out a large estate.

Heretofore the rule in San Francisco has been to employ males for the sales forces of the flower stores, but MacRorie & McLaren now evidently intend to try women. They have added Miss Lily Houge and Mrs. Jenks to their pay roll, and it is understood that the young women are taking hold nicely. MacRorie & McLaren have secured the services of Charles Clark, formerly with Albert O. Stein and more recently with Mark Ebel, of Sacramento.

Henry Avansino, of Avansino Bros., reports many wedding decorations and a large quantity of funeral work.

The United Flower & Supply Co. showed the first chrysanthemums of the season June 13, two months ahead of the usual date for their appearance. They were the Early Frost variety, grown indoors, but, while good in quality, Mr. Onishi says they failed to move readily on account of the lower prices of other flowers.

SAN FRANCISCO NOTES.

Victor Podesta, of Podesta & Baldocchi, reports business seasonably good; in fact, better than at this time last year.

The employees of Joseph's are quite proud of the fact that each of them is the holder of one or more Liberty bonds. This concern anticipates an unusually active fall business and is making preparations accordingly.

J. A. Axell, manager for the E. W. McLellan Co., reports that the crop of American Beauty roses is about over for the summer, but says that Russell is holding up in fine shape.

The C. Kooyman Co., Inc., is receiving freesia bulbs and Mr. Kooyman says orders to date indicate that the demand will be heavy this season.

Attention has been called to the fact that the roses handled here this year seem to be more infectious than usual. Case after case has been reported of sore hands, and in some instances medical aid has been necessary to prevent serious blood poisoning. The growers claim the condition is not due to any preparation they have used in spraying, and they are at a loss to explain the trouble.

Two large decorations the same week was the booty that made the Albert O. Stein staff work early and late.

The Misses Hannon report business good at their establishment on Sutter street for this time of the year. Family trade has not dropped off so noticeably as usual in June. S. H. G.

Word has been received of the death of Ernest Matraia at San Antonio, Tex., June 15. Mr. Matraia, who was well known up and down the coast, had gone to Texas in March in search of health.

A note in this column May 3 referred to the interest with which the trade heard of an impending reduction in express rates on the steadily increasing long-distance shipments from this market. The attention of the officials of the American Express Co., operating the refrigerator car service, has been called to the item and they explain that it was premature, inasmuch as the matter under consideration, which afforded the basis for the rumor, has been decided adversely. There will be no change in rates in any way for the present, they say.

There is no substitute for Advance Ventilating Apparatus and Greenhouse Fittings.

Thousands of florists buy what they require in this line from us. There is certainly a reason. Don't you think it would pay to investigate? We are always willing to explain.

Just think for a moment about the numerous places around your plant where a neat fitting would improve the circumstances of this particular type in every greenhouse plant. Any one of your employees could attach the part if you had it.

Now, while you are looking around, make a memorandum of these places and what you need. Send the list to us and we will see that the material is immediately sent forward.

We know that these facts are true, and the sooner you install these fittings, the better for you and your products. Understand that no big expense is attached to making these so-called repairs.

It would be well to have one of our catalogues before you when making this memorandum. Write for one today. It is free from
